SMALL VILLAGE'S DAY AS CAPITAL OF POLAND TOLD

Caravan of Officials Scattered by Bombs.

[This is the third of a series of dispatches by Alex Small, who was The Tribune's correspondent in Poland. Previously he told of the Polish government's flight from Warsaw and now he traces its course in eastern Poland. In order to avoid censorship Mr. Small waited until he reached a neutral country before writing of his observations.]

BY ALEX SMALL.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

AMSTERDAM, The Netherlands, Oct. 6.—Krzemieniec was the capital of Poland for a few days, harboring the government which fled Warsaw ahead of the German invasion.

The town is in southeastern Poland, 25 miles west of the old border of Russia and 125 miles north of Rumania. It has one broad street running its whole length, with alleys branching off downhill to the north and uphill to the south.

On our arrival there the evening of Sept. 7—after following the government from Warsaw to Naleczow, near Lublin, then traveling through Chelm and Luck—we found the British embassy already installed in Krzemieniec's best hotel, called Bona. It was a small building with a ground floor and a half story above.

Americans Next Door.

In a similar but slightly smaller house next door Ambassador Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr. and the American embassy were installed. His wife and daughter were putting on a brave face roughing it in a town where not only the conveniences but the ordinary decencies from American standards were lacking.

The war seemed very remote in that Ukrainian town, hardly any men in uniform being visible. The town seemed hidden from German bombings among the encircling hills. Further reassurance was provided by a lookout post and one light, rapid fire gun. Ruins of a medieval castle were on a hill to the north.

Moribund Krzemieniec, in all its 10 centuries, seldom had been so excited as it was by the presence of all these fine gentlemen and ladies in its midst and more automobiles than the Ukrainian country folk imagined existed.

Fear Trouble for Town.

It was not until the next day that the more reflective spirits among the population began murmuring, saying that the dignitaries would bring trouble to the town, which thus far had been peaceful.

On Sept. 10 there arrived a great number of minor officials of the Polish foreign office and Col. Josef Beck, foreign minister, himself. They had been five days coming from Warsaw on a train which had been bombed repeatedly and kept immobile for long hours on various sidings while the occupants lay in fields.

I inquired for the chief of the Anglo-Saxon section of the press bureau and was told that he had "disappeared" en route. After one of the bombings he failed to return to the train. I have never learned what became of him.

Bunks in a Dormitory.

The five days at Krzemieniec stand out in my recollection as an idyllic interlude in the Polish war. The rank and file of the diplomatic corps, the smaller fry with whom I bunked, lived as refugees. We were given dormitory accommodations in an immense building of the town's gymnasium or lyceum—which in America we would call a college—one of the most important in all Poland and the town's title to fame.

The only worry was whether the dispatches I kept turning in to the telegraph office were moving anywhere. Press officials were reassuring. Communications, they said, soon would be better and we would have a chance to visit the army and collect plenty of eyewitness news.

The news, such as it was, sounded reassuring. The Polish armies, after defeats, were said to be reconcentrating on the Narew, Bug, and San rivers and might be expected to hold up the complete conquest of Poland by the Germans for months.

Trek on to Rumania.

In heart, however, nobody had confidence either in the army's resistance or the duration of our stay in Krzemieniec. Meanwhile, the clerical force of the American embassy, mostly girls, had been transported to Rumania. Daily sections or all of

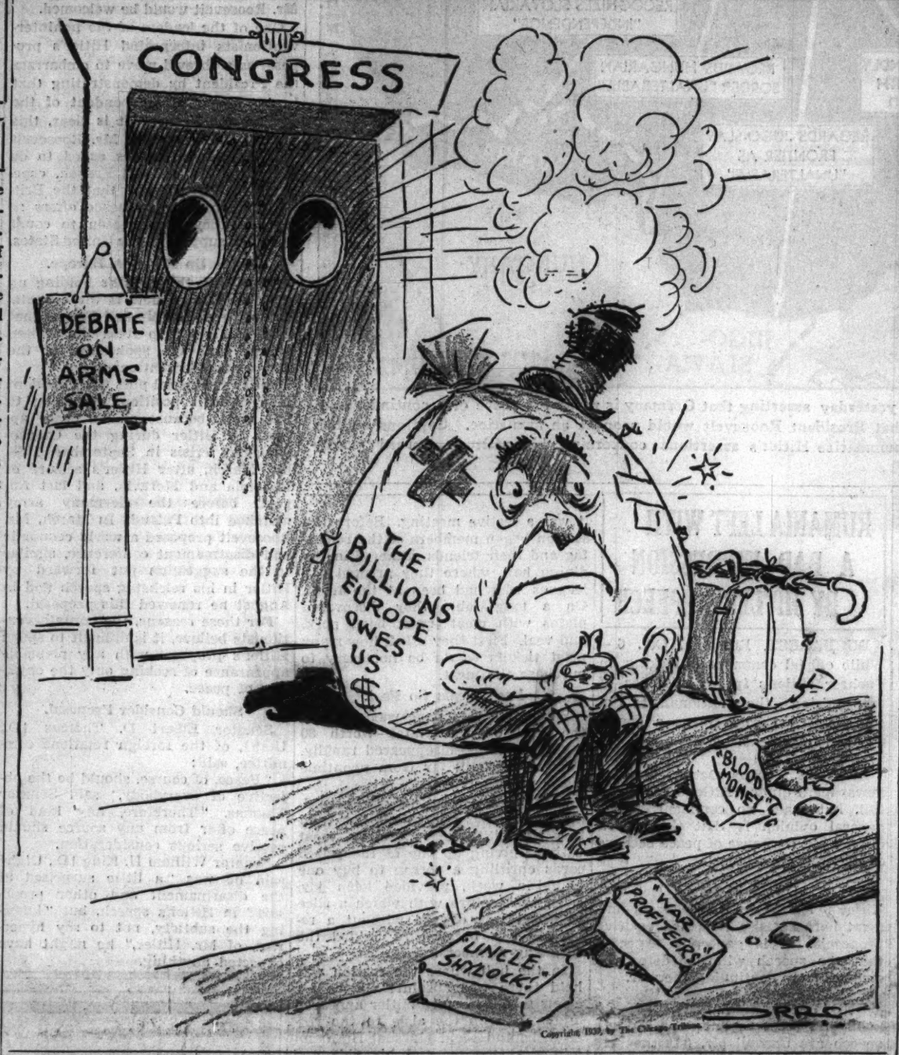
THE FORGOTTEN MAN



Rich Convict, Armed, Flees with His Bride

Atlanta, Ga., Oct. 6 [Special].—Georgia authorities tonight were investigating the escape of a pampered inmate of state prisons, a member of a wealthy family. With the aid of his young, blonde wife, the inmate awed two guards who were taking him to prison in southeast Georgia and fled in their automobile.

The fugitive is Richard Gallogly, sentenced to life imprisonment for murder in 1929. Testimony showed that he and George Harsh, member of a wealthy Milwaukee family, both Oglethorpe university students, killed a drug store clerk in a holdup in 1928.

Granted Many Favors.

The favors granted Gallogly have constituted a scandal in Georgia for years. In 1937, while an inmate of the Milledgeville prison camp, he met and wooed the blonde. She was a student at the Georgia State College for Women and they met when she went to the camp to aid in a dramatic performance.

State authorities permitted the wedding. At intervals they have permitted Gallogly, who is the grandson of Mrs. James R. Gray, wealthy widow of the former owner of the Atlanta Journal, to leave the prison for medical treatment.

Only recently he was given permission to go to an Atlanta hospital on the claim that he had lung trouble. Specialists appointed by Gov. E. D. Rivers said the ailment didn't exist and the order came today for Gallogly's removal to the new state prison at Reidsville, "the Alcatraz of Georgia."

Bride Taken on Trip.

The important prisoner was loaded into a car. With him were the bride, the former Vera Hunt, 23 years old, and his mother, Mrs. W. E. Yankey. There were two prison guards.

According to Chief Inspector Roy K. Mann of the state penal board when the automobile reached a lonely rural section Gallogly drew a revolver and forced the two guards out of the car, threatening to kill them if they refused. His bride climbed in the front seat while Gallogly sought to persuade his mother to go along with them, but she refused to do so. Gallogly and his wife then sped in the car toward Macon, 100 miles away.

The two guards and Mrs. Yankey hitch-hiked a ride to Summit, where they boarded a train for Atlanta. At Wadley the trio was taken into custody by a state patrolman, who took them to Atlanta in an automobile.

In Atlanta it was learned by State Safety Commissioner Lon Sullivan that the guards were unarmed and that Gallogly was not handcuffed. Sullivan insisted that the two guards and

EDEN PRAISES UNITY OF EMPIRE NATIONS IN WAR ON GERMANY

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—Anthony Eden hailed the British empire's wartime response tonight as "a determination shared by us all that the rule of violence must cease."

In a broadcast to the commonwealth the dominions secretary declared:

"The perpetual menace to the freedom of nations, small and great, must be removed, so that the peoples of the world may once more be able to live their own lives in security and peace.

"The rich and manifold resources of this commonwealth of free peoples are being gathered powerfully and swiftly together for a cause to which we have dedicated ourselves," said the former foreign secretary, who returned to the cabinet at the outbreak of war.

A NEW JAPANESE ENVOY KEEPS HIS LIP BUTTONED UP

San Francisco, Cal., Oct. 6 (AP).—Baron Shu Tomii, new Japanese minister to Canada, sidestepped all questions about America's neutrality law today with: "Pardon me, all these questions, as you say in baseball, are too hot for me to handle."

Arriving from Japan on his way to Ottawa, he told reporters: "Like your estimable Ambassador Grew, I try to keep my lip buttoned up." [Joseph Grew is United States ambassador to Japan.]

The baron's wife and 9 year old daughter are accompanying him.

Residents of This Street Split Over Thanksgiving

South Beloit, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special].—Residents on the north side of Shirland avenue will celebrate Thanksgiving day Nov. 30 and those on the south side of the street will observe the holiday Nov. 23. The north side of the street lies across the state line in Wisconsin, and Gov. Heil yesterday set Nov. 30 as the official date for Thanksgiving in Wisconsin. The south side of the street lies in Illinois, and Gov. Henry Horner has decreed that Nov. 23 is Thanksgiving day in Illinois.

Catholic Churches in Paris Celebrate Mass for Poland

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP).—All Roman Catholic churches in the Paris diocese today celebrated a special mass for Poland. Cardinal Jean Verdier, who led the ceremony at Sacre Coeur cathedral in Montmarte, greeted Gene Wladislaw Sikorski, the new Polish premier, with the words: "Poland will live again." The premier replied: "I am certain of it, eminence."

Bullet Fired by Car Bandit Kills Girl, 9

Three small girls were roller skating in front of 520 West 42d place last night. Suddenly one of them fell to the pavement, a bullet in her head. She died 10 minutes later.

The victim was Jacqueline Neville, 9 years old, of 4201 Lowe avenue, a third grade pupil at the Graham elementary school. Her killer was a bandit. His shots, intended for a holdup victim, had gone wild.

The story of the slaying was told to police by Frank Maneely, 554 East 70th street, and Jack Lomas, 6925 South Park avenue, insurance agents, and by Jacqueline's playmates, Loretta O'Brien, 9, of 517 West 42d place, and Geraldine Brankin, 12, of 518 West 42d place.

Bandit Enters Car.

Maneely and Lomas parked their car in front of 522 West 42d place. Lomas remained at the wheel while Maneely left to make a collection. A few seconds later another car containing two men drove up from behind and stopped.

A shabbily dressed man about 38 years old alighted and pointed a gun at Lomas. "Get in the back and sit on the floor," he ordered. Lomas obeyed. The robber took his place at the wheel of the insurance men's car and waited for Maneely to return.

Maneely appeared a few minutes later, saw the stranger at the wheel, and suspected that he was a robber. He attempted to walk around the car to summon aid.

Gunman Fires Four Shots.

The girls approached as Maneely edged forward. The bandit saw him at the same moment and fired four shots through a window of the car. They missed Maneely but one struck Jacqueline in the temple.

The killer leaped from the car. His companion picked him up and they escaped. Jacqueline was taken in a police car to the Evangelical hospital, where she died. Her mother, Mrs. Cecilia Neville, a widow, and a sister, Bernice, 17, who had heard the shots, were with her.

Three weeks ago a life insurance policy was issued for Jacqueline. The agents were Maneely and Lomas.

Plunk! A Nice Fried Fish Lands on George's Porch

Reading, Pa., Oct. 6 (AP).—George Stoffiet was standing on his porch minding his own business when, plunk, a 12 inch trout landed at his feet, already fried. He explained that the fish wriggled loose from a heron winging overhead, struck a high tension wire, and landed in front of his home. As proof Stoffiet showed a picture of himself holding the trout, crisply fried by 66,000 volts.

FRENCH STRIVE TO MEET PEACE DRIVE OF BERLIN

Daladier Says Rule by Force Must End.

BY EDMOND TAYLOR.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Oct. 6.—The French government tonight studied the text of Fuehrer Hitler's speech to the German reichstag and considered means of meeting the Nazi peace offensive.

Some well informed circles considered it certain that France and England would reject the Nazi conception of a peaceful Europe. Others thought that the empires would reply by stating their own conception of a real peace.

If the latter is correct, observers anticipate several days more of suspense for lengthy consultations between the French and British to agree on their precise war aims.

Daladier Tells Aims.

Premier Edouard Daladier met with the foreign affairs committee of the senate two hours after Hitler spoke. A statement issued after the meeting said Daladier had declared:

"France and Britain are waging war to put an end to a reign of aggression, to end the need of mobilizing every six months. They want a lasting peace which rests on respect of the pledged word and on honor, which guarantees the security of France and of all nations.

"This peace excludes all domination in Europe. It can be founded only on the right of peoples to life and liberty. France and Great Britain never will lay down their arms until that peace has been assured effectively.

"Our duty is to be worthy of our soldiers who are waging war to defend our territory, our independence. They will carry on the war, which has been imposed on us and will carry it on to the victory which alone will permit assurance of a régime of real justice and lasting peace in Europe."

Not an Official Reply.

Daladier's speech, however, was not considered officially as an answer to any formal proposals for peace. Daladier, in fact, made only a passing reference before the committee to the fact that Hitler had spoken.

Gen. Maurice Gustave Gamelin, commander in chief of the French and British armies, conferred today with Maj. Gen. Sir Edmund Ironside, chief of the British imperial defense staff.

They were accompanied by their air commanders as well as Maj. Gen. Alphonse Joseph Georges, French army group commander, who is in general charge of French operations on the northern flank of the western front.

Bad weather rendered any serious activity on the western front impossible today. Weather reports and the effect of weather conditions upon operations during the world war are being studied attentively.

Winter Months Unfavorable.

On the Alsace and Lorraine fronts, military experts say, weather conditions should not preclude a major offensive during the month of October. November, December, and January, and particularly the latter two, are unfavorable for big scale offensives on this front, it is stated.

In addition to the mud, rain and fog cripple both aviation and artillery observation. During the world war it was not considered safe to count on more than twelve flying days per month during December and January.

In Flanders, the bad weather sets in somewhat earlier and in Switzerland snow starts falling on the high passes by the middle of October. One military expert said a German offensive through Holland and Belgium was almost certain. He added, however, that if the attack did not come within the next two weeks it was unlikely before spring.

Russia Sentences Scores to Prison for Hoarding

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (AP).—Scores of persons throughout European Russia were sentenced to prison terms of from one to eight years today for hoarding supplies during the mobilization period preceding Russia's invasion of Poland. Flour, soap, textile goods, matches, kerosene, and sugar were the principal commodities hoarded. Most of the defendants were denounced as kulaks.

Aid of Neutrals Hope of Hitler; America Eyed

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]
(Picture on back page.)

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—Germany tonight waited for the head of some neutral state, preferably President Roosevelt, to propose an armistice in Europe's war with the object of attaining a lasting peace.

Nazi statesmen eagerly watched for world reaction to Hitler's speech before the reichstag in which he offered peace or a fight to the finish "in which I do not doubt for a single moment that Germany will be victorious."

There was only one topic of conversation in Berlin—what statesman will take the initiative to establish contact between Germany and Great Britain and France and thus start real peace negotiations?

An Appeal to Neutrals.

A direct appeal to neutral nations of the world to step in and help bring the war to an end was made by Hitler with these words:

"May those peoples and their leaders who are of the same mind now make their reply—and let those who consider war to be a better solution reject my outstretched hand."

The same Nazi circles which a few months ago ridiculed Mr. Roosevelt's peace messages asked foreigners: "Have you heard whether Roosevelt will coöperate with Premier Mussolini to bring about peace conversations?"

[In Washington, D. C., senate noninterventionists said Hitler's bid to neutrals to propose an armistice places President Roosevelt in a difficult spot because of his previous appeals to Hitler for peace and because of the probability that he would not now make an armistice proposal without consulting Britain and France. State department officials, in the absence of any word from the President, would not comment on the Hitler offer. Story on page 2.]

Points to Peace Champions.

An official spokesman of the German government was asked how the Nazis expected Hitler's suggestion for a peace conference to be carried out. He replied:

"Gen. Franco [dictator of Spain], the pope, the queen of the Netherlands [Wilhelmina], and the king of Belgium [Leopold III.] expressed their interest in the cause of peace and offered their coöperation for its sake. The Pan-American conference stressed the desire for peace—therefore it should be possible to find some one willing to act as go-between."

In addition to suggesting a peace conference, Hitler urged restriction of armaments to a "reasonable and economically bearable level; stabilization of relations among European nations and an exchange of minorities to insure such stabilization."

"These should provide a real basis for future peace in Europe," Nazi circles exclaimed.

Hitler Speaks with Restraint.

Hitler spoke to the reichstag in the Kroll Opera house. He spoke with restraint. His audience roared its approval of all warlike utterances and ignored his words of peace.

Nevertheless, most residents of Berlin were convinced the Fuehrer had made a bona fide peace offer.

"If it [the offer] fails it means that England and France want to destroy Germany and we shall fight," they said.

Their hope that a compromise in the war is possible was heightened when the radio announcer in describing the scene in the opera house told

REPORT 50 AMERICANS IN WARSAW ARE SAFE, WITH ONLY ONE HURT

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Fifty American citizens in Warsaw are safe, but one has been hurt, the state department was informed today in a telegram from American Vice Consul Thaddeus H. Chylinski.

The telegram gave the injured American's name as Rakov. After a check of passport files, state department officials said he probably is Harry Rakow of Brooklyn, N. Y.

Alexander C. Kirk, American chargé d'affaires at Berlin, reported to the department he had been informed by the German foreign office the embassy chancery in Warsaw was intact, although bombs fell into the courtyard and garden, but that the ambassador's residence and the consulate general had been destroyed. The American government does not own the buildings it occupied in Warsaw.

CHAMBERLAIN'S WAR CABINET TO DRAFT A REPLY

Expected to Say 'No' to Fuehrer.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The British official reaction to Adolf Hitler's reichstag speech was that the peace proposals in their present form were vague and obscure. Nevertheless, it was announced tonight that the proposals would be carefully examined, as Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain and Foreign Minister Viscount Halifax promised earlier this week.

The British reaction was expressed in a statement issued through the ministry of information six hours after Hitler spoke. The statement, after charging that the proposals were obscure, said also that "they contain no suggestion of reparation for the wrongs done by Germany to other peoples."

Doubt Nazi Intentions.

The statement concluded: "Nevertheless, they will, as has been declared by the prime minister and foreign secretary, be subjected to careful examination in consultation with the governments of the dominions and the French republic.

"But it is necessary to remember two things: First, that no peace proposals likely will be found acceptable which do not effectively free Europe from the menace of aggression, and second, that assurances given by the German government in the past have on so many occasions proved worthless that something more than words will be required today to establish confidence—which must be an essential basis for peace."

Reply in House of Commons.

Hitler's speech will be closely scrutinized by Chamberlain's war cabinet. The prime minister is expected to announce the British reply in the house of commons next week, probably Monday.

Diplomatic circles tonight indicated that Chamberlain's answer likely will be a negative one, but he generally is expected to keep the ball rolling by asking Hitler for further explanations of the peace offer. A strenuous period of diplomatic exchanges is expected in the next 10 days which, if successful, might lead to an armistice.

The impression given in British diplomatic quarters was that Hitler, speaking as the conqueror of Poland, sought to impose his own terms on Britain and France. The British government, it was suggested, cannot afford to accept peace at Hitler's price.

Full Dress Debate.

After the prime minister's statement on the British government's attitude in parliament next week, a full dress debate on Hitler's proposals and the situation created thereby will be staged in commons and the house of lords.

The government statement emphatically denied that this country was responsible for the war.

"On the contrary," it said, "Britain's efforts to preserve peace during successive crises brought about by Germany the last two years are well known and recognized by the whole world."

The statement said that Hitler's speech was made up of two parts, the first a survey of past events which "abounds in perversions of truth," and the second containing "what Hitler describes as a few more proposals for peace."

Cite Biddle Report.

The statement cited the report of Anthony J. Drexel Biddle Jr., American ambassador to Warsaw, without giving details to refute Hitler's claim that humane methods had been used in the war against Poland.

[Biddle accused the Germans of bombing civilians.]

The commentary contrasted Hitler's reference today to the Polish state as lacking any national historic cultural or moral foundation with what he said in the reichstag on May 21, 1935, when he described Poland as a great patriotic nation with cordial friendship for Germany.

Dealing with Czecho-Slovakia, the statement commented: "The world already has formed its own judgment about the alleged request of the Czechs to be incorporated into the reich," while Hitler's declaration that he has never broken a promise was dismissed as showing that "words for him have a meaning totally different from that commonly attached to them."

The statement attributed the misunderstandings of German foreign policy, about which Hitler complained today, to "Hitler's open aspiration for world domination in 'Mein Kampf' [Hitler's book], to his utterances since he came to power, and still more to his acts."

Varying versions of what Hitler actually said were published in the press here tonight and the public appeared to be getting a garbled account, which doubtless came from the vagueness of Hitler's proposals.

[Other dispatches yesterday said that British newspapers received the Hitler speech "in full and uncensored." The British Press association commented that "the censor did not even wish to have it submitted to him."]

What French Had Expected.

Reports reaching here from Paris tonight stated that well informed French circles considered the speech corresponded to what had been expected and would disappoint those who awaited substantially new or precise peace proposals.

Dispatches cabled from Washington, D. C., on the American reaction, however, said that political quarters there regarded Hitler's disarmament and peace proposals as far reaching and important, but feared the British would not accept the suggestions of boundary revisions for eastern Europe and colonial demands as a basis for an armistice.

Commenting on Hitler's speech, the Daily Telegraph took a critical view of the peace bid. Any one inclined to take seriously Hitler's "impudent pose as a great pacificator," the paper said, must reckon on two things: firstly, that Hitler's word cannot be trusted; secondly, that his expressed zeal for a peaceful settlement is qualified by what, in effect, is a nullifying condition.

This condition, according to the Telegraph's interpretation of the speech, is that negotiations should be invoked only after acquiescence to all that Germany has gained already by aggression, her unconditional claims for the return of colonies, her right to lebensraum [living room] and the destruction of Poland's independence.

Ask for "Reasoned Reply."

Editorials in other London papers appeared less truculent in tone, but all reflected the views expressed in the official statement that proposals in the present form were not satisfactory. They also cast doubt on whether Hitler could be trusted.

Despite their criticism, several papers urged the government to pause before entering the next stage of hostilities and in return to consider an answer to Hitler's proposals.

"The rejoinder should take the form of either a reasoned reply or constructive counterproposals," the liberal News Chronicle said.

Lord Beaverbrook's Daily Express was equally emphatic on this point. "He [Hitler] has put forward his proposals," it said. "Let's put forward ours."

Lord Rothermere's Daily Mail raised the question of whether America would sit around a conference table with other powers.

ITALY TO STAND BY ITS POLICY OF NEUTRALITY

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ROME, Oct. 6.—Nothing Adolf Hitler said today has altered Italy's determination to maintain a policy of strict neutrality, political circles said tonight. The Fuehrer's two hour oration was termed "substantial and constructive" in semiofficial quarters.

It was emphasized that the speech has not made it necessary for Italy to modify its attitude, repeatedly stated, that Italy would support any peace movement which had any chance of success. While Italian circles close to the government hope Britain and France will consider carefully Hitler's speech, there is not much expectation that it will end the war.

The man in the street who heard the speech on the Italian radio was somewhat impatient at its length. "Il Duce could have said it in five minutes without preparation," one man said.

Bolivian Chief Puts Nation Under Constitutional Rule

LA PAZ, Bolivia, Oct. 6 (AP).—The provisional régime of Gen. Carlos Quintanilla today issued a decree re-invoking Bolivia's Constitution of 1938 as the guiding doctrine of the government. Parts of the constitution had been set aside by the late Dictator-President German Busch, who died Aug. 23 of a bullet wound said to have been self-inflicted.

HITLER INVITES AMERICA TO ACT AS PEACEMAKER

Previous Remark Recalled.

In his last speech to the reichstag —when he announced that German troops were entering Poland—he said he would not shed his military tunic until peace was restored.

"Hitler is no longer wearing the tunic," cried an ardent Nazi. "Consequently he believes the war is over."

Hitler began his speech with a glowing description of the German campaign in Poland, "where the blood shed jointly by German men ties them together more closely than any bond that could be forged by mere structure of state."

He spoke energetically against the possibility of "legends" developing about the defense of Warsaw and Hela against a numerical superiority of men.

[Hela peninsula, a strip of land north of Gdynia, was the last Polish fortress to surrender.]

Hitler insisted that legends should be allowed to develop only about the feats of German soldiers, "who, during attack and on the march, added still another page to their immortal and glorious record."

Praises Fighting Force.

He paid tribute to all branches of the services, and the reichstag echoed with applause.

Hitler then disclosed that 10,572 officers and men were killed in action in the Polish campaign, that more than 30,000 were injured and 3,409 were missing.

"It possibly will be necessary to assume that part of the missing soldiers who fell into Polish hands were massacred or killed."

The German public believes the death toll is higher. The people point to the great number of death notices appearing in provincial newspapers, compared with the few in papers in big cities. These death notices chiefly were of officers. The people are convinced that if such a large number of officers were killed the losses in the ranks must have been heavier than admitted.

Refers to "Insane Act."

Though Germany and Poland were united in a treaty of friendship until a few months ago, Hitler spoke of the resurrection of Poland as "one of the most insane acts of the treaty of Versailles."

Diplomats recalled that up until a few months ago Germany prided itself on the fact that it was Gen. Erich Ludendorff and the wartime high command who "showed understanding for the national requirements of the Polish minorities suffering under the Russian yoke."

Today, with Poland under German and Russian control, Hitler said his sole aim was to "create peaceful and stable conditions on the eastern border" through "establishment of a reich's border which is fair to historic, ethnographic and economic facts—establishment of quiet not only in the reich proper but also in the entire zone [the German sphere of influence]."

Plans Tiny Polish State.

Hitler said he plans to enforce resettling of minorities on a large scale, which he asserted will "create better lines of division" between countries. He expressed the belief this was possible through coöperation of Germany and soviet Russia.

He said he will allow a small "state remnant of Poland" to survive but that it would have to cooperate with Russia and Germany.

Hitler assured his listeners, including diplomatic representatives of small neighboring states, that he desires peace with them. He named the Baltic states, the Scandinavian nations, and especially Denmark, the Netherlands, Belgium, Switzerland, Jugo-Slavia, Hungary, and Slovakia.

He said he had no territorial claims against France and that he still believed real pacification would be possible only if England and Germany came to terms. Members of the reichstag shouted with enthusiasm when he warned that no country, "not even the islands," is safe from the horrors of war when it breaks out.

Why a War? Hitler Asks.

"Why should there be war on the western front?" Hitler asked. "Poland, of the Versailles treaty, never will be revived."

Instead he suggested a conference at which two groups of problems confronting the world would be discussed: "the problem resulting from the breakdown of Poland and the problem which must be solved to ease the political and economic life of people."

To achieve this, he said, a new German border must be agreed upon, national groups of eastern and southeastern Europe must be resettled, efforts must be made to solve and regulate the Jewish problem, guarantees must be provided for the security of these regions, and a Polish state must be so created and so constructed that it cannot become a center endangering Russia and Germany.

Hitler promised he had no other demands — except for "colonies to which the reich is entitled." He said the demand was one of "political justice and economic common sense."

Hitler gave a harrowing description of the horrors threatening Europe if the powers fail to agree to join a conference "in which the great nations of this continent must foregather to work out and accept guarantees of wide scope, a status which alone can give them a feeling of security, quiet and peace."

He concluded with an appeal to God "to show not only the German people, but all of Europe, the right way to new happiness and peace."

While Hitler spoke troops manned antiaircraft guns on the roof of the Kroll Opera house. In a nearby avenue soldiers stood like wooden figures beside antiaircraft guns while others scanned the horizon with instruments.

The streets through which the Fuehrer drove to and from the opera house were lined with troops and police officers. Within the opera house the picture was different from previous reichstag sessions.

Wear Army Uniforms.

Many members of the Hitler Guards and Hitler Troops, who formerly wore black and brown uniforms, appeared in field gray—either the field gray of the army or the field uniforms of the Hitler Guards.

A few women in deep mourning were in the galleries, but otherwise it was a festive meeting. Before the session began members of the reichstag and their friends gathered in the dining hall, where they greeted colleagues who had been at the front. On a long table they discovered plates with meat—roast beef, pork, and veal. First they asked how many meat tickets would be necessary to purchase the meat.

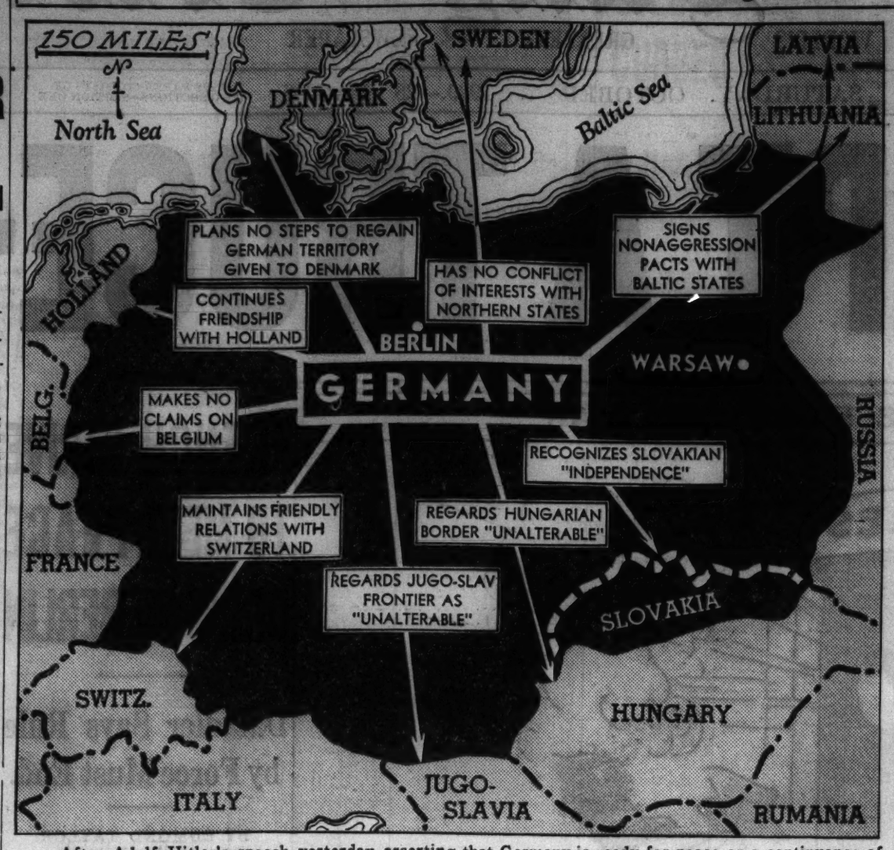
Free Meals Go Fast.

When told that none was required the food on the plates—worth 80 cents per plate—disappeared rapidly. That it was still far from noontime made no difference.

Today was a meatless day, according to all rules and regulations, and the possibility of obtaining meat without giving up one of the prized cards entitling a person to buy one pound a week, provided keen joy. Even the gesture with which a slice of bread was offered without a request for a bread card tickled the reichstag members.

In the hall where the session was held there was absolute silence for a few seconds before Hitler appeared and strode up the aisle to the rostrum behind Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering and his aids and adjutants. Hitler looked slimmer. The double breasted coat he wore hung loosely. His hair was trimmed close and slicked back carefully. The ruddy color of his cheeks showed he had spent much time in the open. His voice was slightly hoarse because of a cold.

Hitler Seeks Truce; Tells Stand Toward Neighbors



After Adolf Hitler's speech yesterday asserting that Germany is ready for peace or a continuance of war, Nazi leaders expressed hope that President Roosevelt would propose an armistice. Captions on this map of Germany and its neighbors summarize Hitler's assertions concerning his attitude toward nearby states.

RUMANIA LEFT WITH A BAD IMPRESSION BY HITLER'S SPEECH

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Oct. 6.—While official comment is lacking on Fuehrer Hitler's speech, his idea of reorganizing the nationalities of southeastern Europe made a generally bad impression here.

ANKARA, Turkey, Oct. 6.—Turkish newspapers quoted Hitler's speech in full, but made no comment. The general opinion is that the speech did not aid the cause of peace because of its aggressive tone.

BELGRADE, Jugo-Slavia, Oct. 6.—Hitler's speech created disappointment here because it lacked positive proposals. It is generally expected that the speech will not deter the empires from continuing the war.

BUDAPEST, Hungary, Oct. 6.—Official and press comment on Hitler's speech are unavailable, but the general reaction is favorable. Much satisfaction is expressed over the guarantee of the Hungarian frontiers and what is believed to be a genuine desire for peace. Mixed feelings greet the passages on minorities. While Hungary is anxious to secure the return of its minorities abroad, it is aware of the sizable German minority within its own frontiers.

SEE ROOSEVELT EMBARRASSED BY NAZI PEACE OFFER

Arms Repeal Foes Expect He'll Consult British.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Senate noninterventionists tonight expressed the opinion that President Roosevelt is placed in an embarrassing position by Adolph Hitler's peace offer and the suggestion in official Berlin quarters that an armistice proposal by Mr. Roosevelt would be welcomed.

One of the leaders of the noninterventionists interpreted Hitler's proposal as a shrewd move to embarrass the President by demonstrating that he no longer is independent of the British and French. It is clear, this senator declared, that Mr. Roosevelt will do nothing unless asked to do so by the British and French, especially the British, and that the British will consider no peace offers so long as they have reason to count upon the support of the United States.

Holds Up Peace in Europe.

"The only thing that's holding up peace in Europe now is the expectation of Great Britain and France that they will get help from the United States," said the spokesmen of the senate noninterventionists.

Hitler's proposal puts the President in a difficult position, according to this view, because of his peace appeals to Hitler during the Czecho-Slovakian crisis in September, 1938, last March, after Hitler's seizure of Bohemia and Moravia, and last August, before the Germany army marched into Poland. In March, Mr. Roosevelt proposed a world economic and disarmament conference, similar to the suggestion put forward by Hitler in his reichstag speech and in August he renewed this proposal.

For these reasons, the noninterventionists believe, it is difficult to spurn Hitler's proposal with any plausible appearance of seeking only the objective of peace.

Should Consider Proposal.

Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], of the foreign relations committee, said:

"Peace, of course, should be the objective of everybody," said Senator Thomas. "Therefore, any kind of peace offer from any source should receive serious consideration.

Senator William H. King [D., Utah] said he was "a little surprised at the disarmament and other proposals" in Hitler's speech, but "knowing the subtlety, not to say hypocrisy, of Mr. Hitler," he might have expected anything.

NAZIS PLAY WAR GAMES IN SIGHT OF FRENCH FORTS

BY LARRY RUE.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ON THE LUXEMBURG-GERMAN BORDER, Oct. 6. — What almost amounts to an armed truce continued to reign today on the Luxemburg sector. This added further argument to the theory that serious operations on the western front are being held in abeyance pending a decision by London and Paris regarding the possibility of achieving by negotiations as much as they can hope to accomplish by war.

Two anti-aircraft guns barked in the distance today. They were the only signs of war heard across the Luxemburg frontier in the last 24 hours. Ten German tanks, evidently in plain sight of French observation posts, maneuvered in an open plain behind Perl, but did not attract artillery fire. Most of the German soldiers were reported clustered around radios listening to Fuehrer Hitler's speech.

Reports that the International Red Cross will establish hospitals in Luxemburg to treat the wounded of both sides are premature. The government favors the suggestion, since it is believed such a move might reinforce Luxenburg's neutrality

Czech Government May Be Established on French Soil

PARIS, Oct. 6 (AP).—Eduard Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia, arrived in Paris from London tonight. He was expected to confer with officials of the French and Polish governments concerning the establishment of a Czech-Slovak government in exile similar to that of Poland. Benes was accompanied by Gen. Viest, one time ranking commander in the Slovak army under the German protectorate, who fled Slovakia when he saw war was inevitable.

BRITISH ANGERED AT CHARGE THEY PLAN TO SINK SHIP

Cast Aspersions Upon Nazi Mentality.

BY DAVID DARRAH.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—The British admiralty tonight issued an indignant rejoinder to the warning of Grand Admiral Erich H. A. Raeder, commander of the German navy, that the American liner Iroquois is to be sunk when it nears American waters. Admiral Raeder's warning, which implied that the British or French planned to sink the Iroquois for the purpose of bringing America into the war on the side of the empires, was disclosed by the American government last night.

Such a suggestion, the British admiralty charged, could come only from a mental criminal. Admiral Raeder, it was declared, had demeaned his uniform by lending himself to putting forth the idea.

The admiralty statement implied that Nazi party leaders cooked up the idea that the Iroquois would be sunk and persuaded Admiral Raeder to put it out.

Reiterates Athenia Charge.

"The admiralty's attention has been drawn to the suggestion emanating from Berlin that the American ship Iroquois is to be sunk through a repetition of circumstances which marked the loss of the Athenia," the admiralty statement said. "The Athenia was sunk by a German U-boat which was plainly seen by responsible survivors, no British submarine being within several hundred miles. The fact that the suggestion is made by the German government enables us to realize and measure the criminal mentality of the Nazi party leaders, but it is surprising that an officer of the former imperial German navy, like Raeder, should demean his uniform by lending himself to such baseness."

The wording of the admiralty statement indicated that it was drafted personally by Winston Churchill, first lord of the admiralty. The Germans recently have concentrated most of their attacks on Churchill.

The S. S. Arcadia, which has been specially provided by the American government, is due to embark 250 Americans who wish to return home. Despite the threat to the safety of the Iroquois, which embarked with 560 Americans on Tuesday, many Americans are waiting for passage and have declared their intention to sail on the Arcadia. The Iroquois is due in New York Wednesday.

Explain! Nazis Ask Britain.

BERLIN, Oct. 6 (AP).—Informed German comment on Grand Admiral Erich Raeder's warning of the possible sinking of the American liner Iroquois was limited today to the following:

"Ask Britain—we have done our duty by giving the warning. It is now up to Britain to explain."

Authorized sources said they could not disclose how Raeder came into possession of the information, but they expressed the opinion that the German admiralty might well have picked up a radio message which it had been able to decode.

British Ship Sunk.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—The ministry of information announced today that the British steamer Glenfarg, 876 tons, had been sunk by a submarine. The announcement added that the crew had been picked up and landed but one man had died of wounds.

Activity on Norwegian Coast.

OSLO, Norway, Oct. 6 (AP).—The newspaper Aftenposten today reported extraordinary activity by airplanes along the Norwegian coast, especially the south coast. It said fishermen returning to port also reported they frequently had sighted British and French submarines, but only occasional German submarines in the Skagerrak, arm of the North Sea between Norway and Denmark.

Sea Survivor

(Story in adjoining column.)

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

Joy Duncan of Richmond, Va., survivor of Norwegian vessel Ronda, which struck a mine in the North sea on Sept. 13, as she arrived in New York yesterday on Holland-America liner Pennland.

GIRL OFF SUNKEN SHIP TELLS DAYS OF TERROR ON SEA

20 Drift for 58 Hours in a Boat Built for Six.

New York, Oct. 6 [Special].—Joy Allan Duncan, 19 years old, of Richmond, Va., who arrived here today on the Holland-America liner Pennland, told of drifting in a small boat with her aunt and 18 men for three terror filled nights after their ship, the Norwegian freighter Ronda, was sunk by a mine in the North sea Sept. 13. A total of 591 passengers, many of them refugees from the European war zone, arrived aboard the Pennland.

There were six passengers on the Ronda. Two were lost with 16 members of the crew, including the captain and his wife. The boat in which Miss Duncan, her aunt, Mrs. John Etchinson, and the 18 men escaped had a normal capacity for six persons.

Rescued by Italian Vessel.

Huddled together in the small craft and without food or water, they drifted for more than 58 hours before they were rescued by the Italian freighter Providenza, which took them to Flushing, Holland.

Miss Duncan boarded the Ronda at Antwerp Sept. 11. On the second day at sea, Miss Duncan related, while she and her aunt were at lunch, the mine literally blasted the ship from under them. While the ship was sinking, she said, a German plane circled the freighter. The first night they were adrift other planes flew overhead four times, she said.

"They circled and then flew off," said the girl. "The officers told me they were German planes."

Makeshift Raft Built.

Miss Duncan said that after the ship sank she grabbed at a barrel and two sailors helped turn the barrel and some pieces of wood into a makeshift raft.

"We clung on the raft for about 20 minutes," she said. "And then a dinghy floated to us. We piled into it—20 of us. I prayed but not out loud and I guess everybody in the boat was doing the same thing, but nobody said much. When you are in a position like that you're so determined to live you don't think much about food."

The men passengers who survived were Karl Hilgendorf of Milwaukee, a graduate of the University of Wisconsin, and Douglas Miller. They reached New York recently on the Holland-America liner Nieuw Amsterdam.

PRESIDENT GETS REPORT IROQUOIS SAFE ON COURSE

Hyde Park, N. Y., Oct. 6.—President Roosevelt, here for the week-end, today received reports that the Iroquois, American steamship bringing American refugees to New York, was steadily making her way uneventfully across the Atlantic. The German admiralty had warned that the ship would be sunk in a plot to involve the United States in the war on the side of the empires.

The White House placed no credence in the warning, which it released to the American public last night. Nonetheless the captain of the vessel was notified and naval and coast guard vessels were dispatched to accompany the liner.

At an informal press conference Mr. Roosevelt said the dispatching of the Iroquois convoy does not establish a precedent for other American vessels. The Iroquois is a special case, he insisted, and other American vessels bringing home refugees cannot expect similar protection.

The President will return to Washington Sunday night.

Rich Killer Escapes

RICH CONVICT ARMED, ESCAPES WITH HIS BRIDE

Forces Georgia Guards to Set Him Free.

Mrs. Yankey be held for further questioning.

The commissioner was severe in his criticism of the guards for their failure to handcuff the prisoner and for not carrying their revolvers. It also was developed by Sullivan that the automobile was off the direct road to Reidsville prison and he wants to know why. A searching investigation is under way by prison authorities to determine whether there was a plot to permit the prisoner to escape and if so who was involved.

Headed for Coast Swamps.

It was generally believed that Gallogly was heading for the seacoast and the swampy regions near it by a circuitous route. They said he probably had friends there. Included in this category was a former guard over a chain gang in which Gallogly had worked.

How he got the pistol is a mystery. One guess is that the young Mrs. Gallogly concealed it under her coat and slipped it to him while they were in the car.

"There are plenty of ways he could have got a gun," Mann said.

Warden Squelches Plan.

It was related here tonight that the socially prominent relatives of the young murderer—Gallogly is only 29—had asked that he be assigned to the Fulton county [Atlanta] prison camp, where he could be near them.

This program was squelched by the warden of the Fulton county camp, who declared in forthright words that Gallogly was a trouble maker and he wouldn't have him as an inmate.

Gov. Rivers late tonight offered a reward of $500 for the capture of Gallogly and the same amount for his wife. He said that every effort is being made to apprehend Gallogly.

GIGANTIC HITLER BUILDING DRIVE CURBED BY WAR

Party Hall, Subways, and Opera Stopped.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Oct. 6.—The war has stopped most of the ambitious Nazi building projects planned by Adolf Hitler, the Berlin Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung admits today.

"Reorganization of the building trade to meet the demands of national defense requires subordination of all engaged in this trade to the higher interests of conducting the war," the paper states. "Thus one must count on discontinuation of work on all representative buildings. Only a few party buildings will be completed."

Subway Projects Must Wait.

The gigantic party congress and sports buildings in Nuremberg, Germany's largest opera planned for Munich, new subways under construction in Munich and Vienna, and Nazi monuments in Munich must wait until the war is ended.

With Germany's great shortage of private dwellings, work will be continued during the war on several "rent barracks" as Germans call the vast apartment houses erected as part of the reich's building program.

Safety Measures Relaxed.

Safety measures, however, will be relaxed considerably. The German labor minister has decreed these apartment houses may be occupied before passing certain rules in the German building code, such as final inspection after doors, windows, stairs, and floors have been installed.

Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung appeals to public builders to pay debts owed to contractors and architects, confessing that in "past years public builders often paid very slowly with many months' delay. Liquidity of building firms must be maintained by prompt payment."

REDS AWAIT LITH REPLY TO DEMAND FOR CONCESSIONS

Moscow Keeps Turk Envoy Cooling His Heels.

MOSCOW, Oct. 6 (AP).—Soviet Russia, apparently convinced that it holds an advantage over Europe's warring leading powers, today continued its policy of spreading its influence in eastern Europe through negotiation.

Russia has been successful thus far in winning concessions without rifle shots, except in Poland.

Following the signing of a 10 year mutual aid treaty with Latvia last night granting Russia huge concessions, one with Lithuania was expected by diplomats to follow shortly, thus completing treaties with the three Baltic states on the west. A Russian-Estonian accord was signed last week.

Reports from Helsingfors, Finland, said Juozas Urbsys, Lithuanian foreign minister, was to fly to Moscow today to complete Russian-Lithuanian negotiations.

May Seek Transit Rights.

Informed circles said transit rights were expected to be Russia's principal demand upon Lithuania. The U. S. S. R. already has gained important military, naval, and air bases in the treaties with Estonia and Latvia.

Negotiations with Turkey, meantime, remained at a standstill. It was not known when Sukru Saracoglu, Turkish foreign minister, would be called to the Kremlin for further conversations.

Saracoglu was being shown the sights about Moscow much as any tourist, but apparently he was doing little negotiating. He seemed, however, to be effectively concealing any impatience or boredom he might feel.

Some diplomatic observers said it looked as though the Russians were playing the oriental game of patience in negotiations with the Turks, at the same time watching closely the progress of British-Turkish military talks in London.

Wants Turks to Be Neutral.

Russia was reported to be demanding Turkish neutrality in the European war and a mutual assistance pact in addition to assurance that warships other than those of Russia and Turkey be not allowed to enter the Black sea through the Dardanelles.

No official comment was forthcoming on Adolf Hitler's speech to the reichstag, but unofficially it was reported that the address was welcomed here.

It was regarded that Hitler's failure to mention the possibility of Russian aid in the European war was a further bolster to the Russian determination to remain neutral.

Diplomats declared that Russia's newly won concessions from its Baltic neighbors increase tremendously its strategical defense position against any possible attack by Britain or Germany.

DIES ON THIRD RAIL.

Mrs. Helen Audrey Moore, 36 years old, was found dead yesterday on the Aurora & Elgin railroad tracks east of York street in Elmhurst. She had been killed by a charge of electricity from the third rail. Mrs. Moore lived at 333 Arlington street in Elmhurst.

The Inquiring Reporter

The Question.

What do you think of Hitler's peace proposal outlined in the reichstag speech?

Where Answered.

In the Dearborn street station.

The Answers.

F. S. Benollel, 5284 Chicago avenue, depot passenger agent—I think Britain and France would make a mistake if they were to pay attention to Hitler's proposals. His word, apparently, cannot be trusted. When he had consolidated his gains it would be the old story over again.

Helen Rouhselange, Crown Point, Ind., saleswoman—His proposal for conferences seems to me to be just another cleverly laid net, and I doubt that France and England will be caught in it. Hitler has demonstrated too often that his word is not to be trusted.

D. E. Cronin, 6454 North Hoyne avenue, depot passenger agent—I doubt that the opposing nations will take Hitler's proposal seriously. Peace, of course, is what all men want and doubtless Hitler's proposals will be given consideration, but it would be hard to trust him.

Stanley Kochan, 4100 Newport avenue, depot passenger agent—I think he's sparring for time. This seems to be just another repitition of past tactics. A respite now would be greatly to his advantage. But that he is relinquishing any of his ambitions I seriously doubt.

Margaret DuCharme, 6306 South Hermitage avenue, telephone switchboard operator — I don't think Hitler is sincere in his proposals for a peace in Europe. Only a peace such as he would dictate would satisfy him. He won't give up until he's completely demolished.

USE BRITISH LOAN TO HELP EXILED POLES IN FRANCE

[Copyright: 1939: By the New York Times.]

LONDON, Oct. 6.—Britain's 20 million dollar loan she agreed to make to Poland Sept. 7, four days after Britain declared war, has not left the country. It is being used for war purposes by the new Polish government established in France. France was a partner with Britain to the agreement. A white paper tonight shows that, in addition to the loan from Britain, Poland was to get 14 million dollars from France.

"About two months ago," a representative of the Polish government said tonight, "the British treasury and Polish representatives failed to agree on the question of the transfer of the loan to Poland. Britain offered the loan in pounds sterling, but would not agree to give it in gold, so it could not be transferred. The money was given on the condition it would remain in Britain and be used for Polish war purposes."

2 CHURCH GROUPS FIGHT REPEAL OF ARMS EMBARGO

Methodist Parley, Catholic Paper Urge Retention.

Leaders who are fighting against repeal of the arms embargo law received support yesterday from two church groups.

1. The Rock River conference of the Methodist church, which is being held in Chicago, formally demanded that the embargo be retained and urged further restrictions covering the sale of materials to warring nations.

2. Catholics were urged by Bishop John F. Noll of Fort Wayne, Ind., to let the President and congress know that they are opposed to the proposed lifting of the embargo.

Urges Limit on Other Sales.

At the Rock River conference, in session in St. James' church, 4600 Ellis avenue, an amendment was presented by the Rev. Ernest F. Tittle of Evanston as part of a report on Christian citizenship.

This amendment demanded retention of the arms embargo. It further demanded an embargo on sales of "war making materials" and the extension of the cash and carry principle to all other articles sold to belligerents. The amendment also urged limiting to peacetime requirements the sale of other materials to belligerent nations.

Bishop Noll's views of the neutrality fight were expressed in Our Sunday Visitor, a Catholic journal which he edits. The paper has nearly half a million subscribers. Some observers professed to see in the bishop's statements an increasing growth of Catholic opposition to repeal of the embargo.

Warns of War Perils.

"It is the firm belief of many impartial observers," he wrote, "that such action [lifting the embargo] will be the first step toward American participation in the European war. We cannot take sides, enter the war in part and stay out in part. If we hope to avert lifting the embargo we must act at once.

"Write or wire today to the President, your senators, and your representatives. Tell them you are opposed to lifting the arms embargo and ask that they exert every effort to keep the United States out of war."

Bishop Noll said the neutrality law not only was signed by the President but also was lauded by him.

"The sympathies of the administration are with England, France and Poland," he said. "That is natural. It is in accordance with our own sympathies. But the war in Europe is not ours. It [the law] cannot be changed now to assist England. . . . A change in the law will be viewed by Germany as an unfriendly and warlike act."

The New World, a Catholic paper in the Chicago area, has supported the President editorially and urged that materials be sold on a cash and carry basis.

Items Which Weren't Headlined in Recent War News

Soviet troops returning to Moscow are reported to have amazed the populace with their stories of low prices in Poland. The soldiers declared that they were able to buy manufactured goods of a quality practically unknown in Russia. Shoes in Poland, they said, cost only one-fourth the prices in the U. S. S. R.

The British admiralty plans the biggest chain of motion picture houses in the world. Every service vessel in the royal navy is soon to have its own film projector. Sailor film fans, paying one and one-half pence [3 cents] a week for seats, will be invited to make criticisms and suggestions on bookings.

Villagers along the Luxemburg border are not permitting the war to halt the routine of their days. Despite the nearness of opposing French and German artillery, the Luxemburgers are crossing the border to properties they have in Germany to gather crops of apples, potatoes, and grapes.

Life for the Turkish mission in London is one round of fêtes. The British are anxious to offset the hospitality the Russians are showing a Turkish mission in Moscow. Both hosts want a friendly Turkey, whose Dardanelles ports control the maritime back door to eastern Europe.

The German government in Berlin relaxed the blackout regulations to permit the capital to adequately celebrate the Nazi victories in Poland. As soon as the celebrations ended, however, the city returned to the blackout routine.

France is reported to have accepted the services of six American airplane pilots who were rejected by Britain and Canada as too old for service. Each has at least 5,000 hours in the air.

Struck by Falling Brick; Dies of Skull Injuries

Fred Paoletto, 43 years old, 105 East 25th street, Chicago Heights, died early today in St. James hospital, in the suburb, of skull injuries suffered in a double accident yesterday. He was carrying brick up a ladder on a building construction job at 17th street and Union avenue, Chicago Heights, when a brick handled by other workers on a floor above fell and hit him on the head. He lost his footing on the ladder and fell to the ground.

RESTAURANT CASHIER ROBBED.

A young bandit who sat at a counter in Stoner's restaurant, 28 North Dearborn street, for nearly three hours last night, apparently building up courage, held up Miss Frances Murphy, 1028 North Karlov avenue, the cashier, and robbed her of $15.

Clipper Arrives from Europe Four Days Late

Port Washington, N. Y., Oct. 6 [Special].—The Dixie Clipper arrived at the Pan-American Airways base here this afternoon from Lisbon via Horta and Bermuda with 45 passengers, 32 of whom were from ports abroad. The flying boat, commanded by Capt. William A. Winston, was four days late because of bad weather and a slight mishap. The flying boat brought the youngest passenger to travel on the trans-Atlantic Clipper—Franklin L. Machover, 8 weeks old. The infant traveled with his parents.

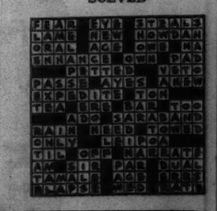
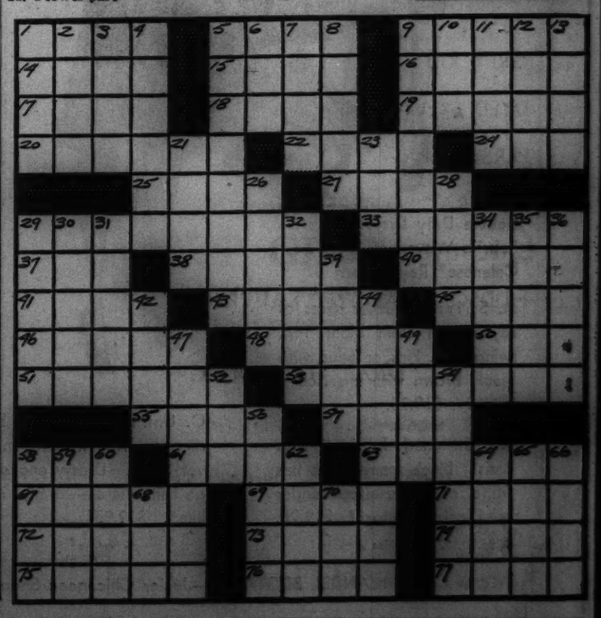
YESTERDAY'S PUZZLE SOLVED





AMERICA MUST STAY NEUTRAL, ASSERTS DEWEY

Save Democracy at Home, Says Poles' Ex-Adviser.

BY LLOYD WENDT.

Charles S. Dewey, former financial adviser to Poland and an assistant secretary of the treasury in the Coolidge administration, returned to Chicago from Europe yesterday. He brought his gas mask and a firm conviction that the United States must keep clear of Europe's war at all costs.

"We must stay out," Dewey said. "We must maintain a strong democracy at home. In that way we can be of real service to world peace. By entering, we accept the prejudices which have helped to bring on the war and we destroy our value as an influence for true world peace."

The sudden collapse of Polish resistance to the German army was not unexpected, Dewey said. He implied that Poland had been badly advised, although he declined to fix the blame on any government. He said that when he was in Poland last May on economic matters he had advised the government to come to terms with Germany.

Tells of Offering Plan.

"In May I presented a plan to Marshal Smigly-Rydz [then dictator of Poland] and to President Moscicki—an action I have not revealed until now.

"Because of my knowledge of the Polish situation, I realized that a war of any kind would be disastrous to a new state, just coming into the fulfillment of some of its economic aspirations. I took the liberty of proposing to Smigly-Rydz and President Moscicki that the Poles relinquish certain political rights in Danzig and provide Germany with the passage sought across the Polish corridor in return for certain rights across East Prussia and in the port of Memel. The plan, however, got lost in the diplomatic shuffle."

Dewey explained that it was possible for the Nazis to overrun Poland quickly because Poland did not have sufficient industrial development to mechanize an army adequately and lacked credit to obtain equipment.

Lack of Resources Cited.

"It generally is admitted that Poland had a good army and a large army," he said. "The Polish soldier is a good soldier. But Poland is an agricultural country with small industrial resources. She couldn't possibly prepare a strong defense against mechanized warfare. She had no natural frontiers which might be defended easily, and her plains were ideal for the German mechanized forces to rush through. She simply had no chance."

"Do you think England knew of this situation when Poland was being encouraged to defy Germany?" Dewey was asked.

"Well," he said, "I can't answer that. When Maj. Gen. Ironside of the British army visited Poland at the time of negotiations between Britain and Poland he reported that the Polish artillery was inadequate and that the nation's mechanized force was insufficient.

"After that England granted Poland only $40,000,000 in credit and required that the goods be bought in England, when there was no likely way to get them to Poland. I'd like to find the answer to the question: Why did Prime Minister Chamberlain guarantee Poland's frontier?"

Poland's Future in Doubt.

"What the future of Poland will be, no one can say.

"France is calm, and the people seem grimly determined to see the thing through. You often heard small shopkeepers say that the war had to come and that a definite settlement was better than the eternal crises. They couldn't continue to endure these crises.

"We often had air raid signals, but the people took them calmly. The censorship in France is severe. You can't telephone or telegraph without undergoing censorship, and letters and papers are difficult to get through.

"It's difficult to learn what is true about Germany. We know the food is short there. I talked with several men who had been in Germany, and who might be expected to know, and they could not guess how long Germany could carry on the war.

"Germany will get some supplies from Russia, it is true. But remember that when Russia sold supplies to the government in Spain, the soviet demanded cash on the barrel head. There's no reason to suppose they'll do otherwise for Germany."

"We Must Stay Out"

(Story in adjoining column.)

Charles S. Dewey, who brought gas mask on arrival from Europe yesterday, voiced conviction that this country must remain neutral in war.

4 GIANT LIGHTS TO SPOT TARGET IN AERIAL SHOW

Beams Will Aid Gunners to Direct Fire.

BY BOB BECKER.

Four searchlights, each of which generates between 800 million and a billion candle power, will play a prominent part in the antiaircraft exhibition Tuesday night on the 12th street beach in Grant park.

This show, sponsored by THE CHICAGO TRIBUNE in coöperation with the Chicago park district, the 202d coast artillery of the Illinois National Guard, and the Lincoln Park Gun club, will start at 8 p. m. Admission is free.

The giant searchlights are part of the antiaircraft equipment of the 202d coast artillery. Col. Charles C. Dawes, commanding officer of the regiment, announced yesterday that the lights throw a beam 12,000 feet or more into the sky. They are so powerful that under normal atmospheric conditions they can be seen for 35 or 40 miles.

Lights to Focus on Target.

The battery of big lights will go into action when the 202d coast artillery puts on its antiaircraft exhibition. They will spot an airplane towing a 40 foot target and will give the gunners manning the 3-inch antiaircraft guns a clear view of the target silhouetted against the sky.

The searchlights will be placed north, west, and south of the guns. One of them is to be stationed near the Planetarium so it can follow the airplane when it flies north with the target and turns to pass the battery again. The 3-inch shells which will be fired at the target are 32 inches long and weigh 27 pounds each.

Floodlights which are installed on the 12th street beach will illuminate the skeet traps, where a squad of expert marksmen from the Lincoln Park Gun club will give an exhibition of breaking clay pigeons. Army officers say skeet shooting is excellent training for soldiers. It teaches them how to fire accurately at fast moving low targets, such as combat planes with machine guns sweeping over infantry.

Used as Training Course.

Col. Dawes yesterday praised skeet not only as a wholesome outdoor sport, but also for its importance in training men in antiaircraft work. He said that shooting at the speedy clay pigeons teaches men how to lead a target and to allow for wind and other atmospheric conditions.

Army officers at Fort Benning, Ga., have experimented with skeet as a training course for antiaircraft gunners and have found that soldiers who first learned how to handle a shotgun on clay pigeons made better antiaircraft gunners than those who had not received this preliminary training.

John Marzall, president of Lincoln park traps, said the skeet squad also will demonstrate its skill and speed with repeating shotguns by breaking scores of balloons which will be released into the air.

GOV. CHANDLER TO RESIGN; WILL GET SENATE SEAT

Frankfort, Ky., Oct. 6 (AP).—Albert Benjamin [Happy] Chandler will resign as governor Monday to be appointed to the United States senate by his successor, Lieut. Gov. Keen Johnson. This was disclosed by official sources today. The governor, after receiving his appointment, will make a public statement and board a train for Washington to take the late Senator M. M. Logan's seat.

The 41 year old governor busied himself in his office today seeing scores of visitors, making numerous last minute appointments, and cleaning out his desk and files.

Because Logan died less than 90 days before a general election, Chandler will serve until the 1940 election.

Senator Logan was buried today near Brownsville, Ky.

Red Cross Arranges Mail Service to War Prisoners

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 6 (AP).—The International Red Cross committee today announced the first international agreement between belligerent and neighboring neutral states for the safe arrival of mail to war prisoners. The agreement provides that all mail, packages and money orders for prisoners may be sent to their destination without postage. Mail for the western part of the western front may pass through Holland and Belgium. Switzerland will be the eastern clearing house.

SMALL VILLAGE'S DAY AS CAPITAL OF POLAND TOLD

Officials' Cavaran Enters; Scattered by Bombs.

various legations and embassies slipped out of Krzemieniec quietly. Only the foreign office, and only part of that, was at Krzemieniec.

Where was the rest of the Polish government? "Dispersed," I was told, to various cities in east Poland, the names of which I could not be told.

Some officials, I am sure, were at Wiszniewiec [Vishnevets], about 20 miles closer to Rumania than we were, but most of the departments, I believe, were at Luck—which, probably even more than its radio station, tells why the center of that town was heavily bombed by the Germans.

Out of Touch with Army.

By Sept. 11 I was convinced the press bureau was out of communication with the army and that it knew little and was concealing that. I was sure I was the last American correspondent left in Poland. French and other journalists had gone into Rumania while the border still was open.

Arrow points to ancient Ukrainian village where Polish officials and foreign diplomats tarried a few days in their race to escape German invaders.

A new opportunity presented itself on Sept. 11 when there appeared in Krzemieniec a Polish official whom I had known in Danzig in June. He was the only Pole in contact with the press who sensed what American newspapers want- although he has never been in America. I will call him Eltar, which is far from being his name. He requested, when we finally parted company two weeks later, that I never take a chance that his name come to the attention of the Russian GPU [secret police]. He is now among them, probably their prisoner.

Destination Is Vilna.

Eltar's intention was to proceed to Vilna [Wilno] where he had sent his family for safety. He was going to run a branch of the government press bureau there, primarily for the benefit of the Baltic states. I requested that I might go along, having confidence in his ability to open access to news, get proper military permits, and exercise reasonable censorship to insure transmission of dispatches.

The expedition to Vilna, therefore, was decided upon. We would take a train over the back country line along the Russian border on which, in peacetime, expresses ran from Lwow to Vilna.

Then it happened. By "it" I mean the first series of mishaps which dogged us with such persistence for two weeks that they seemed like real slapstick comedy, except when they came perilously near to tragedy.

Bombs Begin to Fail.

On the morning of Sept. 12 I was breakfasting with the other refugees in the refectory in the basement of the lyceum, the walls of which were five feet thick and of solid stone. I was smacking my lips over a liquid made with probably 50 per cent real coffee, complacently congratulating myself on how steady my nerves had become after the bombings in Warsaw.

There was the characteristic roar of "one that has hit" and a crash of masonry. Then another came closer. Then there was a deafening thunderclap reechoing on those stone walls as one fell somewhere beside us. Then another, somewhat less loud. Four in all. It was the first bombing of Krzemieniec.

Tables were toppled over and dishes crashed as the wives and children of the refugee officials and the men themselves stampeded madly toward the doors. Women were screaming and men were yelling. But some came back in response to shouts telling them to get under the arches close to the walls. The basement really was the safest place in town. At least they gave protection from a plane's machine guns.

Job for Stretcher Bearers.

The bomber did not come back. He had appeared by surprise. No warning siren had sounded and not a single shot came from a defense gun up on the medieval ruins.

An hour later, when I was in the "foreign office," I saw bodies being taken out on stretchers from the adjoining Red Cross station. The number killed in the Krzemieniec bombing was officially said to be 16 and the number of injured 30. Investigation indicated that a figure of 14 killed probably was more accurate.

Walking along the Ultica Szeroka—the broad street—I saw the crater where the first bomb hit. This was in front of the Roman Catholic church and about 200 yards from the American embassy.

In front of the embassy, I met Biddle's daughter She was very pale but composed. I met the ambassador and Mrs. Biddle going into the foreign office. Mrs. Biddle obviously was distressed. It was the second time that the ambassador and his family had been uncomfortably close to death—the first time was the first Sunday of the war when a bomber dropped one beside his villa just outside Warsaw.

Precaution Too Late.

The behavior of the people of Krzemieniec was the same as I was to see later in all other places having their first bombing. Within 10 minutes every store in town was closed and shuttered. Their owners were in hiding or had fled. More than half the population started hiking up into the hills. Making matters worse, the siren blew at intervals when there were no planes in sight. At these times the few uniformed men in the place fired rifles at random, endangering the crowds.

The volunteer anti-air-raid defense organization of citizens wearing armbands suddenly appeared, ordering people around, adding to the confusion and panic.

When I was ready to pack my knapsack for my departure to Vilna the woman who had been washing my clothes told me, with tears, that she had dropped them in the woods while running after the latest alarm. That simplified an already simple packing problem by reducing me to two shirts and three pairs of socks.

100 Mile Ride Starts

Miss Betty Walker (left), 132 East 119th place, and Miss Charlotte Steiger, 2343 Irving Park road, watering horse before beginning of three day contest.

Forty-eight horseback riders, men and women, set out at 8:30 a. M. yesterday on the first lap of a 100 mile ride over Cook and Du Page county forest preserve trails. Last night they had reached the Oak Brook Polo club after a winding ride of 44 miles.

Riders and horses underwent a three month period of training for the jaunt. There will be one prize for horsemanship and several prizes for horses at the end of the trail. It is the second annual endurance ride, sponsored by the Town and Country Equestrian association and the Horse and Mule Association of America.

Tonight the riders expected to be at the Dunham Woods Riding camp after another trip of 40 miles.

WOUNDED FLYER SAYS FOUR NAZI PLANES DOWNED

Welshman Is Rescued by Algerian Soldier.

LONDON, Oct. 6 (AP).—The ministry of information tonight released an eyewitness account of an air battle over the Siegfried line in which the Germans lost four machines and a wounded royal air force gunner landed in no man's land and was carried to safety by a French Algerian soldier under fire.

The ministry said the dispatch came from a royal air force station "somewhere in France." It quoted an unidentified wounded Welsh air gunner who said the British were making a reconnaissance flight over the Siegfried line when three formations, each of six German Messerschmidts, attacked a "handful" of royal air force planes."

Plane Catches Fire.

The gunner was quoted as saying one German plane "attached itself to my machine" and a "terrific duel" began.

"I looked around and saw the observer in a crumpled heap in his seat. He had been shot through the head."

The gunner said his plane started to catch fire and "just as my clothing began to smoulder" he shot down a German plane which offered a "lovely target."

"If I hadn't been on fire, I could have shot down two more," he said.

Besides the one he hit, the gunner said, "my pals accounted for three." The gunner dazedly pulled the string of his parachute in struggling from the cockpit and was pulled out of the plane. He said he fainted after hitting the tail of the plane, then recovered to hear bullets whistling about him.

Algerian to the Rescue.

"I was above the German lines and they were shooting at me," he said.

The gunner landed unhit, however, in no man's land and saw German soldiers leave their trenches and approach him, he related. Then French Algerian soldiers appeared.

"One man [an Algerian] came running straight toward me as hard as he could," the gunner continued. "He picked me up, slung me over his shoulder and staggered with me into the woods."

FIRST CARDINAL OF WEST LIES IN SHRINE HE BUILT

City Pays Final Homage at Majestic Mass.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Chicago bade farewell yesterday to the city's first cardinal archbishop, the late Most Rev. George Mundelein, in religious and civic funeral ceremonies and a vast funeral cortège. These combined to present a scene seldom before equaled in solemnity and splendor in the city's history.

The news of the death of the first cardinal of the west, whose realized building dreams rivaled those of America's great captains of industry, struck the city and world with a shock early Monday. The prelate had died in his sleep in his home on the campus of St. Mary of the Lake seminary in Mundelein. He was 67 years old.

Thousands Pay Homage.

The response from the entire city with its many creeds and races was voiced by muffled drums and the fanfare of trumpets at half time as the public cortège moved from Holy Name cathedral into a silent Michigan avenue lined by thousands who realized that a notable builder had become a tradition deeply graven in a city's life.

So great was the stillness as the great procession passed that the very footsteps of the official bodies of escorts rang out, audible, distinct, and slow. Few of the estimated 750,000 persons viewing the procession spoke at all. The muffled drums and the majestic strains of Chopin's "Marche Funebre" and Beethoven's death march from "Saul," played in half time by the American Federation of Musicians' band, and the footsteps were the only sounds.

The religious service was a pontifical requiem mass at the cathedral celebrated by the Most Rev. Archbishop Amleto Giovanni Cicognani of Washington, D. C., papal delegate to the United States. Lacking the Nicene creed and the blessing for the congregation, the requiem is a mass for the repose of the dead. And for that repose probably 50,000 of the faithful within the great cathedral at State and Superior streets and pressing close to its walls were praying.

Mourners Crowd Streets.

One frail, aged woman in black knelt on the concrete walk beside Holy Name convent throughout the long, long service. One young girl fainted. One crippled woman and her flaming haired twin daughters had a luxurious seat; Postmaster General Farley, seeing the woman on crutches near the cathedral, offered her his car for the duration of the service.

The majestic liturgy and music of the requiem flowed from choir, altar, and sanctuary to the assembled thousands through a public address system. Roofs of nearby buildings were crowded. Even the top of Holy Name school, Wabash and Chicago avenues, was thronged with black robed sisters in the warm October sunshine when the procession of monks, priests, monsignori, diocesan officials, bishops, archbishops, and the apostolic delegate with his suite of attendants moved from school and rectory to the great State street doors of the cathedral. The procession, with its nearly 2,000 members, passed through the cathedral portal for 45 minutes.

Apostolic Delegate Enters.

There was a stir when the apostolic delegate, the ranking Catholic delegate, entered. He was received at the door by the Very Rev. Msgr. Joseph P. Morrison, rector of the cathedral. Then as the apostolic delegate moved down the main aisle he waved the incense thurible over the congregation and was escorted to a small archepiscopal throne in the sanctuary.

Archbishop Cicognani then was vested in black and gold eucharistic robes recently given to the cathedral by the late cardinal on his return from Rome when Pope Pius XII. was elected.

The cardinal's body was garbed in purple pontifical vestments. A white mitre was on his head, and purple shoes and stockings on his feet. Red gloves covered his hands, which clasped the crucifix.

Massed choirs composed of the priests' choir, the cardinal's cathedral choristers, the Mundelein seminary choir, singing under the direction of the Rev. Dr. Edwin Hoover, director of music of the archdiocese, offered the requiem music from Perosi, Palestrina, and Dr. Hoover.

Lights Play Over Scene.

A great floodlight at the rear of the cathedral played from time to time on the officers of the mass as the service proceeded. Its rays flooded over the open coffin on the face of the pontifically vested remains of the dead cardinal as the oration, or liturgical prayer in Latin for the soul of the prince of the church, was read by the celebrant:

"O God who didst raise thy servant, George, cardinal priest, to the dignity of a bishop in the apostolic priesthood, grant, we beseech thee, that he may be joined in fellowship with thine apostles for evermore; through Jesus Christ our Lord."

The Most Rev. John J. Cantwell, archbishop of Los Angeles, was the eulogist. He spoke at length regarding the great building enterprises of the late cardinal. These include the dedication of 205 new churches, the erection of the $20,000,000 St. Mary of the Lake seminary and of the Quigley seminary, the founding of the Lewis Holy Name Technical school at Lockport, the establishment of Lewis Memorial hospital, and the doubling of the parochial school system of the archdiocese.

His Citizenship Praised.

"A great Catholic must be a great American," Archbishop Cantwell declared. "Cardinal Mundelein was not a man to confine himself to the sacristy, but, exercising his franchise as a free American citizen, he played a man's part in public life. He would, if need be, lift his voice to denounce wrong and injustice, whether at home or in the chancelleries of Europe."

Final absolution was performed by Archbishop Cicognani and the four bishops consecrated by Cardinal Mundelein. These were Bishop Bernard J. Sheil, administrator of the archdiocese; Bishop William D. O'Brien, president of the Catholic Church Extension society; Bishop Edward F. Hoban of Rockford, and Bishop James Griffin of Springfield.

Principal officers of the solemn pontifical requiem, other than the apostolic delegate, were Msgr. Morrison, assistant priest; the Rev. J. J. Schiller of St. Raphael's church, deacon, and the Rev. John Sugrue of St. John Bosco church, subdeacon. Assistant deacons to the apostolic delegate were the Rev. John Collins of St. Sylvester church and the Rev. S. A. Derwinski of St. Anne church.

Active pallbearers were 12 priests from the last class ordained by Cardinal Mundelein at St. Mary of the Lake seminary on April 15. All citizens of Chicago were named honorary pallbearers.

The service was over at 12:43 p. m., but the sealed coffin of the cardinal, for which most mourners waited, did not emerge until 1:45 p. m. for the start of the great funeral procession.

Police Escort Cortege.

First came an escort of mounted state highway policemen. They were followed by mounted Chicago policemen. Then came a company of 154 officers and men from the Chicago fire department, all in white gloves. Behind them rode the Black Horse troop, flags furled and swords sheathed, followed by the Chicago Federation of Musicians' band, led by James C. Petrillo, in black top hat and morning coat.

The pallbearers came next. Mayor Kelly and Postmaster General Farley marched with United States Senators Scott W. Lucas and James Slattery. Behind them came Cook county's judges and members of the city council.

Catholic Orders March.

Fourth degree Knights of Columbus, swords drawn and flashing, wide sashes across their chests, marched next, followed by the Catholic Order of Foresters and members of various other Catholic societies, all bearing ecclesiastical banners of red embroidered in gold. A procession of Girl Scouts, a procession of Boy Scouts and sailors—and suddenly the hearse bearing the body of the first cardinal of the west was there and gone.

Bishop Sheil was in charge of the interment service in Immaculate Conception chapel at the seminary in Mundelein. The cardinal was interred in an hermetically sealed lead casket which inclosed the solid bronze coffin.

Sealed in by Marble.

A slab of black Belgian marble weighing a half a ton, chosen by the cardinal himself to inclose his body in the crypt, was sealed in place at 6 p. m. Its Latin inscription, translated, reads: "George William Cardinal Mundelein. Third archbishop of Chicago. Born July 2, 1872. Died October 2, 1939. I shall await God my Savior."

The crypt into which the body was sealed is six steps beneath the high altar in the chapel. The interment service was composed of the singing of canticles by the schola cantorum of the seminary and prayers by Bishop Sheil.

Final attestation of the prelate's death and the reading of a Latin parchment sealed in a bronze tube and placed in the coffin by the Rt. Rev. Msgr. George Kelly, chancellor of the archdiocese, closed the service.

Mayor Kelly and United States District Attorney William Campbell represented civic leadership at the burial. The cortège did not enter the seminary grounds on arrival, but moved on past the seminary into the village of Mundelein, and then returned to the seminary. The cardinal was the honorary fire chief of the village. He had contributed $10,000 for fire apparatus to the community.

STRIKE OF ENGINEERS TIES UP $50,000,000 HOUSING JOB IN N. Y.

New York, Oct. 6 [Special].—A sudden and unexplained strike of 100 operating engineers forced 700 other workers into idleness today at the Metropolitan Life Insurance company's $50,000,000 housing development in the East Bronx. Contractors in charge of the project said that all work would have to be suspended next week and that 4,600 union members would have to be laid off unless the engineers returned to their posts.

Efforts by the contractors, Starrett Brothers & Eken, to discover the reason for the walkout by local 14 of the International Union of Operating Engineers, an American Federation of Labor affiliate, were unavailing. Even calls to international officers of the union, attending the A. F. of L convention in Cincinnati, brought no information.

Officers of other building trades unions, worried about the effects of the strike on their men, were equally unsuccessful in attempts to learn the reasons for the engineers' action.

YOUTH—AND SALESMANSHIP

By CALEB

THE Dawn Man of pre-history traded a club for a javelin, a skin to sleep under for a stone to grind with—and that started it. Selling has been going on in the world ever since. With entire propriety, salesmanship can be called one of man's oldest vocations.

For young men, it is still the newest of opportunities: simply for the reason that selling bridges the gap, supplies the otherwise missing link, develops the right relation of service rendered and profit received, between those who want and those who make.

The old notion that selling was some overpowering mixture of personality, rapid-fire conversation, and hypnotic domination of the bewildered prospect, exploded itself long since. Such an unintelligent concept may have existed once—but not now. Today, the salesman who succeeds realizes that only those who logically want and reasonably need what he has to offer should become his customers. And that attitude not only remains fair to the customer: it calls equally for the salesman's careful gauging of conditions.

Young men no longer plunge into Selling: they prepare for it. Training constitutes the preparation. And the broader the candidate's background, the better. The more varied his contacts and experience, the better. The greater-than-usual his liking for people, his understanding of them, his familiarity with their problems, his incentives toward helpfulness—the better.

In developing the hundreds of young men and women who comprise our own sales organization, we emphasize that effective salesmanship is in large part a matter of training. Natural aptitude helps just as good health, good disposition, good habits, help. But business has made selling itself a business—and success in both rests on training.

As for the opportunities open in Scientific Selling, they are without limit. The surface of its possibilities is scarcely scratched. Television, aviation, agri-chemistry, radio, are but first hints of the new fields—while the old fields are sprouting fresh variations, unanticipated trends, sometimes overnight!

The subject, then, is one for youth who crave adventure, elbow-room for initiative, and fascinating commercial conquest, to consider more than casually. Scientific and inventive change alone is putting before salesmen in these whirling days more ways and means to fortune than ever were dreamt of in the "drummer's" philosophy of fifty—or even the "go-getter's" of ten—years ago.

ADVERTISE IN THE TRIBUNE

SENATOR CALLS FOR CANDOR BY EMBARGO FOES

Reveal Real Objectives, He Demands.

BY CHESLY MANLY.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Challenging the candor of President Roosevelt and all supporters of the administration's neutrality act repealer, Senator Sheridan Downey [D., Cal.] demanded in the senate today that they acknowledge their purpose to assist the British and French empires.

If the administration commits itself to the assistance of the empires by repealing the arms embargo and that assistance is not enough to save them from defeat by Germany, it will be committed to assist them with credit and, if necessary, with troops, Senator Downey contended.

Charges Lack of Candor.

"There was a lack of candor in the President's message to congress and there is a lack of candor in the arguments of all supporters of the administration's program," said Senator Downey.

"The reason for that is that their instincts are at war with their intellect. There is not a senator here who doesn't know that we are asked to repeal the arms embargo to assist the British and French empires. There is not a senator here who believes that we would be here considering this question if repeal would benefit Germany.

"Our chief executive declared in his message that in his opinion the best way to stay out of war was to begin shipping war materials to belligerents. That statement is so shocking to common sense and logic that I cannot take it seriously.

No Saturday Session.

"But our chief executive, while not supporting his proposition by any syllogism of reasoning called to his aid a historical illustration. He stated that in 1808 we levied an embargo against the shipment of goods from America to France and England and that four years later we were precipitated into war; therefore he takes it for granted that the embargo resulted in a war. That is one of the most fallacious syllogisms taught in logic; that is what the lawyers term a nonsequitur [doesn't follow]."

Senator Downey spoke extemporaneously for 2½ hours and did not conclude his speech, which will be resumed on Monday. Administration leaders, anxious to bring the neutrality debate to a conclusion as quickly as possible, were rebuffed when the senate voted against holding a Saturday session.

Senator Key Pittman [D., Nev.], chairman of the foreign relations committee and manager of the administration's cash and carry plan of selling munitions and other war supplies to belligerents, moved to recess until noon tomorrow. Senator Hiram Johnson [R., Cal.], one of the opposition leaders, offered a substitute motion to recess until noon Monday, and it carried by a voice vote.

Thomas Supports Repeal.

Senator Downey followed Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], an administration supporter on the foreign relations committee, who challenged the contention of Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho], that repeal of the arms embargo during the progress of the European war would constitute a violation of international law and an act of intervention in the war.

Thomas at first refused to answer this question by Senator Downey: "If selling munitions for cash should not prove sufficient to save the British and French empires, would the senator then be willing to vote for credit?"

Thomas at first said he could not answer the question because it involved the Johnson act, prohibiting credit to nations in default on their obligations to the United States. Finally he said he would vote against extension of credit.

Warns of War Boom.

Senator Downey contended that repeal of the arms embargo and opening the munitions markets of the United States to the belligerents would create a war boom.

"By the time the war trade has been carried on for a year on a large scale, the cash resources of the allied empires will be exhausted," he said. "At that point we will have millions of workers employed in war industries, with a wide distortion of prices, profits, and wages. We will then either have to extend credit to the allies to buy, or shut off the employment of millions of workers.

"Beyond doubt, the latter alternative would, with other existing conditions, precipitate a depression even greater than what occurred in 1929. Should we choose the other course and sell to Great Britain and France on credit, it is possible that we may find our own national debt increased from its present 50 billions to 75 or 100 billions of dollars. The resultant collapse of governmental solvency would be the supreme tragedy of all, with attempts at dictatorship, with disorder, and perhaps rebellion in the country.

"We need not fear that the disease of 'dictatoritis' will afflict us by germs spread from European soil. Such an event is literally impossible, as 90 per cent of our people today dislike, despise, and fear both Hitler and Stalin and are firmly committed to a free government.

Discusses Air Resources.

"Nor is there any likelihood of an attack against the western hemisphere, certainly none that could be successful. All the shipping in all the world could not land on American soil in any one month 300,000 soldiers with their equipment and supplies. If it were attempted to land such an army, in one day it could be destroyed, first by our navy; failing that, by our coast artillery; failing that, by our airplane fleet which is already reaching a high point of efficiency; and failing that, by our army.

"In this connection, it is relevant to recall that the combined carriers of Britain, France, Russia, Japan, Italy, and Germany could bring into action only 489 planes against us, while we would have the service of the splendid 5,500 plane force we are now building, or an armada of 25,000 or 50,000 planes which we could so easily produce—and which, according to Capt. Rickenbacker and others, we would be wise to build.

Thomas Answers Borah.

"In 18 months in the great war we actually mobilized 4,000,000 soldiers and transported over 2,000,000 of them to Europe, though the greatest number we were able to land in any one month with the shipping of all the world at our disposal was 300,000. I cannot conceive that any European or Asiatic dictator would embark upon an insane project to invade the western hemisphere when this nation, without any help from any other country, would be able to raise, train, and equip and maintain an army of 5,000,000 soldiers within a comparatively short period.

"We in the United States have a great population, great wealth, fighting ability, and resources. We are in the safest position of any people within the recorded memory of man. Only hysteria, amounting almost to cowardice, can make us fear a remote and almost impossible aggression from across the distant seas."

Senator Thomas asserted that Senator Borah had made a most serious charge in stating that repeal of the arms embargo would constitute an affirmative act of intervention in the European war.

Defends Proposed Repeal.

"If his contention is assumed," Thomas said, "and if it should be proved true, then I would be hesitant in proceeding without making explanations to the world. But I repeat I cannot see how an act which affects only the citizens of the United States can ever be assumed to be an act of intervention.

"When a nation intervenes it moves against another not against itself. In international relations a nation cannot be charged with intervention when the action which is taken operates against its own people, when the restraint is put upon its own citizens. While it is true that the embargo on arms will be lifted, still no American citizen may ship arms to a belligerent and still no American boat may carry arms to a belligerent.

"The effect of the whole law must be taken into consideration not just the effect of a single section. How can a nation become an intervenor by restraining itself? How can a nation become an intervenor by insisting that its citizens do not use the rights and privileges which other netural nations enjoy? How, in short, could America become an intervenor by relying on the international law accepted universally for neutral nations and even that restricted and limited by the proposed restrictions of this projected domestic law? How can we become an intervenor without violating international law in the least degree?

May Take Vote Monday.

"The President has asked that we consider international law as at least being sufficient. If this resolution recognized the paramount position of international law and in no way breaches it, it would be paradoxical to say that by applying we would be intervening. In short, how can a law abiding neutral become a participant or intervenor without any breach whatever?"

Whether the senate will vote Monday on the motion of Senator Charles W. Tobey [R., N. H.] to recommit the administration bill for the purpose of separating it into two parts was left in doubt by Vice President John N. Garner's ruling today.

By agreement the vote was postponed until Monday, but Garner upheld the contention of Senator Charles L. McNary [R., Ore.], the minority leader, that the motion does not come up automatically. It must be called up.

Senator Tobey wants to separate the arms embargo repealer from the provisions of the bill forbidding American ships to carry materials to belligerents or entering war zones to be proclaimed by the President. Action on these provisions, he contends, should not be delayed pending a final vote on the arms embargo, lest American ships be sunk by German submarines or the American flag be misused by British merchantmen.

The vote on the Tobey motion will not be a test of strength between the contending forces, since some of the supporters of the arms embargo are opposed to the procedure Tobey favors. Administration supporters will oppose it in the belief that adoption of cash and carry separately would doom repeal of the arms embargo.

Wheeler Joins Fight on Repeal.

Senator Burton K. Wheeler [D., Mont.] arrived today and threw himself into the neutrality battle. He asserted that the sentiment of the west is almost unanimously against the administration neutrality repealer as a step which would get us into the European war eventually.

The accession of Wheeler, one of the most forceful and influential members of the senate and a formidable legislative strategist, enormously strengthened the cause of those who are fighting President Roosevelt's undertaking to wipe out the existing embargo on the export of arms, ammunition, and implements of war to belligerent nations. Wheeler was the leader of the successful battle against the President's scheme to pack the Supreme court.

The Montana senator immediately joined the conferences of the noninterventionists who had met earlier in the day and agreed to accept the administration bill with the exception of the arms embargo repealer. That is, the existing embargo would remain law and in place of the remainder of the existing neutrality act there would be enacted the more stringent regulation of trade with belligerents embodied in the cash and carry sections of the pending administration bill.

Kills Credit Provision.

In one particular those provisions of the pending bill would be made even more stringent under the terms the noninterventionists agreed to offer the administration. Instead of allowing 90 day credit on purchases of American products by belligerents the law would require cash on the barrel head.

"We are still willing as has been our position from the beginning," said Senator William E. Borah [R., Idaho] after the meeting, "to accept the administration bill if the administration will leave in the law the embargo on arms, ammunition, and implements of war and provide for cash instead of credit on other commodities. But we will not yield to the repeal of the arms embargo and it is not necessary if neutrality is the sole objective."

Senator Wheeler said he had sounded public sentiment extensively in the east as well as the west.

"Today," he said, "that sentiment in the west is almost unanimously that they not only don't want to get in, but they don't want to take any step that might lead us in the direction of the European war. That is true of all classes of people—bankers, farmers, business men, and laborers. I was in Massachusetts and I found the same sentiment there.

Sympathies with Empires.

"My sympathies are entirely with the allies, but my judgment tells me it would be a mistake to repeal the embargo at this time. It isn't an act of neutrality. If it is done it should step that might lead us in the direcbe done with the idea of helping England and France.

"I have no quarrel with that sentiment but if our sentiments can cause us to change the law at this time to help England and France, in 6 months or a year if they need further help it will cause us to extend unlimited credit. And won't the same sentiment cause the senate and congress to go still further to take sides and get in with England and France?

"This is not our war. I am going to vote against repealing the embargo because I think it's a step toward getting this country into war. I want to see the embargo remain on munitions and a strict cash and carry on other commodities. I am against the 90 day credit clause."

Two more senators, W. Warren Barbour [R., N. J.], and Josiah W. Bailey [D., N. C.], came out during the day for the repealer, though their accession to the administration forces was not exactly a surprise.

Barbour said he favors the repealer because it would accelerate our national defense, keep Americans and American ships out of war, require cash for war purchases and afford equal access by belligerents to our markets.

Bailey said the repealer is intended not so much to aid England and France as to deny assistance to Hitler who in his opinion represents all that is immoral in international relationships. But he would not have America get into the war.

BUSINESS-CIVIC TEAM URGED FOR GREATER CHICAGO

Program Outlined by New A. of C. Chief.

A comprehensive program in which business interests, civic organizations, and the city government will work together in forwarding the Greater Chicago Plan was recommended yesterday by Leverett S. Lyon, new chief executive officer of the Chicago Association of Commerce.

E. P. Querl.

Lyon, who is resigning as vice president of the Brookings institution in Washington to take over his duties here on Oct. 20, outlined his views at a meeting attended by the directors of the association and other business leaders.

"To keep a city ahead government and civic bodies must coöperate with business men," he said. "Chicago is unique in that it has made a start toward such a combination. The commercial interests are behind the work of civic organizations.

Favorable Conditions Needed.

"We all want industrial expansion. To get it we must have conditions favorable for industry, including reasonable taxes, a good labor situation, and adequate plant facilities. Individual groups and local government can all help."

Lyon, whose work will be backed by a fund of nearly $500,000 raised by business houses to support the Association of Commerce program, said that there were no cure-alls for the problems of blighted areas.

"These areas," he said, "have been created, to some extent, by the movement of industry itself. Perhaps we can help by planning things so industries will not start in the wrong locations. Ultimately the city government must take a more important part in such planning."

Los Angeles Leader Hired.

Oscar G. Mayer, president of the association, announced that E. P. Querl of Los Angeles had been chosen to head the Greater Chicago Plan's industrial division. His job will be to make contacts with large business concerns that may establish branches, warehouses, or sales offices in the city.

Querl has been given much credit for persuading airplane companies to start plants in Los Angeles, now the aviation manufacturing center of the country. They took pay rolls running into the millions annually to southern California. Querl has been industrial commissioner for the Los Angeles Chamber of Commerce for 12 years.

ROCKFORD LINEMAN ELECTROCUTED.

Rockford, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special].—C. Harry Thor, 554 Barry road, Rockford, a lineman for the L. E. Myers company of Chicago, was killed this morning when his head short-circuited a 6,900 volt power line 6 miles northwest of the city. He was mounting a pole to attach a wire when the accident occurred.

Owner Demands a $500 Tonic for Horse with a Bald Spot

After other remedies failed, Lyle Van Patter went to court yesterday about the bald spot on Commoner, an otherwise handsome chestnut gelding which is one of the saddle horses at Van Patter's Flying V. F. riding academy, 2434 Berwyn avenue.

Commoner's bald spot measures six inches square and is most clearly visible from the north, when Commoner is going south. Despite egg shampoos, snake oil treatments, and vigorous massage no hair will sprout on the area. The horse was struck there by an automobile last May 26.

Asks $500 Damages.

Van Patter filed suit asking $500 damages from the auto driver, Mrs. Bernice McCarthy, 9515 Harding avenue, Niles Center. But since yesterday's hearing before Justice of the Peace James G. Barber in Evanston, Van Patter wonders if it is all worth while.

Van Patter explained to the court how Commoner's blemish reduces his saddle appeal. The horse himself feels his misfortune keenly, and often refuses a second helping of oats, because he's worried, Van Patter said. Van Patter started to tell about the accident when Attorney W. J. McFarland, representing Mrs. McCarthy, leaped to his feet.

"Was this animal wearing a tail light or reflector?" he thundered. "Ah ha, I thought not!"

"I object," snapped Van Patter's attorney, Harold W. Huff. "Are you trying to make a joke of this case?"

Demands Tail Lights.

"Not at all," said McFarland. "This horse was a passenger vehicle. He was carrying a passenger, wasn't he? Then he must be equipped with a tail light or safety reflector!"

It so happens that Judge Barber is one of the founders of the Evanston Safety council, a leading proponent of trafic safety. Another judge might have been amused, but Barber wasn't.

"H-m-m," he said, stroking his chin. "I'd like to hear some law on that. Case continued to next Tuesday."

Last night Van Patter was out in the stable, surveying a dozen sleek beasts. "I can get reflectors for two bits," he was heard to mumble. "But how'll I stick 'em on? What—" A neigh interrupted him. Or maybe a horse laughed.

ASKS ARGENTINA TO OUST FORMER GERMAN ENVOY

BUENOS AIRES, Argentina, Oct. 6 (AP)—Efforts were started in federal court today to expel Count Karl von Luxburg, whose phrase, "spurlos versenkt" [sunk without a trace], became a term of reproach against Germany during the world war.

Count von Luxburg, then German ambassador to Argentina, was handed his passport in 1917 when the allies intercepted a message to his government advising that Argentine ships either be spared in the submarine campaign or sunk without a trace. This suggestion was blamed for increasing enmity toward Germany in neutral countries.

For some years Von Luxburg has been living in a Buenos Aires suburb. Upon his return this week from a visit to Germany, the liberal press opened a campaign against him. A citizen named Felipe Becher filed a formal request for his banishment on the ground that the 1917 order against him never had been revoked.

GEORGE WASHINGTON SAID:

"Excessive partiality for one foreign nation and excessive dislike of another cause those whom they actuate to see danger only on one side, and serve to veil and even second the arts of influence on the other. Real patriots who may resist the intrigues of the favorite are liable to become suspected and odious, while its tools and dupes usurp the applause and confidence of the people to surrender their interests."—From the Farewell Address.

EMERGENCY POWERS.

A resolution of the senate requested Attorney General Murphy to state the powers which the President may exercise in a time of national emergency or in war. Mr. Murphy replied with a list of references to the statutes. He added that other powers exist by direct constitutional grant, and let it go at that. It was not appropriate for him, he said, to act as legal adviser to the legislative branch of government, and accordingly he could not venture to interpret the statutes or the constitution to congress.

There is an ominous quality about this communication. As Mr. Murphy thinks that it would be improper for him to attempt to define the powers of dictatorship which he claims for the Presidency, it is obviously the duty of congress to look into the matter. Mr. Roosevelt has already proclaimed a "limited emergency," though in what sense it is limited he has not said. On the basis of this proclamation he has ordered the size of the army, navy, and marine corps increased. He has also declared, among other things, that the territorial waters of the United States extend far beyond the limits heretofore accepted. What else he may undertake to do without consulting congress cannot be forecast because he has failed to state the precise nature of the emergency which he believes to exist and Mr. Murphy has declined to discuss the question in its broader aspects.

If our form of government is to be preserved we can't afford to have any laws on the books which would permit an ambitious President to take advantage of a fancied emergency to impose a dictatorship. Congress should not only reexamine the statutes which Mr. Murphy has listed; it should do so at once.

Fortunately congress, now in special session, is in a position to do so. When the debate on the neutrality law is concluded the emergency laws should be taken up, one by one, and subjected to the closest scrutiny. All the dangerous delegations of power should be repealed. Any vague language which would permit the declaration of an emergency when none exists should be clarified. There is little danger that the country will suffer from lack of extraordinary powers in the executive; if a real emergency arose for which no provision had been made congress could confer the necessary powers within a few hours and all our history shows that congress would so act. The danger lies in the other direction.

Our country today is the only great power in the world which is not ruled dictatorially. The trend is strong against liberty and toward totalitarianism. The existence in our statutes of loosely drawn grants of power to the executive are a menace to the liberties of the American people, a menace which is aggravated by the troubled state of the world. In times like these it is not difficult to create the appearance of an emergency in the United States though none in fact exists.

LETTER WRITING WEEK.

Jim Farley has been celebrating this as National Letter Writing week and every last postmaster in the land appears determined to go through with it. Even Postmaster Ernest J. Kruetgen, a kindly gentleman who at Christmas time sees that all letters addressed to Santa Claus are delivered, urges us all to write our friends. "Write to your favorite movie or radio star," Mr. Kruetgen goes on, "always remembering a letter needs no excuse."

It's a scheme, of course, to wipe out the postoffice deficit which has been running about $90,000,000 a year, but what a satanic means to such an end. Bill collectors, chain letter writers, and vacationing post card senders will greet National Letter Writing week with ghoulish glee, but how about the people who are going to get the letters?

Common decency requires replies within the next few months. Consider, then, the prospect when this nefarious letter writing week has ended. The burden will be staggering beyond endurance. Everybody will yield to his natural inclination to refrain from writing letters at all. That will be the end of the postoffice department, and Jim Farley, too.

The obvious solution is, of course, the one overlooked. If the franking privileges of congressmen and government bureaus were rescinded it would save the postoffice department at least $33,713,000 a year. The public, relieved from perusing this tedious mail, would start writing letters in sheer relief and, presto, the deficit would vanish.

HITLER'S TERMS.

Herr Hitler has stated what he regards as a basis for the termination of hostilities in Europe. It is not for us in America to say whether the allies should accept the offer, submit counterproposals, or reject it out of hand. It is Europe's war, not ours. Much as we desire the establishment of peace on a firm foundation, we cannot with reason or propriety advise the allies on the course they should adopt. That is their business, not America's.

It is not improper, however, to examine the proposals in an attempt to understand their implications. Herr Hitler says the allies must recognize the conquest of Poland and leave the question of the future of Polish territory to Germany and Russia to settle between themselves. He may set up one or more puppet states in the conquered territory, but they are to lie within the German economic and political orbit and presumably will be organized after the pattern of Slovakia, Moravia, and Bohemia. Likewise, England and France are to give recognition to Germany's economic leadership in southeastern Europe, and perhaps in the Scandinavian countries as well.

If the allies wish to do so, they can find plenty of reasons for rejecting the terms out of hand. They can say that Hitler's latest pledge to recognize the political independence of the states adjoining Germany cannot be trusted. He has made similar pledges in the past, notably his promise to call it a day after the cession of the Sudetenland, only to break them at the first opportunity.

To this the answer might be that if the allies grant Hitler the hegemony of central and southeastern Europe, which he is demanding, they can have no reason to fear further aggressions because he will have everything he wants now or Germany will ever want. Against this, however, the text of "Mein Kampf" can be cited, together with the evidence of Nazi activities in Holland, Belgium, Switzerland, and other countries.

Whatever the validity of these arguments and counterarguments may be, the statesmen of England and France will have to ask themselves whether they can afford to let Germany dominate central Europe and organize it economically and politically. They will have to weigh against the tremendous cost of prosecuting the war, the immediate humiliation of abandoning the struggle, and the ultimate cost of permitting the existence on the continent of a Germany which in most essential respects will be more powerful than France was at the height of Napoleon's power.

Further than that, they will have to reckon the cost to them of permitting the unhampered growth of Hitlerian economic policies in Europe. Hitler's economy is directed at strengthening the military power of the state at the expense of individual liberty of economic action. If Hitler gets a free hand in the Balkans they will have to do business with him on his terms of barter, and important markets for trade and investment will be closed to England, France, and the other so-called capitalist countries.

It is not easy to calculate what this loss of business, employment, and profits would cost the allies. One of the difficulties in attempting to set up the account is uncertainty as to the duration which such an arrangement might have. What Hitler got today he might lose tomorrow through the operation of economic law; his economic empire might collapse of its own weight. If this may be true of German economic hegemony, it also may be true of German political hegemony. The history of Europe has often been read as a record of successive failures to enforce subjection on peoples eager for independence.

The allies have much to lose by continuing the war and much to lose by accepting a Hitlerian peace. The decision is theirs to make. It is scarcely necessary to add that the choice is one of the most difficult and one of the most momentous ever faced by responsible statesmen.

UNRECOGNIZED CONQUEST.

Our state department has announced that it does not recognize the partition of Poland between Germany and Russia. Americans will be disposed to applaud this gesture but can hardly be unmindful of the fact that this country bears some share of the responsibility for what has happened. Poland has been dismembered through the joint action of Germany and Russia. Mr. Roosevelt's deeds of kindness to the soviet government, beginning with recognition, contributed to the strengthening of Stalin's position at home and abroad. There could have been no partition save for Russia, and Russia might have been in no position to attack Poland save for Mr. Roosevelt.

Editorial of the Day

FREUD, REBEL THINKER.

[Des Moines Register.]

Sigmund Freud, whose theories were revolutionary and novel, is dead. But his theories have influenced so many fields of modern thought that already he had taken a place beside the classic thinkers of our age.

In some respects he was unquestionably a great doctor. Psychiatrists will employ his discoveries. They will correct them, refine them, add to them, just as Freud did himself. Psychology and medicine will advance a little, boosted by the stature of Freud's intellect and understanding.

His theory that conscious behavior rests upon an irrational instinctual basis was a technical one which he worked out in the clinic, the ward, and the home. Only trained specialists practicing psychopatherapy are qualified to agree or disagree with him. But it is not for his technical theory that Sigmund Freud is known so widely today.

Like Marx and Darwin, he put forth an idea which suggested a synthesis of many different ideas in a larger scheme. Freud's mark is upon fiction, poetry, biography, history, language. Some of this influence is transitory; some no doubt is unhappy. But that is neither the fault nor the problem of Sigmund Freud.

He met violent and unscrupulous opposition. But his ideas have taken root because they are suggestive of other ideas.

His foes have cried that he glorified blind passion, that he sullied the nature of man, that he forgot the society in the individual. This is unfair. He argued that man's high purpose is to understand and master himself. His creed was that man must face facts, must follow the truth no matter where it leads.

And he died in a nation not his own. The governors of his beloved Austria had burned his books and called them "Jewish pornography." He died at 83 in a world being destroyed by the very irrational drives which he sought to analyze.

A LINE O' TYPE OR TWO

How to the Line let the quips fall where they may. Reg. U.S. Pat. Office

BIRTH OF A CRITIC.

The first piece of theatrical criticism to be published in Chicago appeared in the Democrat of Wednesday, June 11, 1834. It was an unsigned paragraph on the editorial page which told the world:

We were truly delighted last evening with the performance of Mr. Kenworthy. He is certainly an accomplished ventriloquist, and entitled to the support of those who feel interested in a display of nature's gifts. In his "Brombach family" he represents seven perfectly distinct characters, and carries them all through to admiration. He performs many other very interesting feats. It will be seen by reference to his notice in another column that he may be found for the last time at "Brombach's hall" this evening. This opportunity will not be lost by those who have an interest in exhibitions of this kind.

Eight days later a certain C. Blisse gave a concert; and soon a little circus arrived. Amusements were looking up in the town of nearly 3,000 inhabitants. On June 18, 1835, the first "fair" was held under the auspices of the ladies of the Protestant Episcopal church.

The influence of Shakespeare was in the air, although his plays had not yet been acted here. On Feb. 10, 1836, the Chicago Democrat announced that two towns had been laid out thirty miles to the southwest under the names of Romeo and Juliet. The village of Romeo still exists, but Juliet has grown up into Joliet.

FOR CARDINAL MUNDELEIN.

Well done, thou faithful servant of the Lord.
The homeless have been housed, the hungry fed.
By selfless zeal, in rich abundance poured,
The sick are healed, the aged comforted.
In myriad classrooms students have been taught
That faith and science blend in unity.
Across the skyline have been nobly wrought
New spires to lift the cross of Christ on high.

In days of darkest turmoil and despair
Thy steadfast courage was thy peoples' might.
Though lesser men presumed to doubt God's care,
Thy ardent faith has been a quenchless light.
By untold multitudes revered and blest,
Cast down thy burden borne with glory. Rest.

Library of the City of Chicago.

Regarding your article, "Come Into the Library" [Oct. 3]:

Mr. L. E. Dicke, 808 Washington street, Evanston, has an immense collection of "works dealing with the history of this region before and after the founding of the city. Source books, pamphlets, maps, manuscripts, diaries, scrapbooks, prints, and photographs bearing upon said history. Works by writers of Chicago residence or background, and also novels of Chicago atmosphere, etc, relating upon early Chicago history." He has been assembling it for many years.

If donors appear ready and willing to act upon your suggestion, a splendid nucleus for a library could be made with the Dicke collection.

Wishing your idea the great success that it deserves. Mrs. J. W. Young.

I think I have a plan which is simpler and more direct than yours. It would be to create a "department of research in early Chicago history" in one of our already existing institutions. One of its first efforts should be the proper and exhaustive indexing of material already collected but not readily available. My greatest difficulty has been in tracing to its source much of the printed matter, and the present indices of all publications concerning Chicago are quite inadequate.

POET IN THE KITCHEN.

The pattern of hours is easy to follow:
now abed, now abroad, now entertaining;
but having essayed the swift dart of a swallow and having danced nude on the lawn when it's raining life seems prosaic when the dial says "Cook!"
and the dog eyes his dish and the infant is cranky.
Then MAN comes back home, hangs his coat on a hook, sinks into a chair and dries off with his hanky.

O, life is delightful because of our work;
if the day were all pleasure then what could we shirk?

Helene Sees the Northern Lights.

On Tuesday night, Oct. 3, the sky was limned with a magic radiance. Overhead a waning moon swung along a path so bright that the very stars faded and slept. But to the north a brighter glow appeared, flickering in ice green sheets, pointing long fingers of light half way across the sky. For a moment it would burn fiercely, like some strange, mistaken sunrise, then fade until only the edge of the cloud bank showed any color. Suddenly up would spring a ray, like some giant beacon, then another and another, until the whole north sky was set with spokes of fire. Yet again it shifted, and a shimmering green curtain spread over rays and clouds and stars, blotting out all else with its beauty. All the mystery and drama and magic of the Aurora Borealis danced across the stage of the northern skies. Helene.

THE DIABETIC CHILD.

THOUSANDS of our children—early in life—will develop diabetes. Because of modern weapons the attack upon the malady will be successful and the majority of these patients will survive. But detailed instruction as to food, exercise, sleep, and the injection of insulin is essential.

What are some of the pitfalls? Unconsciousness—or what is termed diabetic coma—need no longer be considered fatal. Numerous authorities have pointed out that many of these little ones brought to a hospital "dead to the world" recover completely within a few days. Of course, insulin is demanded and in proper dosage. So is fluid, but not too much, because we do not wish to overtax the heart. The simplest procedure is to insert a needle under the skin and allow the saline solution to flow slowly. It is absorbed easily. As a rule the stomach is washed and starchy food is allowed, but only up to the amount which can be taken care of. As we can well understand, the so-called accidents occasioned by the disease are more likely to occur in childhood because the system is more delicately balanced.

In the management of the diabetic child we must not forget that other illnesses may prove hazardous. For example, the seeds of pulmonary tuberculosis are rife, and we must throw about these youngsters every possible safeguard. For the same reason we must protect against colds, as every strain placed upon the reserve forces intensifies the original ailment.

Furthermore, we must fight not only for daily strength but for growth as well. With careful adjustment these tots will mature physically and mentally just like their playmates. Priscilla White reported one series of subjects in which 60 per cent of the girls, when they reached 18 years of age, were found to be taller than their mothers, and 40 per cent of the boys were more robust than their fathers. Incidentally, all had excellent teeth and their mental acumen was well above average. Of 621 treated continuously for a long time, only three were substandard in intelligence.

Studies of these youngsters has demonstrated the importance of heredity. In other words, in about 40 per cent diabetes will be recorded in parents, grandparents, brothers, or sisters. When two diabetics marry, all the progeny may suffer. If only one parent is afflicted and the other possesses an hereditary taint, half the children may manifest the trouble. Although neither partner exhibits the complaint, one-fourth of the sons and daughters may be affected if the parents' forbears had the disease.

On the more favorable side a good deal of encouragement is offered in instances in which a diabetic weds a nondiabetic in whose ancestral stock no case ever has appeared. In such circumstances all the offspring should be spared. In other words, the difficulty will die out in a given family if this rule is followed: Walk to the altar only with one who is free from diabetes. Young people of marriageable age, therefore, are advised strongly to select mates who are healthy and whose ancestors have equally clear histories. Failure to adhere to this plan is bound to perpetuate the disorder in a certain percentage of descendants.

We must not forget that obesity and disease of the liver and bile tract may precipitate the disturbance. With all our desire not to undernourish the rising generation, every precaution must be taken not to overfeed them. This is especially true when they begin to "shoot up." Exercise burns up more starch and the dose of insulin required will depend upon activity. The busy lad uses more starchy food; the sitter, far less.

A great change has come about in our control of the condition, particularly among children, who, only a few years ago, were looked upon as hopeless invalids. Today they can romp, play, and grow up just as though they were not handicapped. Naturally, great skill on the part of the directing physician is called for.

MORE ON SLEEPYHEADS.

E. P. T. writes: You recently printed an inquiry from a woman whose friend always falls asleep at the movies. May I supplement your answer to this young woman?

Any one with the fixed habit of going to sleep at a certain hour every night finds it difficult to stay up later. A badly ventilated hall and inability to change the position make it almost impossible to stay awake. I remember attending a concert when the world's greatest singer was on the program. Since no seats were available we had to stand. When the hour came at which I usually retire I fell asleep standing up! Since then I have found that a cup of strong black coffee or tea will help.

REPLY.

It certainly will. The caffeine thus supplied will drive away drowsiness.

X-RAY ADVISED.

M. E. S. writes: Two years ago my husband dislocated the sacroiliac joint and he was in a cast for two months. He fell recently and now finds it impossible to straighten up after being in a sitting position. How can this condition be corrected?

REPLY.

A careful physical examination and an X-ray are advised. There is a possibility that his present trouble is a result of some condition other than injury. Arthritis, lumbago, etc., must be considered.

BACKACHE.

T. G. writes: What causes backache during menstruation?

REPLY.

During this period there is marked congestion of the pelvic organs. This condition, plus increased irritability and mental reactions, may account for the symptoms.

FROM ACROSS THE SEA

BY HUGH CURRAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

DUBLIN.—Although Ireland is far from the sound of the guns in Europe, the war has numerous repercussions here. Eamon de Valera's government has been watching activities of the advanced Republicans, particularly since the outbreak of hostilities when the bombing campaign in England halted. Most of the activists engaged on this work got back to Ireland before movements across the Irish sea were restricted and the government apparently fears operations of another kind are contemplated here.

This is believed the reason for a police drive on prominent persons in the movement. Probably 50 were arrested. Simultaneously, the government issued a statement in which they indicated the authorities were satisfied that "there is in the possession of unauthorized persons in this country a quantity of arms and explosives, and of other means, intended for purposes forbidden by law and dangerous to the state." Accordingly, the minister of justice had, under the offenses against the state act, ordered the detention of several persons whose activities appeared prejudicial to the state's security.

Legislation cited by the official statement gives the minister power to detain such persons indefinitely, but it provides an opportunity for any one who thinks he is detained unjustly to apply to a special tribunal. If able to prove he is not associated with any illegal organization he may be released at once. Just what information the government had secured as to intentions of the banned organization is not known. Rumors spoke of possible attacks on the north, as well as a possible attempt at a coup d'état in the south. Steps have been taken to see that any insurrectionary movement will immediately be crushed. The initial steps taken to restrain local leaders have been widely approved.

The policy of the Irish government to remain neutral in the European conflict will, admittedly, be difficult to preserve. The country's trade with Britain, the fact that part of the island is a belligerent, and more particularly the circumstance that many Irishmen are serving with the British army in France, all stress the danger of violation of neutrality. A curious fact is that the German government, while previously agreeing to respect Ireland's neutrality, has had many of its nationals engaged in important occupations here sent home to Germany.

Another dangerous factor is that the German submarine activity against shipping is mainly carried out off the south coast of Ireland. Most of the survivors of sunken ships have come ashore at Irish ports.

There is at present no Irish minister at Berlin. Some weeks before the outbreak of war Charles Bewley, the minister there, was recalled.

So far as food supplies and other essential commodities are concerned, Ireland is in a comparatively comfortable position. Nevertheless, restrictions are being imposed so existing supplies will be equally distributed. There must be no hoarding. Gasoline is being rationed. Because of this, the railways, hard hit in recent times, will come into their own again. Horses, too, are appearing in greater numbers. Even the old Irish jaunting car which had almost disappeared is returning to use.

Farmers are being urged to produce more food and arrangements are being made to guarantee better prices for 1940 crops. More wheat, oats, barley, and rye are to be raised in view of the general belief that the war will extend over several years.

FACTS NOT CLEAR.

Chicago, Sept. 27 [Legal Friend of the People].—Through the terms of a will a house was left to party A [administratrix]. Said will stated that party A, upon sale of property, was to give $500 to party B. Will was read, and nothing further was heard other than party A stated home was lost and that no money was received from it.

1. Shouldn't party B have received a more definite court or lawyer's notice?
2. If A received money for their signature in order to give clear title to the property, can any portion of this money received be collected by party B?
3. Can you tell me how I can investigate this case?
4. B is not in a position to employ a lawyer.
5. Can I in any way see will or find out exact wording of same? J. A.

1. The facts that you state are not intelligible to us. If you have no further facts, the first step would be to ascertain what has happened. Presumably you could find something from the court records and from the recorder's office.
2. You state that the will so provides. We see no reason to disagree with you.
3. See foregoing answers. If you do not feel able to look up the facts, you should employ an attorney for this purpose.
4. It might be possible to employ an attorney on a contingent fee.
5. Yes, at the office of the clerk of the court. TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

UNEMPLOYMENT COMPENSATION.

Chicago, Sept. 26 [Legal Friend of the People].—Could you give me some information regarding the unemployment insurance? My boss just started to pay the insurance last July. Am I entitled to insurance when I am laid off? I am a painter and decorator. Some one told me that I am not entitled to it this year because he did not pay it last year. Is that true? If not, when will I be able to get it? C. R.

The Illinois Unemployment Compensation act [as amended in 1939] defines "base period" as follows: "Base Period" means the 12 consecutive month period ending Dec. 31, immediately preceding the first day of a benefit year [Sec. 2 (i)].

Section 4 [b] states that "An individual's 'weekly benefit amount' shall be an amount equal to 5 per centum of his total wages for insured work during that quarter of his base period in which such total wages were highest, except that if such amount is more than sixteen [$16.00] dollars, the weekly benefit amount shall be deemed to be sixteen [$16.00] dollars, or if less than seven [$7.00] dollars, shall be deemed to be seven [$7.00] dollars."

Section 4 [c] fixes a maximum per year of "whichever is the lesser of sixteen times his weekly benefit amount or one-fourth of the wages earned by him for insured work during his base period." In both cases odd cents are increased to make even dollars.

The act applies only to employers of eight or more through 1939, or of six or more in 1940 and thereafter [Sec. 2 (e)].

Excepted occupations are similar to the lists in the federal social security act. There is a waiting period of two weeks before benefit payments begin [Sec. 6 (d)].

The act is administered by the State Department of Labor, 222 W. North Bank drive. There are 13 local and suburban offices in the Chicago area.

BRITAIN IN OUR HEMISPHERE.

Glencoe, Ill., Oct. 4.—I have been studying the map and reflecting on our newly proclaimed guardianship of the western hemisphere and adjacent waters 300 or more miles out from shore. Incidentally I find the British empire is a large land owner in these parts. British possessions in our area—North, South, and Central America and the islands nearby, include:

British Guiana	Jamaica
British Honduras	Grenada
Bermuda	Labrador
Barbados	Leeward Isles
Bahamas	Newfoundland
Canada	St. Vincent
Falkland Isles	St. Lucia
Georgia Isl. [S. A.]	Trinidad

In all, our good old sister democracy has 16 nice pieces of British property in these parts. The list surprises me. Excepting Canada, Newfoundland, and Labrador, they are all in our recently defined area. BARB.

A WORD TO SENATOR HERRING.

Neoga, Ill., Oct. 3.—I have listened to Senator Herring of Iowa speaking in favor of repeal of the embargo act. His arguments were wonderful, indeed, and surely Iowans will feel honored by being given privileges which the repeal will give them. For instance, he told us that when the embargo act was repealed America could sell arms and munitions to all comers and we could contribute to the Red Cross. Surely this is wonderful—American munition makers amass millions of dollars selling munitions to kill and wound, and I can help pay the bill for nursing. "Ain't that sumpin?"

He also announced the receipt of thousands of letters all demanding neutrality and peace, but he intended to go along with Roosevelt.

Thank you for your fight for neutrality and peace and may your shadow ne'er grow less. F. L. ENSLOW, Appleton, Wis., Oct. 3.—Can the comparative quiet that reigns along the Maginot line mean that the allies are simply waiting for our soldiers before the big push begins? N. L. G.

LAFAYETTE AGAIN.

Clear Lake, Ia., Oct. 3.—Why quibble about the world war debt which France owes us, or object to aiding her in this present crisis? Had it not been for her contribution of 200 million dollars—most of which was never repaid—and her troops and ships which assisted our colonists during the revolutionary war, America would have been unable to gain her independence.

Our debt to France can never be paid; but our appreciation and our humanity can be shown by helping a worthy people save themselves by allowing them to buy the supplies they need.

Hitler's mechanized army reënforced by Russia's inexhaustible materials will not stop with the conquest of Poland. England and France will be next on Der Fuehrer's bill, and after them America.

Our neutrality is not impaired by the "cash and carry" system; but our existence and all western civilization are in danger if communism, Nazism, and Fascism win.

Let us remember our "benefits forgot" and at the same time acknowledge that the war must be won by the west.

SKEEZIX TRUE TO LIFE.

Moline, Ill., Oct. 4.—I enjoy your comic strip entitled "Gasoline Alley," by King. In my opinion it is the most true to life story we have in any newspaper.

Just now "Skeezix" is in exactly the same situation as I am, starting out as a young newspaper reporter. His experiences for the most part are almost the same as mine. Then, too, the portrayal of a high school boy is remarkably like the experiences of all of the fellows in our school during this age.

I hope to see Mr. King's continued success in presenting a true American teen-aged boy through his comic strip.

C. I. O. RED FOUND GUILTY IN STRIKE; FACES TEN YEARS

Maytag Verdict Reached in 20 Minutes.

Montezuma, Ia., Oct. 6 [Special].—William Sentner, communist and C. I. O. leader, was found guilty today of criminal syndicalism in connection with a sitdown strike in the Maytag Washing Machine company plant at Newton last year. Conviction carries a maximum penalty of 10 years' imprisonment and a $5,000 fine. Sentner will be sentenced Oct. 20.

William Sentner. [Acme Photo.]

A jury of seven women and five men, mostly farmers, announced its verdict after only 20 minutes of deliberation. Sentner's attorneys said they would appeal. Sentner, who was in court, said nothing. He is at liberty on bond.

Curb on Radical Activities.

Criminal syndicalism was the term applied to penal statutes enacted by a number of states just before and after the entry of the United States into the world war. The statutes were designed to curb subversive activities by radicals. At that time the mots active radicals in this country were the International Workers of the World, whose basic philosophy, adopted from that of French radicals, was known as syndicalism. They appealed to workers to unite in one big union [syndicate] and seize the instruments of production from the owners by general strikes or other methods of direct action.

The Maytag strike, affecting one of Iowa's largest industries, was called in May, 1939, by the C. I. O. United Electrical and Machine Workers' union when its members refused to accept a pay cut. The dispute became one of the most bitter in Iowa labor history. About 1,500 employés were affected.

Plant Seized by Strikers.

The strikers took possession of the plant by sitdown tactics, and during this phase disorders broke out, after which martial law was established.

Sentner, a C. I. O. regional director; James B. Carey of New York, international president of the electrical and machine workers, and Hollis Hall, then an official of the Maytag plant local, were arrested. They were charged with inciting persons to interfere with operations of the plant, and to interfere with non-striking employés. Carey and Hall remain to be tried on the same charge, criminal syndicalism, on which Sentner was convicted today.

At the time of this first arrest, C. I. O. strikers threatened to release Sentner from jail by force.

Admits He's Communist.

Witnesses at his syndicalism trial testified Sentner, during the strike, had brandished a copy of an injunction restraining union interference with the plant. They said he shouted: "This isn't worth the paper it's written on! The judge who signed it must have been asleep!"

One witness, the Rev. L. B. Logan, pastor of the Newton Methodist church, quoted Sentner as saying: "If the Maytags bring in strikebreakers, we will blow up the town." Other testimony showed Sentner admitted in 1938 before a military court he was a communist, and that he said he assumed full responsibility for the strike. On the stand yesterday Sentner testified he is still a communist.

The state charged that Sentner openly advocated sabotage, violence, and interference with the plant and its workers. In March, 1939, he was arrested in Evansville, Ind., after a striker was shot in another labor dispute.

POWER WORKERS ACCEPT TERMS IN MICHIGAN STRIKE

Saginaw, Mich., Oct. 6 (AP).—C. I. O. union employés of the Consumers Power company voted overwhelmingly today to end their two weeks old strike and return to work.

The members of the C. I. O. Utility Workers Organizing committee accepted an agreement reached by their leaders in negotiations with officials of the company which supplies gas and electricity in more than 1,000 southern Michigan communities. Details of the agreement were not revealed.

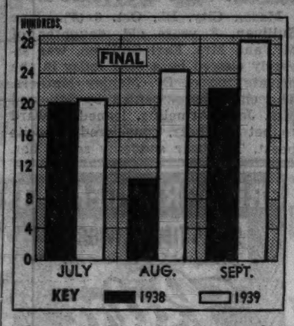
ST. CHARLES BOY KILLER WILL GET MENTAL TESTS

Judge William L. Pierce of the Circuit court in Belvidere yesterday ordered that mental tests be given Charles Allen Dain, 14 years old, a former inmate of the St. Charles School for Boys, who is charged with murder. The examination will be made by Dr. Sidney G. Wilgus of Rockford. On Sept. 26 Dain killed Lester Groth, a farmer by whom he was employed. The case will be considered Wednesday by the McHenry county grand jury. Dain is in jail in Belvidere.

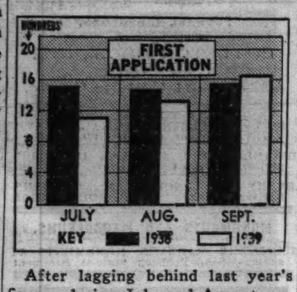
Tavern Owner Kills Negro Who Attempts to Rob Him

Charles Thorpe, 29 years old, colored, 3638 South La Salle street, was shot and killed early today in a tavern at 3628 Wentworth avenue when, according to police, he attempted a holdup. He was shot by Vincent Canino, 44, of 314 West 42d place, the tavern owner. Canino told police that Thorpe threw him to the floor of the place and demanded his money, whereupon he shot Thorpe.

Rush for Citizenship



Sharp rise in applications for final naturalization papers during the last three months forced officials to establish limit of 100 a day.



After lagging behind last year's figures during July and August, applications for first papers showed a marked increase in September after war had started.

Since the outbreak of the European war, government officials here have been forced to limit applications for United States citizenship to 100 a day, it was disclosed yesterday. The rush of Chicago aliens for citizenship papers began in July when the war appeared imminent and reached a peak of 150 a day early last month with the actual beginning of hostilities.

This was more than double the usual number of filings at the government bureau of immigration and naturalization in the new postoffice. Fred J. Schlotfeldt, director of the bureau, explained that the limit set by the quota is all that the staff can handle conveniently.

He said the increase which was started by the war was continuing day by day. Aliens by showing their intention of becoming citizens of this country were safeguarding themselves from possible recall to their native lands where they and their possessions were subject to wartime conscription. Eventually the bureau might have been swamped if some action had not been taken.

A. F. L. TRANSFER OF UNION MEN IS HELD ILLEGAL

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—In a far-reaching decision accusing the American Federation of Labor of usurping authority, Federal District Judge T. Alan Goldsborough ruled today that the federation had no right to transfer workers from one union to another without their consent.

He issued an injunction restraining the labor organization from enforcing the order of its 1933 convention giving jurisdiction over beer truck drivers to the teamsters' union. The Brewery Workers union, which has had jurisdiction over the drivers, sought the injunction.

In Cincinnati, Joseph A. Padway, the A. F. of L.'s chief counsel, announced he would recommend an appeal to a higher tribunal. "That unsound and illegal doctrine cannot stand," said Padway, "and I must advise an appeal so as to protect the rights of every international [union] affiliated with the A. F. of L."

EIGHT ELECTION AIDS FACE COURT ON FRAUD CHARGE

Eight election officials who were arrested Thursday night in an investigation of fraud in the April mayoral election were taken before County Judge Edmund K. Jarecki yesterday. They are:

Fourth ward, 58th precinct—Mrs. Nadie Kirksey, 4822 St. Lawrence avenue; Henry Brown, 4839 Forrestville avenue, and Mrs. Madette Bryant, 4845 Forrestville avenue, all colored.

Twenty-ninth ward, 19th precinct—John E. Antonelli, 919 South Springfield avenue, and Melvin Meiss, 3809 Polk street.

Twenty-ninth ward, 68th precinct—Timothy Curtis, 3858 Polk street; Charles M. Shapera, 750 Independence boulevard, and A. J. Dubosky, 716 Independence boulevard.

All were released on bond or on their promise to arrange bond.

GUNMEN SCOOP UP $1,996 IN A MONEY OFFICE

In a carefully timed holdup, three gunmen took $1,996 yesterday from Miss Sylvia Cohon, 27 years old, cashier in the City Currency Exchange, Inc., which occupies space in a drug store at 2801 Clybourn avenue.

The money had been delivered a few minutes before in an armored express truck. Miss Cohon, who lives at 5200 Sheridan road, had just finished a cup of coffee at the lunch counter when the bandits entered. Their guns threatened Miss Cohon, Morris Gold, the drug store proprietor; Doris Zeinert, 20, a waitress, and Mrs. Gertrude Vassel, the cook. The latter fainted and lay unconscious behind the counter during the robbery.

After scooping up the cash the robbers joined a companion waiting in an automobile outside and drove northwest in Clybourn avenue.

A JURY SUBPENA FIXER-UPPER GETS SOME HOMEWORK

Accused of Loop Racket; Blank Forms Seized.

If any loop business men are chuckling over the ease with which they dodged jury service by giving the deputy sherif a little remembrance when he called with a subpena, this will interest them:

The sherif's office received a telephone call Thursday from the Fastener corporation at 111 West Monroe street. Would the deputy who had subpenaed General Sales Manager Ray York bring back Mr. York's fountain pen?

The sherif's staff couldn't find any deputy who had been assigned to serve a subpena in that building. Chief Deputy Bailif Anton Cichowicz recalled stories of an impostor who pretended to have jury subpenas and accepted remembrances for not serving them. The chief deputy and half a dozen of his men hurried to the offices of the Fastener corporation.

Deputies Take Up Vigil.

Mr. York had wanted to serve on a jury and had accepted service at once. The man with the subpena, therefore, hadn't suggested fixing things, but he had kept the paper which he brandished and said was a subpena. And Mr. York's name wasn't on the jury list. Mr. York remembered the man's descriptiton.

The chief deputy and his men waited in the building all Thursday night. Yesterday morning they saw a man answering the description Mr. York gave. They asked the man what he had in his briefcase.

He didn't want to tell. They looked and found 50 subpena forms of the Circuit, Superior, and Municipal courts. Some bore the rubber stamp signature of Clerk Victor L. Schlaeger of the Superior court and that court's seal.

The man said he had found the briefcase. He told the deputies he was Harry Schoenfield, 54 years old, and gave three addresses. One was 670 North Clark street. In a room there were found the pen and several thousand more of the subpena blanks, some signed and sealed. Schoenfield said he had bought them for $10.

The deputies found a number of persons at 111 West Monroe street and the adjoining building at 105 who had been approached by a stranger with a subpena and an offer to fix it. Schoenfield said it couldn't have been he. Sherif Thomas J. O'Brien took Schoenfield into custody.

Court officials explained that signed subpenas are available to responsible persons and are easy to obtain. They said, too, that misuse of them constitutes contempt of court, punishable by a possible three year sentence.

INDICT GIRL, TWO MEN IN KIDNAPING OF OIL OPERATOR

Bloomington, Ill., Oct. 6 [Special].—A mixed grand jury returned kidnaping indictments today against two men and a girl who abducted a gasoline filling station operator yesterday. The jury's action came after the capture of the girl, Mary Elizabeth Shoemaker of Memphis, Tenn.

Miss Shoemaker identified the two men as Ouva Thompson, 27 years old, of Memphis, her sweetheart, and Elmer Lawson, 33, a Missouri hitchhiker. The two men slipped through a cordon of police and deputy sherifs which had surrounded them in a timber tract.

An automobile containing the two men and the girl yesterday drove up to the gasoline station in nearby Lexington of Vance Kite, 60. One man drew a pistol, took $30 from Kite, and pushed him into the automobile. A tire blew out near Funk's Grove, and the car was abandoned. Kite was taken deep into the timber and told to remain there for an hour. The girl was given $7 and told to hitch-hike home.

REPORT BARING RED ACTIVITY IN CAPITAL SEIZED

Invade U. S. Departments, Dies Reveals.

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—Chairman Martin Dies [D., Tex.] announced tonight that a document disclosing communist activities in the Washington navy yard, the government printing office, and other federal departments here had been seized by the house committee on un-American activities.

Martin Chancey. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Dies described the document as a report made by Martin Chancey, secretary of the communist party in the District of Columbia. The committee questioned Chancey for several hours behind closed doors.

Tells Communist Activities.

"This seven or eight page report, which Chancey identified as genuine," Dies said, "tells of the activities of the communist party in the navy yard, the government printing office, and other departments."

The Texan declined to elaborate on that description other than to say it contained a name which is important in linking various front organizations in Washington with communists.

Tells of California Bund.

Earlier a former German-American bund member told the Dies committee that the bund at Los Angeles had plans for paralyzing the Pacific coast by sabotage in event of war between this country and Germany.

Neil Howard Ness, the witness, said the plans called for the destruction of docks, waterworks, power plants, and aircraft factories by bund members scattered through the coast's key industries. He heard the plans discussed in 1936, he said.

Much of his testimony concerned what he said were German espionage activities on the Pacific coast. He referred to a Count von Bulow, who, he said, was regarded by Schwinn as the German espionage chief in the United States.

Armour Strike Spreads at East St. Louis Yards

East St. Louis, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP).—The hog division of Armour and company's packing plant at National City was closed today when 145 additional employés joined 180 workers in the killing and butchering departments who went on strike yesterday. Officials of the C. I. O. United Packing House Workers' union threatened to call a general strike at the plant unless the company reinstated 80 men discharged in a consolidation of the two departments. The union claimed a membership of 1,150 of the plant's 1,200 employés.

APPEAL RULING ON JOBLESS AID IN STRIKE CASE

A petition was filed in the Circuit court yesterday seeking, in effect, $70,000 unemployment compensation for 570 employés of the Revere Copper and Brass company, 2200 North Natchez avenue. The action is the result of a strike which ended two weeks ago.

On Sept. 28 the Illinois division of unemployment compensation formally denied an application for compensation made both by ex-strikers and nonstrikers, on the ground that the loss of work was due to the strike. Yesterday's court action was an appeal from that ruling. It was contended that the strike of itself did not stop work, but that removal of the company's production to subsidiary plants was responsible.

WOMAN HURT IN FALL.

Mrs. Joan Smaida, 20 years old, was severely injured yesterday when she fell out while washing a window on her third floor apartment at 521 Rush street.

VON BERNSTORFF, GERMAN ENVOY IN U. S. IN 1917, DIES

Kaiser's Last Minister Succumbs in Exile.

GENEVA, Switzerland, Oct. 6 (AP).—Count Johann Heinrich von Bernstorff, one time gay German ambassador whose diplomatic assignment in Washington ended with the United States' entry into the world war in 1917, died today of heart disease. He had been a refugee from his own country since the rise of the Hitler régime.

Count von Bernstorff. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

Von Bernstorff, last ambassador to represent imperial Germany in the United States capital, would have been 77 years old Nov. 14.

At his bedside when death came was the count's American born wife, the former Jeanne Luckemeyer of New York. She had gone to the United States only last February to regain the American citizenship she renounced when she married Von Bernstorff 52 years ago.

Lived Almost as Recluse.

Von Bernstorff, a leading figure in the brilliant life of prewar Washington, and an object of American hatred in the war impassioned days of 1917, had lived almost as a recluse for the last five years. He kept strictly out of politics. He had been ill 18 months.

In keeping with his wish, funeral services will be private, without flowers. Following cremation, burial will be in the Geneva cemetery.

Von Bernstorff came of a noted German diplomatic family. His father was ambassador to Britain when he was born in London in 1862. The younger Bernstorff served in Belgrade, Dresden, St. Petersburgh, Munich, London, and Cairo before being sent to the United States in 1908. He served in Washington until given his passport Feb. 3, 1917, two months before the United States declared war.

Boy-ed on His Staff.

Von Bernstorff's position in Washington after the world war broke out was made more difficult because of activities of German agents in the United States, notably the military attaché, Capt. Carl Boy-ed. Also on his staff as military attaché was Franz von Papen, who later became chancellor of Germany and then Adolf Hitler's special envoy.

[In 1915 Boy-ed and Von Papen were recalled on the United States' request after they had been charged with furthering plots against munitions plants and sending supplies to German raiders from United States ports as well as plots in connection with Mexico. Secretary of State Robert Lansing, however, absolved Von Bernstorff of any connection with their activities.]

While Von Bernstorff was ambassador, there occurred the famous Black Tom munitions depot explosion, later the subject of extended litigation between Germany and the United States.

Often Warned Against War.

As ambassador to America he was much in demand as a speaker and received honorary degrees from several universities.

With the outbreak of the world war his task became increasingly difficult. He often warned his government its course was leading the United States into the war.

"My task was done when the Lusitania incident was disposed of without America's entry into the war," he once said.

"After that the question of peace or war depended not on me but on the Wilhelmstrasse and the great army headquarters.

"They knew exactly that a repetition of the Lusitania incident or the unlimited extension of submarine warfare would automatically mean war with the United States. But they would not listen."

Despite his warnings it became Von Bernstorff's duty on Jan. 31, 1917, to advise America of the German submarines' "sink on sight" campaign against merchant ships.

Wilson Severs Relations.

Three days later President Woodrow Wilson announced to congress that diplomatic relations with Germany had been severed.

American opinion reached a feverish degree on March 1 when it was disclosed that the "Zimmerman note," in which the German foreign secretary invited Mexico to join with Germany and Japan in a war against the United States, had been transmitted through Von Bernstorff's office.

Returning home, Von Bernstorff was assigned as ambassador to Turkey. When the German revolution broke out he resigned, but in 1921 became a member of the reichstag of the new German republic.

In 1924 he quit the reichstag and retired with his wife to his estate on Lake Starnberg in Upper Bavaria.

In 1931 he prepared a drastic disarmament plan which Germany submitted to the Geneva disarmament conference. Then Germany's new master, Adolf Hitler, withdrew from the conference in 1933.

Von Bernstorff, never sympathetic with the Nazi cause, retired again.

TAFT HITS NLRB AS UNFAIR AND URGES NEW ONE

Domestic Issues Vital, He Tells A. F. of L.

BY ARTHUR EVANS.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 6.—Creation of a new federal labor relations board was suggested by Senator Robert A. Taft [R., O.] today before the American Federation of Labor convention. He declared committee hearings in Washington have upheld criticisms made by federation officials that the labor board has shown prejudice in favor of John Lewis' C. I. O. against the A. F. of L.

Senator Taft, one of the Republican possibilities for nomination for President, also spoke on neutrality. He repeated his views in favor of the cash and carry plan, saying he thought it would reduce the chances of this nation becoming involved in Europe.

The new national commander of the American Legion, Raymond J. Kelly of Detroit, also addressed the delegates.

Points to Domestic Problems.

Senator Taft said domestic problems are just as important as ever and that in 1940 the voters will decide "whether the New Deal has failed in its main purposes." He took up the Wagner labor act and suggested possible amendments, some of which have been urged by the A. F. of L.

"Unfortunately, the administration of the act," said Taft, "has been biased and prejudiced. Some decisions of the board have resulted in the greatest perversion of justice this country has seen."

The Dies committee was praised for its investigations by Commander Kelly of the Legion.

"A lasting industrial peace," he said, "has been rendered almost impossible by the efforts of communist inspired cliques to gain control of the labor movement. The disclosures of the Dies committee definitly mad known such a situation.

Kelly Praises A. F. of L.

"May I compliment the American Federation of Labor for its unceasing efforts in combating the agents of alien ideologies who have attempted to bore into your organization. You have been successful to a high degree in keeping the federation a repository for pure Americanism. The American Legion salutes you."

Herbert H. Elvin, a British fraternal delegate, told the convention that the British trade union movement is behind the British government. He said it has world peace aims which it plans to press. He said the labor movement refused an invitation to be represented in the cabinet, but is cooperating on some special government committees.

TWO CHILDREN SPEND NIGHT IN LOCKED ICEBOX

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6 [Special].—Elmer Fauss Jr., 4 years old, and Dixie Lee King, 3 years old, were found today after an all-night search, locked in a 6 by 8 foot ice box in a storage warehouse at 920 North Jackson street.

Parents notified the police the children were missing about 6 o'clock last night. The children apparently entered the icebox an hour or so earlier than that and the heavy outer door snapped closed behind them. The last employe to leave locked the doors about 5 o'clock yesterday.

Soon after daylight Patrolman Walter Brunow was told by a neighbor she had seen the children playing near the furniture warehouse during the afternoon. He found the children with their noses pressed against a heavy glass pane in the icebox door. The salvation of the children was that cracks in the old box admitted enough air for them to breathe.

DISTILLER GETS WRITS BANNING PRICE SLASHING

Frankfort Distilleries, Inc., obtained injunctions yesterday restraining two liquor stores from cutting the price of the corporation's products below the contract level set under the fair trade practices act. The injunctions were against Josephine and John Zimmerman, operators of the International Liquor company, at 190 N. La Salle street, and Max and Benjamin Zimmerman, operators of the Cut Rate Liquor store at 200 W. Randolph street. Ludwig Selinger, who represented the corporation in Judge Robert Jerome Dunne's court, said 15 such orders have now been issued.

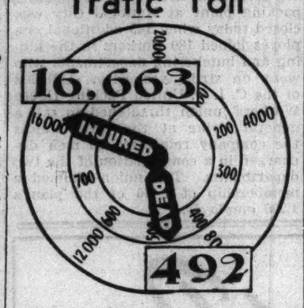
THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

MOTHER WALKING WITH YOUNG SON KILLED BY AUTO

A mother, walking along the highway with her small son, was struck and killed by an automobile last night. The boy was not injured. The victim was Mrs. Elleanore Brown, 39 years old, 5143 Morse avenue, wife of John T. Brown, a lawyer with offices at 10 South La Salle street.

The accident occurred in Touhy avenue at Le Claire avenue, in Niles Center. Mrs. Brown and her son, Jackie, 5½, were taking an evening stroll, and were walking against trafic a few blocks away from home. The driver was Carl H. Pollack, 23, of 415 Northwest highway, Park Ridge, a civil engineer. He told police he did not leave the pavement. He was released on $5,000 bail to appear at the inquest today.

No deaths from automobile accidents were reported in Cook county during the 24 hours ending at 4 p. m. yesterday. Up to that time 639 persons had been killed by automobiles in the county since Jan. 1. Of these 492 were killed in Chicago, where 16,663 were injured in the same period.

CITY EMPLOYE PAYS $465 BILL FOR CAR CRASH

George M. Strachan, veteran city hall employé, yesterday paid the $465 judgment entered against him last January in an automobile damage suit brought by Attorney Robert L. Darlington, 105 West Monroe street. The money was turned over to Darlington by J. Edward Jones, counsel for Strachan.

Strachan, who is superintendent of electrical maintenance men in the department of public works, previously had refused to pay the judgment. Under the financial responsibility section of the motor vehicle law, his driver's license and car plates were taken from him several days ago by investigators for the secretary of state's office and he was forbidden to drive his car.

Strachan was arrested when he sought new license plates and filed an affidavit alleging the others had been stolen. He is at liberty on $100 bond and will be arraigned Oct. 24 before Judge John Gutknecht in Trafic court. John K. Segrave, head of the operators' license department in the secretary of state's Chicago office, said yesterday that payment of the judgment will not affect the prosecution on the false affidavit charge. Strachan is 73 years old and lives at 3827 Congress street.

PLAN FREE MILK FOR RELIEFERS TO BEGIN OCT. 16

Distribution of free milk to reliefers will begin Oct. 16, Leo M. Lyon dicated yesterday in a bulletin sent to members of his Chicago Relief administration staf. The CRA and the department of agriculture will combine to buy the milk, which will be given to eligible reliefers in addition to their present food allowances.

Milk will be given only to those reliefers who request it, Lyons said. Many protests were made in 1935 when milk was given to all reliefers in Chicago whether they asked for it or not. Angry taxpayers complained about back porches loaded with bottles of unused milk.

Those who ask for milk will be allowed a maximum of one quart a day for children less than 7 years old, while older children and adults may receive a pint a day. The final stages of the plan are now being negotiated between the department of agriculture and Chicago milk dealers.

WISCONSIN'S LAW MAKERS WIND UP 269 DAY SESSION

Set Record, but Fail to Balance Budget.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6 (AP).—The 1939 Wisconsin legislature adjourned sine die at 4:39 p. m. today, establishing a new endurance mark of 269 days, seven more than the previous record of 1935.

It left behind an interim committee of 18 members representing all three state political parties to carry on the struggle over its big unfinished task—enactment of a supplementary revenue program to meet an impending deficit of about 20 million dollars—and report back to the special session Gov. Julius P. Heil plans to call later on.

Extend Milk Price Rule.

In its last moments, which were marked by confusion, conferences and mild forms of collaborating, the legislature finally sent to Gov. Heil's desk two bills over which the houses had fought for months.

One reënacted the state milk price control law, which otherwise would have expired Dec. 31.

The second provided for an examiner in the department of agriculture and markets to administer price fixing and business codes for barbers, cosmeticians, cleaners and shoe repairers.

Kill Driver License Bill.

Another last minute bill appropriated $4,489 to pay compensation for about 14 assembly employés who had been given jobs without civil service rating.

The house, under leadership of Speaker Vernon Thomson [Rep.] of Richland Center, tried to push through a new drivers' license law requiring the renewal of all existing licenses Jan. 1 and every three years thereafter. However, it was buried in the senate.

AMERICA FACES BONDAGE IN WAR, AIKEN DECLARES

Fairfield, Ill., Oct. 6 (AP).—Gov. George D. Aiken of Vermont said today the loss of democracy—not the danger of losing the war—would be America's peril if the United States joined the allies to defeat dictatorship abroad.

In an address at a Lincoln day celebration here the Vermont chief executive asserted war preparedness plans of the United States "call for such a regimenting of all our resources, industrial, human, and natural, as would make the war lords of Germany and Russia blush for their inefficiency and thoughtlessness.

"And no one in this country seriously believes that the power thus delegated to the administration in Washington would ever be wholly returned to the people at the end of the war."

The occasion for his address was the dedication of a monument commemorating Wayne county's indorsement of Abraham Lincoln for the Republican nomination for President in March, 1860, the first public indorsement that Lincoln received.

INJUNCTION BANS C. I. O. PICKETING OF AUTO CONCERN

A temporary injunction restraining stranger picketing by a C. I. O. union at a large Chicago auto accessory concern was granted in Circuit court yesterday by Judge George Fred Rush. The court was told that the concern's employés already are members of another union affiliated with the American Federation of Labor and have no wish to join the C. I. O.

The court order was obtained in behalf of the Continental Products, Inc., 2036 South Michigan avenue, described as a company which does an annual business of $2,000,000 to $3,000,000. The restrainer affects the United States Retail and Wholesale Employés of America, affiliated with John L. Lewis' Congress of Industrial Organizations.

The injunction also prohibits the C. I. O. union from interfering with the company's business in any way, such as by stopping deliveries or intimidating employés.

IRON LUNG BABY THRIVES AFTER MOTHER'S DEATH

The baby girl born to Mrs. Gertrude Epstein Thursday in Mount Sinai hospital while the mother was kept alive by means of a chest respirator, continued to gain in health yesterday. Mrs. Epstein, who was suffering from infantile paralysis, died early yesterday. She was 22 years old. Physicians said death was caused by heart paralysis.

The baby's birth was facilitated by a chest respirator lent from the home of Frederick B. Snite Jr., who has been kept alive in various respirators for several years. Mrs. Epstein had been in a standard respirator which encased her entire body. She was transferred to the lighter respirator with the help of an inhalator squad. The baby, weighing 6½ pounds, was born soon afterward.

HERO OF STORM IN LAKE KILLS SELF WITH GUN

Relatives in Chicago yesterday were arranging for funeral services in New Orleans for James J. McLevy, hero of a boat accident on Lake Michigan in 1909, who was found dead Thursday in that city. A pistol was found beside his body, along with a suicide note stating that he was despondent over financial difficulties.

McLevy was a wireless operator on the steamship Puritan which became disabled 20 miles out in the lake during a storm 30 years ago. Forty passengers and a crew of 20 were aboard. The storm ripped the antenna loose from the spar, and distress signals could not be sent from the ship.

McLevy, then 18 years old, climbed up the spar and repaired the antenna. The ship's wireless signals then were picked up, and a boat was sent to the rescue. McLevy later was employed on ocean vessels. Mrs. Thomas B. Welch, 1046 Wrightwood avenue, a sister, said he had been unable to find regular employment recently.

GIRL HIT AND RUN DRIVER ASSESSED $4,000 DAMAGES

Miss Anna Claire, blamed for a hit and run accident in which David Burnett was killed four years ago, was under orders yesterday to pay his widow $4,000 damages or face the possibility of jail. A damage verdict with a malice count, enabling the widow to send Miss Claire to jail, was returned by a jury before Judge W. W. Damron of Harrisburg, sitting in Superior court.

Miss Claire, who formerly lived at 4267 Addison street, is 21 years old. She was a senior in Carl Schurz High school when her car killed Burnett, whose widow Hattie, lives at 2939 Clybourn avenue. Detective Sergt. Daniel Healy testified under questioning by Mrs. Burnett's attorney, John Fruchtl, that Miss Claire drove away after the accident and lay flat on the floor of her car until the police found her. Miss Clair testified she did not know she had struck Burnett.

Edwin Carewe, 64, Movie Pioneer, Has Heart Attack

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 6 (AP).—Edwin Carewe, 64 years old, pioneer film producer, suffered a heart attack today. His condition was described as critical.

The Housewife

One of the most convenient items to keep on your kitchen shelves along with waxes and polishes is a small bottle of a liquid that hides scratches on tables, chests, and cabinets. It's not intended for deep cuts. Use plastic wood for that. It is for light scratches.

You simply apply it with a clean cloth, let it dry, and then polish the surface. It will not change the color of any finished wood surface, but it will cover up the scratch. And it is a most inexpensive remedy, too.

Note from Gtde. St.

Margaret and Robert Williams, editors of the Chicago magazine, Creative Writing, printed this month [set by hand and run off on an ancient foot press] instead of being mimeographed as heretofore, sent a copy of the last issue to Gertrude Stein. Miss Stein replied promptly:

My dear Robert and Margaret Williams,

Thank you for being twenty-six and for Creative Writing. I enjoyed it. Here is something to add to it if you like it. Are your eyes brown or blue, anyway good luck to you

Miss Stein's contribution to the latest issue of Creative Writing is a play, Lucretia Borgia. You'll want to read it. We quote from the preface and the cast of characters as set down by Miss Stein:

For a while Lucretia Borgia was hurt because she had no cousins. She would have liked to have cousins. Then she suddenly said, he knows, and when she said he knows she meant my lord the duke. The duke was cut off by his position from listening and every little while he liked to be patient, they were often all happy together dear duke and dear Lucretia Borgia but not really very often.

Miss Keller's Visit.

Chicago Historical society attendants are still thinking about the calm, lovely woman in the well tailored black and white checked suit, who visited Mrs. Thorne's miniature rooms the other day. Mrs. Marguerite Weaver, in charge of the rooms, opened them so the visitor's sensitive fingers might explore the interiors.

"O, I see what Mrs. Thorne is doing," Helen Keller exclaimed, after "seeing" one or two of the rooms. "She's selecting the best of every period and reproducing it in miniature."

When the woman who has been blind from birth came to the Spanish room, with its high doorways and vaulted ceiling, she exclaimed:

"How stately!"

And when she picked up a tiny bit of Venetian glass in the French room: "This is just like a dew drop!"

War has been threatened often, but it took Hitler to threaten peace, says Marie Fleming.

Practical Reply.

A young girl at the University of Missouri recently wrote her mother, air mail special delivery, as follows:

Dear Mother:

Please send me money for a new dress immediately. Have had several dates with Jimmy and have worn each of my dresses once. We have a date tomorrow night and I must have another dress right away. If you don't send the money, send a new dress. Thanks.

Ruth.

Her mother answered:

Dear Ruth:

Get yourself a new boy friend.

Both Parties, Sports Crowd Busy Week-End

BY JUDITH CASS.

WHAT a variety of interesting things there are going on in and around Chicago this week-end! Not just the usual things, either, for there are at least two sporting events that don't occur often. For instance, the rugby football game tomorrow night at Soldiers' field and the field trials today and tomorrow in Barrington.

Chicago's undefeated rugby team will meet the Hollywood Lancers in a battle to decide the championship at 8:30 on a brilliantly lighted field. The field trials are the annual ones of the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois and will be held on the Floyd L. Bateman farm and Dr. Paul Magnuson's pheasant preserve.

Helen Mary Bryan Will Bow Today.

Today has as many weddings as every autumnal Saturday has, although there is no large ceremony in town or on the north shore this afternoon. There is a debut tea in town, however, to tempt football spectators to leave as soon as the games are finished in order to welcome Miss Helen Mary Bryan into adult society.

The junior Benjamin Butters Bryans will receive with their daughter from 4 until 7 o'clock at the Woman's Athletic club. The Bryans live in Lake Forest.

Also in the receiving line will be the debutante's cousin, Miss Hope Bryan, of Mill Neck, N. Y., a debutante of two seasons ago. She and her parents, Mr. and Mrs. James T. Bryan, are arriving today.

They will be here for a luncheon the junior John F. Jelkes are giving tomorrow at their Millburn farm for Miss Bryan, and then the James Bryans will return east. Their daughter may remain for a week.

The assistants at the tea this afternoon will include almost as many buds of last season as of this. Miss Nancy Orr, Miss Peggy Burrows, Miss Mary Ryerson, Miss Betty Mead, and Miss Sally Perry all came out last year.

Miss Alice Blair, Miss Mary Faith Wilson, Miss Anne Stuart, Miss Marie Louise Hulburd, Miss Caryl Harrison, Miss Barbara Buchanan, and Miss Mardo Pattou are the buds of this year who will take turns at the tea tables.

Following the tea Mrs. J. Glen Sample is entertaining at dinner and dancing in the Balinese room of the Blackstone hotel for Miss Bryan, her assistants, and their escorts. Miss Bryan is spending the winter at home.

Expert to Explain Each Rugby Play.

No one need stay away from the rugby game tomorrow night because he does not understand the game, for Dr. Theodore Walsh will give a play by play account for the benefit of the spectators. Dr. Walsh is an authority on rugby, having been a No. 1 player in England in 1930. He was with Guys hospital in London then; now he is with the Billings hospital here.

Peter Fortune is captain of the Chicago team, so Mrs. Fortune, of course, will be among the spectators. So will Miss Helen Shoemaker, whose brother, Warren, is a member of the team. Because of the ruling that only 15 men may play, with no substitutions, many of the Chicago squad members will be watching from the club patrons' section.

Big Event of Hunter Trials Tomorrow.

Tomorrow will be the big day at the field trials, for the open all-age stake will be held then. Spectators will see three of the greatest springers in the country in this stake: Solo Event, owned by James Simpson Jr.; Danshangan Pomme de Terre, David Silberman's winner in the east and middle west last year, and Finglen Johnnie of Strawberry Hill, owned by the Frazier Horns of New York. Mrs. F. Ambrose Clark of New York is sending Patricia of Forshan Bee to compete in the open all-age stake, also.

Chicago's Hunts Will Meet This Week-End.

The ground still is so hard that it provides bad footing for hunters, but even so, all the hunts in the Chicago district are planning hunts for this week-end. The Longmeadow and the Du Page, which postponed their first formal hunts several times, hoping for rain, are starting their seasons today and tomorrow.

The Longmeadow will meet at 3 o'clock today at the new kennels in County Line road, a bit east of the Skokie road. Following the run, Clark J. Lawrence, the M. F. H., and Mrs. Lawrence will entertain the riders at tea in the Lawrence home in Hubbard Woods.

The Du Page County hunt will meet at its kennels on Cantigny farm at Wheaton at 3 o'clock tomorrow. The Wayne hunt has set 10:30 tomorrow morning as the time to meet, and the Mill Creek hounds will assemble at 11:20 tomorrow morning at John F. Jelke's stables in Millburn. This afternoon's hunt of the Mill Creek will start at 3:30 from the hunt stables.

Cigaret Girl for Benefit

[Moffett Photo.]

Miss Madeline Hedly, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Arthur H. Hedley, will be one of the debutantes selling cigarets at the Arden Shore Cellophane carnival tonight. The party will be given in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. Mrs. Dwight H. Green heads the committee that has planned the benefit dinner-dance. Miss Hedly will make her debut on New Year's day.

Cord Sweaters Among Best of Saturday Buys

BY RHEA SEEGER.

Saturday shopping tips include smart new finds for the budgeteer and the fashion wise career girls! Chenille cord sweaters are semidress parade numbers in white, shell pink, sage green, apple red, and black. They have a flattering, velvety texture, button down the front with silver filigree buttons, and have short sleeves.

These sweaters will top velveteen skirts with very decorative results and go well with plaited woolens and long, dull crêpe skirts for informal party wear. Priced around five dollars they're finds! For less money you can buy similarly styled sweaters in a trick boucle yarn in equally luscious colors.

All kinds of plaid shirts and high neckline blouses are available, some with dark color combines, others vivid enough to be seen for blocks. The material is soft and thin without sacrificing warmth. Chest pockets are appliqued in position, using the plaid pattern in contrast cut for trim . . . otherwise the shirts are simple, making them ideal suit blouse tops.

For an amazingly low sum, around three dollars, you will find some changeable taffeta blouses in lovely old-fashioned colors. These have a fly-front fastening, brief sleeves, a shallow yoke effect and a high round collarline. These changeable beauties are so cut and fashioned that they can be worn over or under the skirt band. The red and blue and the bright blue and yellow affairs are the most effective models for dark street suits.

THROUGH THE LOOKING GLASS

One of the best looking beauty gifts in town at the moment is a tantalus set of colognes, one for the lady of the house, the other for her spouse. The woman's can be any one of four beautiful odors, two of them florals [gardenia and carnation] and two of them chic blends. The man's is a famous cologne created especially for gentlemen. Gentlemen like it plenty, too.

This is a handsome set, the tantalus made of blonde ash wood with base and inlay bars of walnut. The carafes of eau de cologne are released with a trick swing-top arrangement. It has charm and simplicity and the bottles are stunning—quite large, and square, with cut glass stoppers.

If the gift is for a man rather than a couple you can substitute a decanter of after shaving lotion [a fine one too, the men report] for the silver-decorated bottle containing cologne for a woman. This combine of men's cologne and after shaving lotion make an elegant gift for the b. b. f.

For a woman, choose two decanters of the fragrant cologne. The gardenia is especially fine but don't overlook the two blends. They're famous, as they deserve to be.

For all its elegance this gift set isn't nearly as expensive as you might expect it to be. It's extremely decorative and looks twice as costly as it actually is. ELEANOR NANGLE.

By Mae Tinée.

Good Morning!

And now "The Rains Came" is here! We've been awaiting it eagerly.

The picture hasn't the tremendous pull and suspense of Louis Bromfield's fascinating novel of the same name from which it was adapted, but it's one fine movie, ably enacted by a superior cast, and its monsoon is as terrifyingly real as anything you saw in "The Hurricane."

This upheaval of nature, the cerebral and tensely appealing performance of the veteran, Maria Ouspenskaya as that "last of the great ladies"—the Maharani—and the depiction of the awful days when Ranchipur was struggling to recover after her almost destruction were to me the highlights of the picture.

Mr. Bromfield's main heroine—understandingly portrayed by Myrna Loy, whom we're accustomed to enjoy in a far different type of rôle—is Lady Esketh, a woman of shady past, who comes to Ranchipur with her dull, apopleptic, and immensely wealthy husband, and falls in love—honestly in love for the first time—with the grave young high caste Indian surgeon, Maj. Rama Safti—close to the hearts of his rulers and, unknown to him, destined by them to reign when they shall be no more.

Lady Esketh's pursuit of him is pretty futile until—"the rains came"—and the horrors that follow strip humans of their artifices and reveal them to one another as they really are. . . .

Mr. Bromfield's searching and convincing analyses are intelligently interpreted in the picture by most of the characters. I found the pretty ingénue, Brenda Joyce, something of a false note, but she's lovely and will learn. Miss Loy and George Brent have a number of arresting scenes together. . . . Nigel Bruce does some outstanding work as Lord Esketh—he would!—and Tyrone Power, whom many thought too light for the part, proves a regal, human, and lovable prince of India. Looks like an Indian, too.

But it's that exquisite little old lady, Maria Ouspenskaya, who really makes you snap into attention with every poised entrance, every quiet word, every still glance from eyes that are both eloquent and orientally secretive.

The film is lavish from production standpoint and had the best to be had in such matters as direction and photography.

I should think Mr. Bromfield would be right pleased with his story à la cinema.

Looking at Hollywood
By Ed Sullivan

The Reviewing Stand.

Hollywood, Cal., Oct. 6.—Actually, the first Britisher of the Hollywood colony to sign up for service was 23 year old Rodion Rathbone, son of Basil. . . . By the time you read this, young Rathbone will have joined the royal engineers in Canada.

Basil Rathbone. Rodion Rathbone.

The family hushed up all news of the enlistment, but this story of the boy's last hours in Hollywood, from a friend of the family, has a quality of charm and pathos that should be broadcast.

The son was to leave by car for Canada at 6 a. m. So the Rathbones had a farewell dinner the preceding night at Chasen's, a restaurant in Beverly Hills. . . . It was one of those evenings that turn out splendidly. . . . The food was just right. . . . The dinner table talk was witty. . . . The drinks imparted just the proper glow.

If the father and mother had any fear in their hearts, they didn't betray it to the youngster who was readying to leave, and, in turn, he dissembled successfully. . . . "Dad," he said, "let's you and I play a set of table tennis." . . . They played, and the son won. . . . There were some strangers playing, and the son played and beat them. . . . It was just the sort of a valedictory that a kid of 23 would like best to author.

The evening raced along and left midnight panting behind. . . . Then it was 3 a. m., and only three hours remained before young Rathbone left for the royal engineers. . . . The father was becoming increasingly jittery. . . . They left the restaurant and emerged into a night that was sprayed in liquid moonlight, and if you ever have seen a California moon, you'll know what I mean.

"Tell you what, son," said Basil. "It's 3 o'clock and you have to leave at 6. Instead of going home and getting two hours of sleep, let's go home now and get your bags packed and we'll drive part of the way with you." . . . The son said he'd appreciate that, so at 5 a. m. they were on the road, the cars see-sawing abreast as father and son shouted out this last conversation, one car to the other.

It had been agreed upon by both that there were to be no formal farewells. . . . "When you've driven out a way, dad," said the kid, "you just pull up to the curb and sound your horn, and I'll sound mine, and I'll keep on going." Outside of San Fernando there is a fork in the roads. . . . The son turned left, holding to the main highway. . . . The father turned right and pulled up behind a garage. . . . He honked his horn. . . . From the car disappearing down the road a horn answered. . . . The father sat there until the winking red light no longer was visible. . . . Then he turned around and drove home in a moonlight that had lost its brilliance.

What "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" fails to show is that a mistake was responsible for the execution of the earl of Essex. . . . At the peak of their romance Queen Elizabeth gave Essex a ring, pledging that if he ever sent it to her it would win any boon he desired.

When Essex was in the tower awaiting execution he gave the ring to a page boy, telling him to deliver it to Lady Scrope, to be rushed to the queen. . . . By mistake, the boy gave the ring to Lady Nottingham, sister of Lady Scrope, and she, hating Essex, concealed the ring instead of delivering it.

When Elizabeth became convinced that Essex was too proud to send the ring, she permitted him to be beheaded.

Hollywood's mistakes, luckily for the film people, have not resulted in the guillotine or the entire colony would have been exterminated. . . . Paramount had Ann Sheridan under contract and let her go. . . . R. K. O. turned thumbs down on Linda Darnell. . . . Music publishing companies turned down "Wishing," which became the smash hit of "Love Affair."

M. G. M. turned loose Charles Boyer; later paid him a fortune to play opposite Greta Garbo. . . . I thought that "The Rains Came" was one of the poorest screen dramas of the season [it's doing capacity business].

The picture in which Flynn, as the earl of Essex, loses his head figuratively and literally over Queen Elizabeth, played by Bette Davis, is pretty dull stuff, relieved only by the presence of Bette Davis. If "the play's the thing," then "The Private Lives of Elizabeth and Essex" must first be blamed for its dullness on the routine script.

Lutherans Conclude Mission Meeting at Park Ridge Church

The missionary convention of the Illinois synod of the United Lutheran church closed yesterday at St. Luke's church, Park Ridge. Dr. Charles Kegley, Lutheran students' pastor at Northwestern university, spoke on the Amsterdam conference. More than 500 women of the synodical society attended. The Augustana synod was represented by Mrs. E. H. Karlson and the Norwegian church by Mrs. Jessie Thorson. The principal speaker was the Rev. Dr. Armin Weng of Elgin, president of the Illinois synod.

The fourth annual convention of the Illinois Young Women's congress of the United Lutheran church opens today at St. Paul's church, Greenwood and Maple streets, Evanston. The Rev. Carl Naumann, pastor, said that more than 200 young women from Illinois and Missouri would attend. Miss Marion Zimmerman, president of the state body with headquarters at the Edgewater Beach hotel, said the convention theme would be "The World Is the Field." Mrs. O. A. Sardeson of Oak Park, who attended the Madras convention, will address the conference.

They Hunted a Fox

By Alice Campbell

[Copyright: 1939: By Alice Ormond Campbell.]

SYNOPSIS.

Alison Young and her fiancé, Dr. Colin Ladbroke, are guests at Chenerys, the English country estate of Tom Boldre, to attend a fox hunt and ball. Wynn Marchmont, sister of Tom's wife, Pat, is engaged to Tom's brother, Derek, a veterinary. Alison overhears a love scene between Pat and Arthur Kingsclere. Chenerys is mortgaged to the hilt. Gregg, Tom's agent, urges him to accept an offer made for the estate, but Tom refuses to sell. At the hunt, from a far off hill, Alison and Colin see Tom thrown and a man bending over him. When they reach the accident they find Derek stooping over Tom's prostrate form. A farmer, Glover, happens along and helps them. Tom, revived, is surprised that Derek, rather than his neighbor, Maj. Fitts, found him. Three weeks later Tom is again thrown and dies soon after. Alison visits Wynn at Chenerys. Riding near the scene of Tom's first accident they find the dead body of farmer Glover. Official verdict is that Glover was killed by a shot from a passing car. Kingsclere, Derek and Maj. Fitts all drove that way. Inspector Headcorn from Scotland Yard investigates. He finds the murder weapon. It belongs to Maj. Fitts, but was stolen the afternoon of the day Glover was shot—after Kingsclere and Derek had called. Dr. Blount, who'd attended Tom and pronounced his death due to a heart attack, suffers an apparent stroke while the inspector questions him. His colleague, Dr. Cox, says he can't be disturbed for three weeks. The inspector sends for Dr. Colin Ladbroke, who knew Tom's heart was sound. Colin exposes Dr. Blount's illness as a fake and gets him to admit he gave Tom an anti-tetanus injection, which caused his death, as he had not been desensitized after a previous injection.

INSTALMENT XXIV.

MURDER SUSPECTED.

Pat Boldre jumped and chewed her underlip, thankful she had not spoken out loud. A tall man, blurred to her sun-dazzled eyes, had taken form out of the shadows.

"O," she murmured, "it's you, is it?"

Coolly, still preserving caution, she ripped off her small bowler, cast it on the table, and dabbed with her handkerchief at her warm cheeks. She even took a cigaret from the silver box and was tapping it deliberately against her palm when the man who should have been Arthur spoke in a stranger's voice.

"Mrs. Boldre, I believe?"

Pat felt a squirm in her inside. Match box in hand she glared back, belligerently blank.

"Who're you?" she fired.

"Inspector Headcorn. I have something very important to say to you."

What the inspector saw was a handsome young woman, upstanding and correct in black riding garb, staring at him with affronted dislike. Rather a stupid looking young woman, with inky, knit brows, and a natural color which had not faded at all.

"To me? What on earth for?"

"Perhaps you'd better sit down. This will prove distressing, I'm afraid."

She remained standing. "Well get on with it," she jerked. "What's it all about?"

"It concerns your husband's death. Information received leads me to believe it was not due to natural causes, therefore——"

"Not natural——? My husband's death? Here, what is it you're trying to say?"

An embarrassing, yes, a most awkward business. Mrs. Boldre seemed so extraordinarily dense. Even when he had explained twice over, in infant school language, she still wore the same uncomprehending frown.

"Post mortem? No! I won't hear of it. Why, you're mad! The whole idea's horrible——"

"Painful, I agree, but please understand the decision, unfortunately, doesn't rest with you. Can I persuade you that opposition on your part is only a rather futile barrier in the execution of justice?"

Blindly, she sank down on the chair Headcorn had drawn forward. Like a rude mannered, unintelligent child she sat there, obstinately tearing her moist handkerchief into small shreds. When the inspector quitted her she seemed not to notice he was gone, her fingers still making those hard, vicious jerks.

Sergt. Budworth, at the lodge gates, greeted his superior's remarks with a grin.

"A good looker, all the same," he observed, "and can she ride? Did she answer any questions about the tall, blond sportsman?"

"I didn't ask any. What concerns us just now is that Boldre, according to her and the butler, was never attended by any doctor except Blount, and that never, to her knowledge or the butler's, was he unconscious, barring the single occasion on Glover's ground."

"Yes, but what about his getting blind?"

"That wouldn't serve. Ladbroke assures me it wouldn't, and I'm inclined to agree. Actually, I understand Boldre never passed out from drink. He drank lavishly, like all these people, but he had a strong head. You would have to be absolutely comatose not to know when a thick needle was jabbed into you."

Pat, meanwhile, had rung for a stiff whisky. She was holding the drained tumbler in her hand when her sister and Alison walked in with Derek. Under their amused stares she rose, unsteady, and with a fixed, glazed scowl.

"Tom," she muttered, her voice oddly stifled.

Wynn studied her with hard irony and said, "Pat, you're tight."

It was Alison who took a quick step forward to rescue the sticky glass from its insecure clutch. "What's happened?" she whispered.

"Happened!" Pat gave a sudden, cracked laugh. "They're going to open Tom's grave. Some lunatic thinks he was murdered."

"Tom murdered?" gasped Wynn.

Pat was making discordant noises, but now they dried up as brusquely as they had begun, and the room held a dead hush.

Derek didn't drop the decanter he had picked up. He set it down carefully, yet its faint ting as it touched the oak table had all the force of a pistol shot.

Wynn found voice. "Exhume Tom? But why?"

"I've told you. Some fool says——"

"Who says what? Here, Pat, look at me! Not—poisoned?"

"Call it that, I suppose. They think it was anti-tetanus. Some rigamarole about his having two doses—and the second one killing him. It's nonsense, of course, but I can't stop them."

"Two——?" Wynn looked at Derek and back at her sister. "Pat! Do you think——?" she gripped the black sleeved arm.

Pat tore away from her. "How do I know? If old Blount says it . . . O, leave go, blast you! I want my bath."

Silence again as Pat, lurching very slightly, clumped up the stairs in her draped riding skirt. Alison grew conscious of the heavy scent of the hyacinths in the room, of the mingling of stale smoke and the whisky fumes from the tumbler still clasped in her hand.

Wynn muttered, "We weren't here, of course," and raked stiff fingers through her curls. She added, "Pat would never know a—a thing like that. I've heard of it, though. That is, I know it could happen." She sought aid of Derek. "Who?" she demanded. "And if Blount had this idea, why has he waited till now to speak of it?"

No answer. More insistently Wynn said, "Derek! Did you know Tom was given any injection?"

Derek shook his head. For the first time he stirred, with effort, as though his whole wire drawn body had grown numb.

"I'd better find out." Without looking at them he left the house.

Rooted in the same spot, Wynn picked at the hard knot of her tie. "That was what your inspector wanted," she remarked presently. "You remember his car passed us in the road."

Alison could bear no more. Colin's part she could hide, but not hers. She burst out, "O, Wynn, it's my doing, all of this! Let me tell you."

Her story rushed out, thorough, detailed.

A pause, and then Wynn spoke in tones, level, understanding.

"Of course. Don't be stupid. Do you think I blame you? He was bound to find certain things out. But there's no reason," she continued, "to hand any of this on to Pat."

"No," said Alison quickly. "And for that matter I shall go home—now. On the night train."

Child Wants to Beg Off from Irksome Job

By GLADYS HUNTINGTON BEVANS.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

"I don't know why it is, mother, but I hate to do dishes. Couldn't I do the bathroom and the hall instead, Mother? I'll get them done by the time Granny's and Grandpa's train is due."

"No, dear, it's the dishes I want done. That's what will help me most—and the only way it will help is if they're done right now. I need both tables to get the pies ready on."

"But, Mother——"

"Jane, do you really want to help me?"

"Yes, of course I do——"

"Then, do the dishes."

"Well—all right, Mother—but I do seem to hate dishes like——" and the end of the sentence was lost in the clatter of the beginning of Jane's job.

Did you ever think, as a grown-up, of how many things we have to do that we dislike doing? And did you, also, likewise, ever think of how completely inescapable they are? To be sure some of us are more fortunate than others, and can reduce these unpleasant things to a minimum. But even at that we all have to do some things we dislike intensely.

The housewife may love homemaking, but it has its trying side. The artist may have a passion for painting or for sculpture, but the expression in each medium carries its drudgery.

The business man may be absorbed in his work, but it may be full of detail or conferences that he abhors.

While I am not at all a disciplinarian in the usual sense of the word, I think it is a fact of life that it is wholesome for children to realize a little that certain things have to be done whether we like doing them or not, and that the sporting thing is to do them with as little fuss as possible.

It is rather bracing, morally, for a child to have some one put it into words: "I know you dislike chopping wood—or sweeping the porch—or writing that thank-you letter—or clearing up your work table. I know, because I have to do lots of things I dislike, too. But it's got to be done. So, just do it as well and as quickly as you can, and don't waste your energy thinking how much you dislike it. Just do it."

"Building Truthfulness" is a leaflet applicable to all ages. Send a large, stamped, addressed envelope for it. Address Mrs. Gladys Bevans, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago, Ill.

Ideal for Christmas Gifts

WOMAN'S AND MISS' LINGERIE ENSEMBLE.

We know that the leaves are still turning russet with the touch of autumn, but we also know that the few weeks before Christmas can find you mighty unprepared if you don't do something sensible now. We suggest that you begin making lingerie gifts immediately. Every woman you know will love such a present. This pattern fashions a gown and matching or contrasting jacket. The gown is beautifully tailored, the jacket full and comfortable. Even the rank amateur can make these garments, which may be given singly or as an ensemble.

Style No. 3117 is designed for sizes 12, 14 and 16, and 36, 38, 40, 42, 44 and 46 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3½ yards of 39 inch material for the gown, with 2 yards of lace; 1½ yards for the jacket, with ¼ yard of lace.

Address orders for Clotilde patterns to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY, including 10 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be sure to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

The season's smartest modes are presented in the fall and winter edition of the Chicago Tribune Book of Clotilde Fashions, on sale now at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower, for 15 cents; 10 cents if ordered with a pattern. Address mail orders to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central annex, NEW YORK CITY.

TO READERS WHO WRITE IN FOR COOKING INFORMATION: Please don't forget to inclose the stamped, self-addressed envelope, and please make it a big envelope, if you can. At any rate, don't send the tiny kind, for often we can't squeeze the recipes we have for you into such a small space.

Also, please don't drop postcards asking to see a certain recipe on such and such a date. Our copy schedule is made out in advance, and it isn't often that we can slip in a requested recipe. We'd rather send it to you directly in the stamped, addressed envelope.

Third "please" is this: Please don't expect an answer by return mail. We attend to "rush" requests as soon as possible, but we get lots of mail, and it goes through another department before it gets to us. If you want help in planning party food don't wait until the week of the party to write if you can do so before.

By the way, we like to hear what you think of this column. If you'd like recipes or information on certain cookery subjects which we haven't covered recently we're glad to have your suggestions.

On the House

A practical idea for a first floor bedroom . . . a corner window of glass brick, or an alcove walled with glass block. . . . This provides abundant daylight and at the same time solves the problem of too little privacy. . . . This use of glass block is also being incorporated into kitchen walls and breakfast nook retreats.

Glass block can be employed in a bathroom.

Pre-Marital Jitters Are Common Ill

BY DORIS BLAKE.

[Copyright: 1939: News Syndicate Co., Inc.]

Is there a doctor in the house? We seem to need him for a couple of bad cases of premarriage jitters. It's not an uncommon malady, by any means, sometimes appearing only in a mild form such as fumbling for the ring at the ceremony or weeping vague, unreasonable tears at the altar, but the two letters I have on hand sound like dying wails of two hopelessly condemned creatures.

I don't mean to make fun, for the letters are really in earnest. The people, hundreds of miles apart, unknown to each other, are pouring out common fear.

Here's the girl's story: "I'm almost 20. For four years I've been going with a nice boy, 23 years old. I was extremely fond of him until last Monday, when he gave me my engagement ring. Since then I have been so worried that I can't sleep, eat, or work, and now I don't know whether or not I love him.

"My mother says I should get married in view of our long courtship, and then again she says, if I am not sure, it isn't safe to marry. I can't seem to make up my mind."

But the young man, Warren, similarly stricken, has a problem that's all tied up with honor and gentlemanly conduct. He hasn't the recourse of walking out on the girl without feeling like a cad. He, too, asks for aid.

"I have never in my 30 years of life been puzzled with a problem so complicated and torturing. It is a year now that I have kept company with a girl. I met her family and she met mine. I thought I loved her and a few months ago we became engaged, but now there is doubt in my mind. What should I do?"

Why be such alarmists? What actual basis has either of you for a change of heart? Is it reasonable to suspect that your mates-to-be could change character so radically after such long courtships? They're just the same Bill and the same Mary you've always known. If you've loved them up until now, why should the engagement ring put a cloud over the romance?

I'll grant that marriage is a serious business, but you should have looked upon it that way before the engagement announcements were printed. People so troubled should take a run out into the country and be all alone for several days, by way of proving that the love is still there.

According to CULBERTSON

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

The average player looks on the expert, particularly on the "national master," as some one who tries to sit on Olympus and, never admitting his own fallibility, gazes down patronizingly, sometimes scornfully, on the mere mortals below. This is not a fair commentary on most masters. Far from considering themselves perfect, they often publicly denounce themselves as idiots and morons. Indeed, the expert is a great deal less complacent about his errors than one finds the average player to be. One of the leading midwestern experts offered to "jump out of the window" because of the way he had played the following hand:

North, dealer.
Both sides vulnerable.

♦ A 4

WEST	EAST
♠ None	♠ Q 9 7 3
♥ K Q 10 8 6	♥ A J 9 7 5
♦ Q J 7	♦ K 6
♣ J 9 6 4 3	♣ 8 7

SOUTH
♠ A K J 5 4
♦ 10 9 8 5 3 2

North	East	South	West
1 club	1 heart	1 spade	4 hearts
4 spades	Pass	Pass	Pass

West opened the heart king and continued with the queen. Declarer ruffed and laid down the spade ace. He was only a little disturbed when the trump situation was revealed, at least the four trumps to the queen were on his right, where they would be less annoying than in West's hand. With no clew as to the division of the diamonds, declarer decided to "feel out" the hand a bit by running a few rounds of clubs. There was no danger in this inasmuch as he always would be able to overruff East if the latter interrupted the club running by trumping in. East did trump the third round of clubs and declarer had to use the spade jack to overruff the seven spot. Now a diamond was led to the ace and the diamond four returned. East won, and although he now had the Q-9 of spades over dummy's 10-8, boldly and shrewdly [as it turned out] exited with the spade nine. Declarer, to use his own words, "was so bewitched with the idea of catching the spade queen that he let the nine run around to the ten and then suddenly realized, with a sick feeling under his midriff, that he had thrown away the game." Because now he was securely locked in dummy with the diamond suit one all important trick from establishment. If he took out his own last trump to capture East's queen, he could lead a diamond and ruff out West's queen, but never would be able to return to his own hand, and dummy would be left with two losing clubs. If, on the other hand, he used his spade king to ruff one of dummy's clubs, then he eventually would have to concede the queen of trumps and the fifth club. Squirm as he might, after "successfully" taking the trump finesse so blandly offered him by East, he was doomed to defeat.

As the expert declarer was the first to admit and point out, the contract would have been on ice if he had disdained the opportunity to capture East's spade queen. He should have won East's spade nine with the king in his own hand and ruffed a diamond in dummy. East could overruff, but South's diamonds then would be set up and he would have the five of spades left as entry. If East refused to overruff, a club would be led from dummy. If East trumped that, declarer would retain the spade five with which to ruff dummy's remaining club; if East discarded on dummy's club lead, South would ruff with his five spot and lead one of his established diamonds, on which dummy's last club could be thrown. In any case, East could take no trick except the spade queen.

The declarer sadly wrote: "I never have seen a hand played worse by anybody who had been playing bridge longer than a week." I feel that he has castigated himself too severely. Thousands of good players would have made his play, but at least his self-abuse proves that all experts do not look upon themselves as superhuman.

RESUME WORLD SERIES TODAY; CUBS LEAD SOX, 2 TO 1

GOMEZ FACES GENE THOMPSON IN THIRD GAME

Yankees Confident; Reds Desperate.

BY IRVING VAUGHAN.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Cincinnati, O., Oct. 6.—The world series stage, on which the villainous American league Yankees strutted so successfully in New York, was set up here today and by noon tomorrow everything will be in readiness for the third act in the 1939 baseball extravaganza.

Vernon Gomez.

Gene Thompson.

Come what may, the Yankees will be ready. They're never any other way, whether it's regular season toil or series competition. But in the first two acts the Reds, currently challenging the American league's tough guys, forgot their lines. They not only stammered, but stumbled and whether they can rally, now that they have been disheartened by their futile efforts, is doubtful.

In two days the Reds saw a team that was strong in every particular, whether it was hitting, fielding, running, or thinking. And the Rhinelanders aren't comforted any by the thought that they haven't found out thus far just what the Yankees might do with their bats if really pressed.

The Reds Seem Powerless.

The little the Reds have done as hitters in two games indicates that anybody with enough strength to stand on the mound for nine innings could whip them.

Manager Joe McCarthy, now in his fourth successive year of making fairly good picks for world series pitching jobs, revealed his mound program for tomorrow as soon as the perennial world champions had visited the Reds' field. When yesterday's 4 to 0 decisive battle was ended McCarthy declared he was in doubt. He said it either would be Vernon [Lefty] Gomez, winner of six world series games without a defeat, or Oral Hildebrand, the fiery tempered right hander. The nominee is Señor Gomez.

The left handed señor hasn't been feeling very chipper, hence the doubt about giving him employment. In a recent game he clipped on the mound and pulled some muscles in his right side, but today, even though his side is encased in a layer of adhesive tape, he thought he felt right well and to prove it did a little throwing while the other Yankees were engaged in getting the range on the Crosley field fences.

It's Up to Young Gene.

The task of holding the dreaded Yankee assault in check tomorrow will be placed on the 22 year old shoulders of Gene Thompson. He's only a freshman but he filled in so often this season when the pennant road became a bit rocky for the Reds that Manager Bill McKechnie professes to believe that what the kid lacks in experience is made up by an abundance of courage.

Just to show his faith in the lad, McKechnie didn't call on either Derringer or Bucky Walters for the inaugural of last week's series with the Cardinals. The latter were closing in on the Reds with a threat to nose them out of the National league flag. The first game of the four game series was the big one. If the Reds won it, the remainder of the journey would be easy. Thompson pitched that game and won it, although hit hard and a bit careless about the number of passes he issued. He'll need control tomorrow.

Fans Forgive Everything.

When the Reds came home from their sorrowful venture this morning they were led to suspect that maybe censorship was in effect here. Maybe the news from New York had been kept out of circulation. As a matter of fact the townspeople really knew their heroes had been clipped on the chin twice, but nevertheless the faithful thousands were present to extend a welcoming hand. They were at the depot to see the Reds unload. They lined the main streets. Bands played while the Reds paraded. The mayor and some other fellows made speeches. The theme of all was "We aren't beaten yet." That isn't what the Yankees think.

CUBS REFUSE TO FOLD UP; PUNISH WHITE SOX, 4-2

North Siders Take 2-1 Lead in City Series.

BY EDWARD BURNS.

Benevolent baseball fans are being urged to attend today's game in Wrigley field, fourth of the city series and the last in which the poor ball players share. Moreover, attendance will be something more than a charitable deed. A good ball game is in prospect, what with Lefty Edgar Smith battling to even the series for the Sox and Claude Passeau striving to duplicate Bill Lee's swell job yesterday, a performance which enabled the Cubs to take the lead in the series by winning, 4 to 2.

Those two Lee boys, Bill and Thornton, both pitched well in yesterday's game, but, after earning a 2 to 0 lead, the Sox found themselves helpless against Bill's crackling curves. During the Sox's span of helplessness, the Cubs kept pecking away at Thornton at the rate of a run an inning in the fifth, sixth and seventh innings for a victory total, then added one run as insurance at the expense of Bill Dietrich in the eighth.

Big Bill Is Too Good.

The Sox, who acquired a batting average of .324 in the first two games, made six hits off Bill Lee in the first five innings yesterday, but added only two more after the Cub offense turned on the heat. The Cubs' move from behind seemed to panic the Sox batsmen after the fifth. The net was the reduction of the Sox team batting average for the series to .299.

Kuhel's double, followed by Appling's single, Luke's second hit of the series, produced the first run of the game in the first inning. Kuhel thus continued as the batting demon of the series, statistically at least. Joe has made a home run, three doubles, and two singles and has walked twice. He has scored four runs and driven in six. His batting mark is .500, topping every Sox and Cub who has played throughout the series.

Cubs Keep Pecking Away.

The Sox counted their second run yesterday in the fourth inning when Appling singled, McNair walked, and Walker rolled a single past Bartell.

Bill Lee walked to set up the first Cub score in the fifth. He stole second and went home on Hack's single. The tying run in the sixth grew from Augie Galan's single, Reynolds' double, and Glen Russell's infield out. Hack doubled in the seventh and came in with the winning run on a single by Bill Herman. Gabby Hartnett's hit in the ninth was followed by an infield out and a hit by Bartell to produce a useless run.

I'm just back in town again
After searching home in vain
For a football player with a wad of kale;
I must find a big brave man
Of some fighting Gallic clan
Who can lick his weight in wildcats without fail.

How the girls at home will cackle
When they hear I've snared a tackle,
Even though his nose should cover all his face;
Though his neck be built in tiers
And his cauliflower ears
Should be thought a most unfortunate disgrace.

Can you understand my thrill
When we're seated in a grill
After he has mopped the field with Podunk college,
And my girl friends happen by
Realizing he's the guy
Who has cornered all the extant football knowledge?

I hope folks won't think me vain
When he toasts me in champagne
And proclaims that I'm the idol of his dreams;
And I hope they'll like his clothes,
Although everybody knows
That his awful bulk is bursting all the seams.

75,000 to See Michigan Face Michigan State

BY ARCH WARD.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Ann Arbor, Mich., Oct. 6.—There was no blackout in Ann Arbor tonight, despite the fact that the enemy was encamped only a few miles outside the city's walls.

On the contrary, the town was ablaze. The flames from a huge bonfire in Ferry field, where 8,000 men and women pledged their loyalty to Michigan's football squad, painted the sky in brilliant hues for all to see.

Coach Fritz Crisler of course, won't admit it, but in popular estimation this is the year Michigan will regain its old position of conqueror of the west.

75,000 to See Game.

Students predict that after tomorrow's game with Michigan State there will be whispers about Michigan and a Big Ten championship. A few weeks later they'll be talking about it and after the Ohio State game in mid-November, they'll be yelling it.

The largest opening day crowd in 1939 football will see State, winner in four of the last five games, test the Wolverines' conference potentialities. Fielding H. Yost estimates the attendance at 75,000.

Coach Crisler, wary of what he calls "September championships," calls attention to Michigan's lack of reserves, especially up front where games are won or lost. His first string line is adequate, but he doesn't expect to survive a Big Ten campaign without casualties.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Notre Dame, Ind., Oct. 6.—Georgia Tech's football team, which will battle the Fighting Irish of Notre Dame in the latter's stadium tomorrow, has been suspected of boasting a highly deceptive offense more than once. The Irish acquired considerable first hand knowledge of that last year at Atlanta, when the Yellow Jackets sparred and shadow boxed almost the full rout before losing, 14 to 6.

The Jackets apparently do not confine their unpredictable maneuvers to the gridiron, as was revealed today. Advices from Atlanta indicated that they would arrive in Elkhart this morning. Elkhart sources revealed no traces of the southern squad, but an alert sleuth discovered that their approach would be a double reverse, bringing them to Niles, Mich., in the afternoon.

Coach Bill Alexander and the Techs rolled up to the Notre Dame stadium in orthodox fashion this afternoon, went through their final workout, and then returned to Niles for the evening.

Their Style Still Complex.

It is significant that this arrival reflects the complexity of Georgia Tech's football style, as was borne out by observers of last year's game in Atlanta. The Irish defense had a hard time all that afternoon attempting to cope with the intricate variety of plays thrown at them. They would assay a routine forward pass, then follow it up with the statue of liberty curio, after which anything from a spinner to a shovel pass might follow.

Coach Alexander has one of the most versatile men in the south in Neil [Hawk] Cavette of Memphis, Tenn. Hawk played quarter back against Notre Dame, then was a prime factor as a tackle in the Alabama game, wherein the latter had to come from behind to earn a 14-14 tie. Cavette will be at left guard tomorrow, but is expected to be dropped back to handle the longer kicks.

Tech Back Field Intact.

Georgia Tech brings its 1938 back field intact. Capt. Buck Murphy will play quarter, Bobby Beers left half, Billy Gibson right half, and Howard Ector full. Joe Bartlett of Asheville, N. C., whom Layden recalls as one of Tech's hardest running 1938 backs, is listed as a left end in the visiting troupe.

Notre Dame plans to send out the same team which opened against Purdue last week. Steve Sitko will be at quarter, Bob Saggau at left half, Lou Zontini at right half, and Joe Thesing at full. The inclusion of Saggau is the brightest piece of news on the Irish campus. Bob suffered a cramp in his right leg in the third quarter of the Purdue game and had to be helped from the field in such a manner that it was thought something more dire than a cramp had taken place. Treatment by Trainer Scrap Young soon relieved the condition and the Iowa redhead has been gallivanting all over Cartier field in the week's practice drills.

Angott Beats Davey Day in 10 Round Bout

Fight Decisions

At Chicago Stadium—Sammy Angott beat Davey Day [10], Eddie Dempsey and Leone Efrati drew [10], Johnny Janis beat Jack Jersey [4], Alex Kettles beat Altus Allen [6]; Toney Motisi beat Johnny Durso [6]; Tony Zale stopped Sherman Edwards [3]; Verle Davis knocked out Johnny Williams [1].

BY FRANK MASTRO.

Sammy Angott, Louisville, Ky., slugger, displaced Davey Day as No. 1 welterweight challenger by winning a split decision over the Chicago boxer in a ten round fight in Chicago Stadium last night. Referee Tommy Gilmore voted 52-48 and Judge Ed Klein 53-47 for Angott, but William Battye, the other judge, scored for Day, 52-48. The decision was popular.

It was Angott's fourteenth consecutive victory and Day's first defeat in seventeen Chicago appearances. Angott weighed 135 pounds, Day 136½.

When the decision was announced Sam Pian, one of Day's managers, voiced a protest with Chairman Joe Triner and Commissioners Sheldon Clark and James R. Fitzpatrick of the Illinois boxing board.

Dempsey, Efrati Draw.

Angott scored points in each of the first three rounds. Day landed a right to the jaw in the fourth. Angott came back in the next round, however, and continued the good work in the sixth, but in the seventh and eighth Day handed him a beating. Angott came back to take the ninth. They both slugged in the tenth, with honors about even.

In the ten round semi-final Eddie Dempsey, 1938 Golden Gloves featherweight titleholder, fought to a draw with Leone Efrati of Italy. It was a grudge match. In two previous meetings Efrati scored a decision and was held to a deadlock.

Verle Davis, Kankakee welterweight, knocked out Johny Williams of Danville in the first round of a match listed for six rounds.

A crowd of 8,185 paid a gross gate of $17,856. Net receipts were $14,880.

Kettles Beats Allen.

Promoter Bill Rand said his next show is scheduled for Nov. 3. Max Baer, former heavyweight champion, and Bob Nestell are sought for the 10 round headliner.

Tony Zale, Gary middleweight, stopped Sherman Edwards in three rounds. Tony Motisi, welterweight, defeated Johnny Durso in a six round event. Motisi scored a knockdown in the third round.

Alex Kettles, South Bend, whipped Altus Allen, 1939 Chicago Golden Gloves light heavyweight champion, in the first of four six round matches. Allen was down for a six count in the third round. In the opening contest of four rounds Johnny Janis, Brighton Park heavyweight, pounded out a decision over Jack Jersey of St. Paul.

BY WILFRID SMITH.

Northwestern's football squad, with one month's preparation ended, meets the University of Oklahoma this afternoon in Dyche stadium in the initial test of a season which may find the Wildcats ruling the Western conference.

The basis of this expectation is a veteran line. The uncertainties consist of inexperience in the back field, principally at right half back, and some doubt as to capability of replacements for the end positions.

Northwestern officials expect a crowd of 40,000, which will include 10,000 Boy Scouts and school children. The kickoff is scheduled for 2 o'clock.

Oklahoma Has Fine Record.

Oklahoma's team, unbeaten in its last 16 games and defending champion of the Bix Six conference, arrived yesterday morning. The Oklahoma coach, Tom Stidham, until 1935 an assistant at Northwestern, and Lynn Waldorf, Northwestern coach, spoke at noon yesterday before the Northwestern Alumni club. The Sooners practiced in Dyche stadium in the afternoon and were followed by the Wildcat varsity.

Coach Waldorf announced yesterday that two sophomores would start for Northwestern, Floyd Chambers, 172 pound right half back from Salt Lake City, Utah, and Don Clawson, 218 pound full back from Kankakee, Ill., are the new men. Ike Kepford, sophomore from Muskegon, Mich., who has had a slight rating over Chambers in practice, will not open the game because of a side injury. This will not prevent him from playing, however, if he is needed.

Ollie Hahnenstein, who led the Wildcats in ground gaining last season, opens at left half back. Among other sophomores who will get a chance to appear for approval are Alf Bauman, seeking the right tackle position, now manned by Corne Aarts, and Bill DeCorrevont, left half back.

Star Is a Sophomore.

Bob Daly, veteran right end, has been named captain for the Oklahoma game.

The headliner of the Sooners is Sophomore Jack Jacobs, an Indian boy from Muskogee, Okla. When he is not in the lineup, his position is taken by another sophomore, Orville Matthews. Oklahoma, however, depends on an experienced line, four of whom are seniors and two juniors, Waddy Young, All-American right end, a superior pass receiver, who was a member of The Tribune All-Star team, has been replaced by Frank Ivy, a senior, Young's substitute last season. At the other end is another senior, John Shirk, 6 feet 4 inches tall, from Oklahoma City.

Harold Lahar, right tackle, and Gil Duggan, left tackle, are listed at 215 and 211 pounds, respectively. Duggan is a senior. Ralph Harris, only sophomore in the line, will be at left guard. His weight is 225 pounds. The other guard, Ralph Stevenson, is a senior. Clifton Speagle, center, is a junior.

Five thousand general admission seats will be placed on sale at the stadium today. The prices are $1.50 for adults and 40 cents for children.

BIMELECH AND ANDY K. HEAD FUTURITY FIELD

Only Seven to Start in $75,000 Race.

New York, Oct. 6 [Special].—The smallest Belmont Futurity field in 50 years will come down the Widener straightaway tomorrow in the $75,000 event. Only seven juveniles, all colts, were named for the six and a half furlong sprint.

E. R. Bradley's undefeated Bimelech ruled the favorite at even money, while Millsdale stable's Andy K. is held at 8 to 5. The other entrants are Marshall Field's Barnet, Manhasset stable's Call to Colors, Twin Oak farm's Ekwanok, J. H. Whitney's Calory, and William Jeffords' Rolls.

Entries on the 1939 Futurity closed Jan. 4, 1937, with 1,074 nominations.

Between them, Bimelech and Andy K. have won the season's most important juvenile stakes, and if either is in front at the end of this dash he rightfully may claim the two year old championship of 1939, together with a high ranking in the 1940 Kentucky Derby future book.

Andy K. won the Arlington Futurity and triumphed easily over the same track and distance in the Champagne stakes a week ago. He has not finished out of the money in eight starts. Bimelech, unbeaten in four races, won the rich Hopeful at Saratoga, finishing a half length in front of Andy K. and off that race has been made the choice tomorrow.

2 Day Springer Spaniel Trial to Start Today

BY BOB BECKER.

Springer spaniels which have had months of training on live game command the attention of sportsmen this morning when the first stake of the annual field trial held by the English Springer Spaniel Field Trial Club of Illinois is run northwest of Chicago. Well trained hunting spaniels from New York, Ohio, Wisconsin, Michigan, and Illinois will compete in this two day trial, which continues through tomorrow.

Today the puppy and shooting dog stakes will be run on the F. L. Bateman farm a few miles west of Barrington. Motorists driving to the trials are advised to use highway 62 in reaching the grounds. By continuing northwest on 62 past the intersection of highways 62, 63, and 59, southwest of Barrington, motorists will see the field trial grounds, which are at the intersection of the Bateman road and highway 62.

Tomorrow the open age stake will be run on the Paul Magnuson licensed pheasant preserve a few miles southwest of Barrington. Motorists will see the field trial grounds by taking highway 63 past the intersection of 59, 63, and 62, a few miles southwest of Barrington.

Four expert shots will act as the official guns of the trial. The list includes Ray Larson, Eltinge Warner of New York, Ernest Wunderlich, and Ferd Bunte, president of the Midwest Field Trial club.

With a total entry of 48 springer spaniels in this trial, including 20 in the open all age stake, which carries points toward a championship and also for the annual Field and Stream cup and national award, this trial is the largest springer spaniel trial ever held in the central states.

MARTIN TAKES JOCKEY LEAD AT SPORTSMAN'S

T. P. Martin, the lank Chicago veteran whose following expands when the horses move over on the Sportsman's Park half mile oval, continued to set a fast pace yesterday as he brought in two winners and placed with three mounts. The winners, Ducmiss in the first and Satin Rolls in the third, both favorites, put him in front of the Sportsman jockies.

Royal Blue, ridden by Bob Haber, who was completing a consecutive double, won the day's feature race, a five furlong dash for three year olds and upward. Royal Blue led all the way, finishing with 1½ lengths on Xanthein, ridden by Martin. Royal Blue, the favorite, paid $6.20, $3.60, and $2.80.

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Iowa City, Ia., Oct. 6.—Rosy cheeked co-eds and self-conscious young men were ushering proud old gentlemen about this busy little town tonight, for tomorrow is Dad's day on the University of Iowa football scnedule.

Come 2 o'clock, the dads will sit in as honored guests at the Big Ten debut of Iowa's new coach, Dr. Eddie Anderson, and its revitalized eleven against Indiana in the first Western conference game of the season.

By nightfall, barring a tie, one of the rivals will be in first place in the Big Ten. Its tenure there will be brief, probably only a week, but it will be an exciting experience while it lasts, for not often in recent years has either of these teams been enough of a factor in a Big Ten race to merit even first division consideration.

Indiana Brings 35 Men.

Coach Bo McMillin brought 35 Indiana players to nearby Cedar Rapids late today, where after a short workout, they were bedded down for the night. Couriers from Cedar Rapids pronounced the Hoosiers a confident lot, encouraged by the return of their regular right half back, Clee Maddox, and the possibility that Russ Higginbotham, regular left end, would be able to play part of the game.

Iowa faces the game without its regular quarter back and with multiple incentives. Al Coupee, a sophomore who directed the victorious attack against South Dakota last week, remained in the hospital this morning receiving treatment for an infected foot. He said he would play, but physicians still withheld permission. If he cannot take his place in the back field, Bill Gallagher, an excellent blocker and capable ball handler, will start, and Nile Kinnick, one of the Big Ten's outstanding backs, will assume the last offensive burden spared him. He will call signals.

Two Incentives for Iowa.

Iowa's incentives range from personal to the historic. The Hawkeyes are determined to deliver for their coaches, who have made football at Iowa a pleasure for the first time in several seasons. There is also the matter of the record. Iowa has scored only two conference victories in the $500,000 stadium, dedicated in 1929. The last was on Oct. 21, 1934.

The Hawkeyes' final rehearsal this afternoon again stressed defense. Anderson is more concerned over Indiana's passing attack than over the ground gaining ability of Red Zimmer, right half, and Full Back Joe Tofil.

Madison, Wis., Oct. 6.—The Wisconsin football team has regained its balance since last Saturday's unsteady performance against Marquette and now is ready to resume the uphill march which began two years ago when a new athletic régime took control. Tomorrow's engagement with the University of Texas will give considerable information on the part the Badgers are likely to play in the forthcoming Big Ten campaign.

Last year the Badgers brought strong influence to bear upon the final standings by defeating three of their five opponents. In opening the present season with the entire right side of their old team missing, they appeared a bit shaky, beating Marquette by the margin of only a point after touchdown. They've been working better during the last few days and their followers are confident that no Texas player will get loose for an 85 yard punt return the way Jim Richardson of Marquette did last Saturday.

Coach Called Away.

In their preparation for the game, the Badgers were handicapped by the absence of Coach Harry Stuhldreher who was called to Massillon, O., by the death of his father. He returned yesterday.

The Badgers will go into the Texas game with two changes in the starting lineup—Bob Peterson in place of George Paskvan at full back and Claude York at quarter instead of Fred Gage. Tony Gradisnik and Billy Schmitz, each of whom threw touchdown passes which beat Marquette, will complete the starting back field. Gradisnik was hurt last Saturday but he is expected to be ready for action tomorrow. Paskvan and Gage will be replacements for Peterson and York.

From a defensive standpoint, the Badgers are particularly concerned about Jack Crain, 165 pound Texas half back. Coach Dana Bible will send a heavy, fast charging line onto the field, including two unusually sturdy tackles — 224 pound Park Myers and 220 pound Don Williams. Texas showed considerable strength in winning its opening game from Florida last week, 12 to 0.

Stuhldreher Hunts Spark.

Many followers of the Badgers are inclined to think that in shuffling the back field Stuhldreher is looking for an aggressive, level headed leader who will be able to get spark and coördination into the team's attack. He's hunting for capable blocking backs, too, as the way wasn't being cleared effectively for the ball carriers in last Saturday's game. After making first down on the Marquette 4 yard line, the Badgers were forced to pass for the touchdown.

At least 35,000 are expected in Camp Randall stadium for the game, though quite a few of them will be high school students who will be guests of the university.

GOPHERS FACE HUSKERS

Lincoln, Neb., Oct. 6 [Special].—Minnesota's football team comes here tomorrow for its 21st meeting with Nebraska. The only pall cast on this year's renewal of the long rivalry is the weather man's prediction of occasional rain. Both squads are at full strength, the Gophers coming through the Arizona game without injury. The Cornhuskers have no holdover hurts from the Indiana contest.

Minnesota Wins 15.

In the 20 games which the two teams have played, Minnesota has won 15, Nebraska three, and two were tied.

Among the 33,000 who will see the game are several thousand Minnesotans. Ten special trains will bring fans from the Twin Cities, Kansas City, Denver, Scotts Bluff, and Omaha.

The Cornhuskers' chief hope tomorrow is the right arm of Herman Rohrig who completed six out of 13 passes against Indiana. He has been hitting the receivers well in practice this week.

Marquette Loses, 3-0, to Kansas State

Milwaukee, Wis., Oct. 6 [Special].—A sixteen yard placekick by Left Half Back Jim Brock enabled Kansas State to defeat Marquette university, 3 to 0, before 15,000 tonight. Brock's kick climaxed a seventy-five yard march by the Big Six conference Wildcats in the fourth quarter.

Marquette failed on a chance to score shortly afterward when Bill Phillips ran back the kickoff fifty-seven yards to Kansas State's 27 yard line. A pass from Jimmy Richardson to Phillips was good to the 16 yard line, but the Hilltopper's passing attack bogged down.

75,000 to See Michigan Face Michigan State

shevski, all juniors, and Bob Westfall, a sophomore full back, comprise a potent quartet, but they'll have to be good to equal the achievements of Willie Heston, Tom Hammond, Shorty Longman, and Boss Weeks of Fielding Yost's point-a-minute days.

Michigan State, which is spending the night at Dearborn, is certain to miss the services of John Pingel, left half back, who was a member of this year's All-Star squad. Pingel's individual brilliance was largely responsible for the Spartans' victories over the Maize and Blue in 1936 and 1937. It is significant, however, that Coach Charles Bachman is doing no public weeping over his team's 1939 prospects.

Spartans Have Strong Line.

State has a sophomore left half back from Detroit named Duane Crosthwaite, who is said to have as much natural talent as Pingel showed as a sophomore. Held to a scoreless tie for three quarters by Wayne last Saturday, the Spartans ran wild when Crosthwaite entered the game.

Michigan whipped State, 14 to 0, last year, due mainly to marked superiority at tackles, but the Spartans' weakness in those positions is reported to have disappeared. Bachman has four tackles who he believes will hold their own in any competition. Among them is Les Bruckner, 202 pounder, who was shifted from quarter back, where he has performed for two years. Bruckner plans to become a coach after his graduation and he asked to be shifted to a line job so he might acquaint himself more thoroughly with the duties there. State is well manned at all other line positions and if it defeats Michigan tomorrow credit for the victory undoubtedly will belong to the forwards.

Maroons Try Again Against Wabash Today

The University of Chicago's football team enters its game with Wabash college on Stagg field today, intent on making none of the slips which might mean its second defeat by a small institution in eight days. The game will start at 2 o'clock.

Almost any football team would consider a game with a minor league adversary one week before an intersectional contest with a top flight team just a breather, but there is nothing light hearted in the Maroons' approach to the Wabash game. Chicago meets Harvard next week.

Concentration, however, may not be enough to overcome the Little Giants from Crawfordsville, Ind. Although Bob Wasem, the Maroons' great end, has recovered from his hip injury and can start, Chicago will be minus the services of Dave Wiedemann, its outstanding regular tackle, who was hurt Thursday. Four other injuries have sapped the man power of the Midway squad.

Wabash, of course, according to virtually every known index of comparison, would furnish Chicago with a victory. Coach Pete Vaughan has to contend with injuries, too. He is using only 5 of his 14 letter men as starters, while Coach Shaughnessy will use all of his eight Maroon veterans.

Payne Heimbrodt, center, and Tom Ryan, tackle, the only letter men in the Little Giants' starting line, will form the focus of Wabash play. Short on passing, the little Indiana school will depend on the blocking of line men to open running opportunities for its three small but speedy veteran backs, Davy Crockett, Walter Gray, and Bill Sabo.

BEAR SQUAD OF 30 OFF TODAY FOR CLEVELAND GAME

Thirty Chicago Bears will leave this morning at 11:40 o'clock after a short workout for Cleveland where tomorrow they meet the Rams, conquerors of the Green Bay Packers, in a National Football league game.

The Chicago Cardinals will move up to Milwaukee this evening for their annual appearance in the cream city against the Packers. Like the Bear-Cleveland game, tomorrow's contest will conclude the season's series between the two teams.

After a secret workout in the 124th Field Artillery armory yesterday, Coach George Halas announced he would start the regular Bear lineup against Cleveland. The Green Bay upset has moved him to take no chances with the Rams, whose offense has been built into one of the most dangerous attacks in the league by Coach Dutch Clark.

Green Bay will attempt to regain its winning form at the expense of the Cardinals by unleashing a pass attack. The Cardinal line has proved its effectiveness against running attacks by limiting the Detroit Lions to a minimum of yardage.

MILLION DOLLAR SUIT AGAINST SEC MEN IS DISMISSED

Oil Royalties Promoter Plans Appeal.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—The $1,000,000 damage suit brought by J. Edward Jones, New York oil royalties promoter, against members and former members of the Securities and Exchange commission, has been dismissed, the SEC announced today. The action was taken in the District of Columbia federal District court before Federal Judge T. Alan Goldsborough.

J. Edward Jones.

James J. Laughlin of Washington, D. C., counsel for Jones, announced tonight that the suit would be taken to the United States Court of Appeals and argued there as soon as possible on the lower court's finding that the bill of complaint did not contain sufficient evidence that the officials acted beyond their authority.

Persecution Is Alleged.

Jones had charged in his suit, filed May 23, 1938, that SEC officials had committed specific acts of "persecution and tyranny" in connection with a stop-order proceeding instituted by the commission against a registration statement filed by Jones covering a proposed issue of oil royalties.

He based his suit on charges of a malicious conspiracy to injure him through the stop-order proceedings. The Supreme court of the United States upheld Jones' right to withdraw the registration statement in a momentous decision in April, 1936. In his suit, Jones had also charged attempts to suppress his book relating experiences with the commission.

Defendants in Action.

Defendants in the action included Commissioners Robert E. Healy and George C. Mathews, and Joseph P. Kennedy and James M. Landis, both former chairmen of the commission. Kennedy is now American ambassador to London and Landis is the dean of Harvard law school. Other defendants were John J. Burns, former general counsel of the SEC, John L. Flynn, former member of the SEC legal staf, and William H. Rabell, former investigating accountant for the commission.

Jones had charged the commission with persecution after he had criticized the oil policies of Harold L. Ickes, secretary of the interior in his capacity as oil administrator.

MEXICO MAKES NEW OIL-RAYON DEAL WITH ITALY

MEXICO CITY, Oct. 6 (AP).—Mexico has completed a third oil barter deal with Italy whereby it will get 1,000,000 kilograms [about 2,200,000 pounds] of rayon in exchange for petroleum, it was learned tonight.

Previously Italy and Mexico had concluded one deal for $3,000,000 worth of petroleum for three oil tankships now under construction and another for $2,500,000 worth of oil for 3,600,000 kilograms of rayon.

A big increase in oil shipments to Italy had been made since a Mexican-German barter deal was canceled when ships could not be found to carry oil to Germany because of the war.

Cancellation of the deal curtailed Mexico's September oil exports. For the first eight months of 1939 they averaged 1,750,000 barrels monthly and in July reached a peak of 2,440,684 barrels. September exports, an informed source said, would run about 1,250,000 barrels.

COTTON

Cotton prices averaged higher yesterday. Trading was relatively slow. Mills were buyers of the nearby futures while hedging pressure was light. The best prices were not maintained, selling coming into the market after the opening when securities and commodities in general started to react. Closing trades were unchanged to .06 cent a pound higher.

Spot cotton closed .02 to .04 cent higher with New York, 9.19 cents; New Orleans, 9.17 cents; Galveston, 9.64 cents, and Houston at 9.62 cents a pound. Prices follow:

WESTERN RAILS TO BUY 2 NEW STREAMLINERS

Will Replace Older Trains to Coast.

An order authorizing the North Western railway to participate with the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific in the purchase of two de luxe streamlined trains for service between Chicago and the Pacific coast was signed yesterday by Federal Judge John P. Barnes. The other was entered on behalf of Charles M. Thomson, trustee of the North Western.

Charles M. Thomson.

Other transportation agencies, including rail and air lines, yesterday announced equipment purchase plans.

Thomson said the North Western will join with the Union Pacific for the purchase of a train to be operated between Chicago and Los Angeles, and with the Union Pacific and the Southern Pacific for another to be used between Chicago and San Francisco. The North Western's share of the expense will be $700,000.

Will Replace Older Trains.

The two new trains will replace the present City of Los Angeles and the Forty-Niner, which is operated to San Francisco. Operation of two streamlined trains between each of the two cities will be continued.

Each of the new trains will be drawn by 6,000 horse power Diesel-electric locomotives, equal in size to the largest now being operated. They will be built at La Grange by the Electro-Motive corporation.

It is expected the trains will be built by the Pullman-Standard Car Manufacturing company in its Chicago shops. The Los Angeles train will consist of seven cars to be owned by the railroad and seven to be owned and operated by the Pullman company. The San Francisco train will consist of six cars to be owned by the railroads and eight by Pullman.

Sleepers of Latest Type.

The Pullman equipment will be of the latest type and will consist of de luxe sleepers including roomettes, double bedrooms, compartments, double bedrooms and master bedrooms, in addition to sections. Both trains will have coaches.

The dates on which work will be started on the trains and their delivery will be announced later. The two trains they will replace are to be used elsewhere on the systems.

W. A. Patterson, president of United Air Lines, said yesterday the system has budgeted $870,000 for seven Douglas Mainliners to be delivered by April 8. These new 12 ton twin engined transports will comprise five 21 passenger type Mainliners and two sleepers. They will give United a fleet of 60 twin-engine transports.

Top Speed 220 Miles an Hour.

The new planes will be powered by 1,200 horse power Pratt & Whitney engines rated as among the most powerful used in high altitude service. The top speed will be 220 miles an hour. With engines operating at 60 per cent of capacity they will cruise at 190 miles an hour.

The Great Northern railway will buy 1,500 ore cars for spring delivery, F. J. Gavin, president, announced yesterday. The Northern Pacific was reported to be planning to buy or build up to 3,000 more box cars and possibly buy more rail.

The Lackawanna announced that it is in the market for 176 machine tools to be installed in its locomotive and car shops.

Predicts Continued Recovery.

Thomas S. Holden, vice president in charge of statistics and research for the F. W. Dodge corporation, at a meeting of the Central Supply association at the Palmer House, said that private construction and general business and industrial activity are approximately midway in a broad general recovery upswing.

He added that recent improvements in industrial and business activity tend to increase employment, purchasing power, and residential, industrial and commercial construction. Judging from what is known now, he continued, we may count on 1940 construction being about equal to that of 1939.

Business Books

"When War Comes," edited by Larry Nixon. [The Greystone Press, New York. $2.25.]

Although it bears an ominous title, this book is written as a practical guide for Americans in time of war. It sidesteps the controversial issue of whether war will come here and plunges immediately into a description of "what will happen and what to do."

The two financial editors and three veteran newspapermen who wrote the separate chapters try to vision a wartime America with high pressure government bond sales, drafts, inflation, cheaper money, heatless Mondays. The last war appears in the book as a stark foreboding of the next war.

The authors do not pretend to offer infallible advice for the individual's protection against the destruction of war. They write simply about inflation, insurance, "war babies," real estate, government control, conscription, living costs, propaganda, the horrors of war, and the aftermath.

Youngstown's Steel Mills at Full 'Capacity'

Steel operations in the Youngstown district next week will rise almost to 94 per cent of theoretical capacity, the highest rate in ten years. For all practical purposes, according to trade reports, mills in that district will be operating at capacity because 73 open hearth furnaces are in operation out of 83 available. Only three or four can be added to the active list, because others must replace units taken out of operation for repairs.

Carnegie-Illinois Steel corporation will blow in its No. 1 blast furnace at the Farrell works at the end of the week, and the No. 6 furnace at the Ohio works during the week of Oct. 22. With these furnaces going, the United States Steel subsidiary will be at 100 per cent of capacity in that district.

92 Per Cent in 1937.

The closest to 94 per cent that Youngstown operations have come since 1929 was during the 1937 steel boom, when the rate reached 92 per cent.

It was reported that a shortage of steel caused some finishing mills to halt work temporarily during the week. Some of the blast furnaces not in operation are idle only because iron can not be obtained.

Birmingham district steel production will increase four points to 90 per cent of capacity next week. Blast furnace operations are continuing at the full 100 per cent rate.

Iron Age reported that on Oct. 1 there were 169 blast furnaces in operation in the United States. This is 70.7 per cent of the 239 furnaces available, and compares with 138 furnaces active, or 58 per cent, on Sept. 1, when there were 238 furnaces available.

Wire Nail Price Advanced.

Another price increase was reported. The quotation on wire nails was advanced $3 a ton by a major producer. Others followed the increase almost immediately.

The Keystone Steel and Wire company, near Peoria, Ill., was reported operating at 100 per cent of capacity. The firm's entire production of principal products is sold out to the end of the year.

Tin plate production was estimated by Dow-Jones at 92 per cent of capacity, a figure which "no one in the trade expected could be reached at this time."

Steel production in September amounted to 4,231,310 gross tons, compared with 3,763,418 tons in August, a gain of 12.4 per cent, and 2,647,129 tons in September, 1938, an increase of 60 per cent. It was the best monthly figure since 4,289,507 tons were produced in September, 1937. For the first nine months of 1939, steel production totaled 29,748,042 tons.

MACHINE FIRM BUYS COMPANY IN INDIANAPOLIS

Acquistion of the entire common stock of the International Machine Tool company of Indianapolis was announced yesterday by the Clearing Machine corporation of Chicago, manufacturer of steel presses for metal stamping. Officers of the Clearing Machine corporation will occupy the same positions in the new subsidiary company.

Operations at the Indianapolis plant will be continued, the announcement said. The International Machine Tool company's chief product is a heavy duty turret lathe. According to George M. Sundheim, secretary of Clearing Machine corporation, sales of the Indianapolis concern have increased about $200,000 since Sept. 16.

Officers of the parent company who will hold similar posts in the subsidiary are R. W. Glasner, president; G. A. Pockels, vice president; H. P. Isham, treasurer, and Sundheim. E. J. Terry, former general factory manager of the Caterpillar Tractor company, will be a vice president.

STEEL PRODUCTS CONCERN LEASES CHICAGO PLANT

National Sheet Steel company of Detroit yesterday leased the east building of the Hansell-Elcock company's plant at 3153 South California avenue, containing 35,000 square feet. Steel products, purchased mostly from mills in the Chicago area, will be distributed by the National company. Straus & Co. were brokers for all parties.

According to Sol Fox, in charge of local operations for the company, between 20 and 30 persons will be hired locally to handle and shear the steel goods bought from Carnegie-Illinois, Inland, and other mills in Chicago and Detroit areas. Fox formerly was local representative for the Nottingham Steel company of Cleveland, O.

UNCLE SAM, TOY MAKER, SANTA TO MORE OF WORLD

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—War materials may become an important United States export next year, but this year the boom is in toys.

The commerce department calculated today that $1,892,140 worth of toys were shipped abroad in the first eight months of the year, exceeding by 17 per cent the corresponding figure for last year.

The United States, which since the world war has surpassed both Germany and Japan in playing Santa Claus to the world, is shipping increasingly larger quantities of mechanical toys, wheel goods, and rubber balloons. Doll exports gained by a lesser amount.

Warns Debts Will Hamper Nation in War

Strengthening of this country's fiscal structure was advanced yesterday as a bulwark against being drawn into the European war. A. N. Kemp, president of the Pacific Mutual Life Insurance company, told delegates to the American Life convention that lightening the tax burden would contribute materially to a more sound financial system.

The large debt of the United States "would constitute a serious impediment to the use of our resources in time of conflict," Kemp said at the meeting in the Edgewater Beach hotel. He traced much of Europe's troubles to high taxes and overwhelming national debts.

Resources Chief Safeguard.

America's greatest safeguard in the present conflict, he said, "is the availability of our vast reservoir of national resources, free from the fetters of shackling debt."

"But as we chain that wealth with bonds of debt," Kemp warned, "we progressively subtract from our capacity to mobilize for our protection a portion of the resources which constitute our greatest natural strength."

Asserting mounting taxation was an important factor in overbalancing the economic systems of several European countries, Kemp said the tax burden in this country had grown 700 per cent, on a per capita basis, within the last 30 years. Against $543,000,000 in 1908, taxes collected by the federal government increased to $5,476,700,000 in 1937, he said.

Assails Federal Policies.

Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, attacked the growth of governmental bureaus at Washington, the rise in taxation, and what he termed the government's harassment of business.

Asserting new federal laws enacted under the Roosevelt administration have stifled business initiative and driven investment funds into hiding, he declared "venture capital," if given an opportunity to work, would provide new industries which would absorb part of the country's jobless.

Within the last 30 years, capital invested in 18 new industries has provided employment for 9,500,000 of the gainfully employed, or one-fourth of the nation's breadwinners, he said. Under the New Deal, however, this type of investment has been severely restricted, he charged.

SALES OF STORES IN MIDDLE WEST EXCEED YEAR AGO

Department store sales in the 7th [Chicago] federal reserve district during the week ended Sept. 30 were 21.7 per cent higher than the levels of the corresponding week in 1938, the Federal Reserve Bank of Chicago reported yesterday.

In the preceding week department store trade in the area was 5.4 per cent above 1938 levels. For the four weeks ended Sept. 30, according to the bank's report, sales in the area increased 7.9 per cent over sales in the corresponding weeks of 1938.

Chicago stores gained 22.3 per cent over last year's levels during the week ended Sept. 30. Chicago's increase for the four week period was 5 per cent over the corresponding period a year ago.

National department store sales for the week were 14 per cent higher than a year ago, it was reported, and the average gain over 1938 for the four week period was 6 per cent.

Treasury Deficit Exceeds Billion for Third of Year

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—The treasury had a deficit of more than 1 billion dollars today, after little more than a third of the current fiscal year. Oct. 4 figures made available today showed that since July 1, the treasury had spent $2,510,312,152 and had taken in $1,496,225,402. In the similar period last year, when expenditures were slightly smaller and income slightly larger, the deficit was $770,904,750.

90 Per Cent of Growers Favor Tobacco Control

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 [Special].—The Agricultural Adjustment administration announced today that unofficial returns from the flue-cured tobacco referendum held yesterday show that 89.8 per cent of the growers favored marketing quotas for the 1940 crop.

FORMER HUPP MOTOR PRESIDENT BECOMES WILLYS DISTRIBUTOR

Appointment of Samuel L. Davis, who retired recently as president of the Hupp Motor Car corporation, as distributor of Willys Overland automobiles in the Chicago area was announced yesterday by M. J. Golden, general sales manager of Willys-Overland Motors, Inc. Davis will head the Willys Illinois company, with headquarters at Michigan avenue and 26th street.

Davis, prior to taking the Hupp presidency, was in the automobile business in Chicago for 20 years. For years he was active in the annual Chicago automobile show.

J. W. Frazer, president of Willys Overland, speaking at a meeting in Davis' office yesterday, reiterated assertions that the Willys Overland cars have a definite place in America's automobile picture by offering really small cars that are economical to operate. He said that more than 200 cars are being produced daily and more orders are being received at the Toledo plant than can be filled.

WAR IN EUROPE SNARLS PLAN TO STORE SUPPLIES

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—The treasury indicated today that the war was complicating the government's $100,000,000 program for storing strategic war materials in this country.

A call for bids on manila fiber [abaca], one of the materials, was canceled today. A formal treasury statement explained that action was taken at the request of the war and navy departments because of price increases, believed due to the war.

Bids were to have been received Oct. 23. Similar bids also have been asked for chromium, manganese and tungsten ore, and pig tin.

Auto Output Makes Big Gain; May Be Near Peak

Automobile production this week was estimated yesterday by Ward's Automotive Reports, Inc., at 76,095 units, compared with 62,755 last week and 33,165 a year ago. The total next week may be close to the peak for the year, set last April, it said. Ward's said that the expanding demand is surprising factory officials.

Staples Prices Rise on Hitler Talk, Then Slip

Most commodity futures at New York advanced sharply in early trading yesterday on the bullish interpretation given Hitler's speech, the subsequent trading brought in considerable selling, and prices reacted from the day's peaks.

Wool top futures climbed spectacularly at the opening, several deliveries gaining the permissible limit of 10 cents a pound. Closing prices, however, were up only 1.9 to 4.1 cents. Cash raw wool gained 1 cent to $1.26.

Britain Takes African Wool.

Another source of possible imports of wool was apparently cut off yesterday when a Reuters [British] news agency dispatch from Pretoria, South Africa, said Britain has agreed to purchase a large part of the South African wool clip.

Interest in refined copper at the newly established price of 12½ cents a pound diminished, and the trade estimated the day's sales were the smallest since the war began in Europe. New York copper futures, however, firmed with the generally commodity list and closed 0.02 to 0.05 cent a pound higher.

Cash silk advanced 7 cents to $3.10 a pound, and silk futures recorded smaller gains. Chicago cash hides, down to 15½ cents on Thursday, came back up to 16 cents yesterday. New York hide futures gained 0.13 to 0.22 cent a pound.

Sugar Futures Higher.

Sugar futures were also higher, aided in part by announcement that the Canadian dumping duty of 75 cents per 100 pounds on refined sugar imports had been removed because of a shortage of sugar in Canada. Slow turnover in the raw sugar market restricted interest, brokers said. Both refined and raw sugar remained unchanged.

Cottonseed oil futures lost the better part of an early advance running to about ⅝ cent a pound, but managed to close 0.09 to 0.12 cent higher. Cocoa lost about ⅛ cent a pound, while coffee, rubber, and tin were irregular. Cash tin advanced 1 cent a pound to 57 cents.

STEEL WORKERS FIGHT REPUBLIC DAMAGE SUIT

Cleveland, O., Oct. 6 (AP).—The C. I. O. steel workers organizing committee contended today that Republic Steel corporation's $7,500,000 damage suit, resulting from the 1937 Little Steel strike, "is not within the terms or provisions" of the Sherman and Clayton acts.

The corporation brought the suit under these federal statutes, charging that the C. I. O. and the SWOC "entered into a combination, confederation and conspiracy in restraint of trade" by forcing complete or partial closing of Republic plants.

Three SWOC units, listed among hundreds of defendants, asserted in their answer on file today, "this action is improperly brought under the provisions of either or both of said acts and this court is, therefore, without jurisdiction."

The suit is expected to be brought to trial next spring.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—Public offerings of new securities in the week ended yesterday totaled $13,155,000, the largest amount in six weeks, Poor's Publishing company reported today.

Though still below prewar totals, the amount was more than double any other week since the beginning of the conflict and 74 per cent of the total represented new capital [not refunding].

GRAINS SPURT; TRADERS DOUBT WAR WILL END

Sharp Early Upturn Is Pared Later.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

Closing prices on the December delivery of principal grains on the Chicago Board of Trade:

	Yesterday.	Thursday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$ .83	$ .82	$ .65
Corn	.50¼	.50	.46⅛
Oats	.32⅜	.32⅛	.25¼
Rye	.53¾	.53¼	.43⅜
Soy beans	.82⅞	.82⅝	.74½

Grain traders yesterday construed Hitler's program as not likely to check the European war. A rush of short covering and scattered commission house buying at the opening of the market disclosed a lack of offerings. Wheat and corn futures soared 2 to 2½ cents before the demand was satisfied.

Profit taking developed on the advance and prices reacted quickly. Closing trades on wheat futures on the Chicago Board of Trade were at gains of ¾ to 1 cent. Corn was ⅛ to ¼ cent higher. Exporters were reported to have been good buyers of soy bean futures and closing trades were at gains of ¼ to 1 cent.

Lull Follows Early Rush.

Extreme dullness prevailed in the grain markets following the sharp upturn at the opening. Professional speculators generally showed no disposition to increase their operations, pending further developments in the European political situation.

Drouth conditions prevail over the larger part of the west and southwest, and the prospect that seeding of winter wheat will be extremely late this season is attracting more attention from commission houses. Dust storms prevailed yesterday in parts of western Kansas and Oklahoma, and in the Texas Panhandle.

A few small lots of Canadian cash wheat were reported sold for export. Relatively small shipments have been made recently from St. Lawrence river and American Atlantic ports.

Report Export Sales of Corn.

Reports were current that 250,000 bushels of American corn were sold late Thursday for shipment from Montreal. It also was understood orders were in the market for additional supplies of that grain. Argentina exported 1,689,000 bushels of corn during the last week, of which none went to the United Kingdom.

Shipments of corn via lake from Chicago on Thursday aggregated 426,000 bushels, all of which went to Canadian ports.

Margins on speculative trades in grain futures required from members of the clearing corporation of the Chicago Board of Trade were lowered 1 cent a bushel yesterday on grains and soy beans. Officials said the reduction did not change the minimum margin needs of nonmember speculators.

Retailers Pledge Support to Home Appliance Week

More than 100 retailers of home appliances met in the Stevens hotel last night and pledged full support for "Home Appliance week," officially proclaimed by Mayor Edward J. Kelly for Oct. 30 to Nov. 4. The program, endorsed by manufacturers and wholesalers, has been planned "to show the part that home appliances have played in the growth of Chicago in the last 100 years."

Exchange May Seek Good Will by Advertising

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—The New York Stock exchange is considering a broad program to "sell" the institution to the public through a nation-wide newspaper advertising campaign, it was learned today. If made effective it would mark a departure from previous "educational and informational" activities of the exchange, it was said, in that the members would bear the entire expense.

Although the plan is understood to have strong sponsorship within the exchange, it was emphasized its adoption would depend on the general support of members. It was expected a comprehensive outline of the program would be submitted to the membership within the next few weeks.

Source of Funds Not Disclosed.

Whether the members would be asked to underwrite the campaign by contributions or assessments in proportion to their importance in stock exchange activities, or whether the necessary funds would be raised through the imposition of a transactions levy, to be paid by the members, was not disclosed.

The proposed movement, exchange interests said, is in line with the public relations work which was inaugurated by the new management of the exchange, following the drastic internal reorganization two years ago.

Would End Public Resentment.

A professed major aim of the exchange executives now functioning under President William McChesney Martin Jr., is the dissipation of any adverse public feeling toward the exchange which stemmed from the stock market collapse of October, 1929, and the subsequent revelations of some Wall Street practices during the boom period.

A few months ago the exchange suggested to member firms it would be desirable for them to advertise more actively.

NOT MANY AUTOS NEED HIGH TEST GAS, TNEC HEARS

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6 (AP).—An oil company executive told the temporary national economic [monopoly probe] committee today that, "to be perfectly honest about it," not many automobiles really need so-called "high test" gasoline.

The witness, Sidney A. Swensrud, vice president of the Standard Oil Company of Ohio, asserted, however, that cars which do need it—those with high compression engines—give very much better performance when "high test" gasoline is used.

The committee said it would take steps to determine the authenticity of a letter which a witness said disclosed a plan of major oil companies and railroads to damage independent southeastern oil dealers and truckers.

The letter purported to confirm an agreement under which the oil companies would discontinue the transportation of petroleum products by trucks in certain cases and that the railroads in the southeastern territory would in turn endeavor to readjust oil freight rates and revise their system of leasing railroad property for filling station purposes.

Chicago Firm to Enlarge Plant Through Stock Sale

Skilsaw, Inc., Chicago company manufacturing electric saws and portable electric tools, plans a $35,000 addition to its plant at 5033-43 Elston avenue which was completed a year ago, it was reported yesterday. To finance the construction and to provide additional working capital the company expects to sell stock to the public, it was announced. Stockholders approved a three for one split in the common stock and an increase in the authorized issue from 40,000 to 150,000 shares.

STOCKS RUN UP ON HITLER TALK, THEN RETREAT

Close Is Irregular; Trade Heavier.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Oct. 6.—Stocks advanced 1 to 4 points early today, only to react and close irregular. The opening rush of buying supposedly was prompted by Chancellor Hitler's speech and early reports that it would be rejected by England and France. Persistent selling later brought the reaction. Sales totaled 1,326,230 shares, against 906,380 yesterday.

The opening was one of the strongest in weeks, blocks of 1,000 to 7,000 shares moving.

The German leader's words—which were studied before the market opening—served as the driving motive for the initial spurt, according to observers, because his demands were believed difficult for the allies to accept. Some urgent short covering was another factor.

No "Follow Through" Demand.

However, the lack of "follow through" demand that has characterized recent sessions plus the disposition of some operators to convert the early gains into cash were blamed for the subsequent recession. Many issues managed to perk up from their lows before the finish.

Steel and aviation shares were prominent in the initial spurt, posting advances ranging to 4 points. Other war stocks also advanced, but the bulk of the gains was lost before the final bell.

United States Steel, Republic, Youngstown Sheet and Tube, and Crucible managed to stay fractionally higher, but Bethlehem slipped ½ point. Aviations held gains running to nearly a point, notably in Douglas and United Aircraft. Curtiss-Wright and North American Aviation were among the most active issues.

Motors Rise, Then Recede.

Motor shares retreated after an early advance. Chrysler entered new high ground for the year, then slid into the minus column. General Motors also lost a fraction. In the chemicals Allie and Union Carbide each held 1½ points of larger gains. Du Pont dropped nearly 2 points, however.

Other stocks whose fortunes are believed linked to war, including shipping and sugars, ruled higher at the close although failing to hold good gains made at the start.

Coppers showed little change. Most rubber shares closed behind minus signs. Oils were mixed, with Standard Oil [New Jersey] dropping one point. Carrier shares started higher, but relinquished part or all of their gains. Rail equipments were steady.

Power and light shares ruled narrowly lower. In the merchandising section, Montgomery Ward and Sears-Roebuck worked higher. Building shares closed mostly lower, although Johns-Manville stood out with a rise of 2¼.

Orders of 9 Million Booked at Restaurant Convention

Business approximating $9,000,000 was booked by exhibitors at the 21st annual convention of the National Restaurant association at 666 Lake Shore drive, it was announced yesterday at the conclusion of the meeting. Additional orders of a similar amount will follow as a result of the meeting, it was said. The association set a new attendance record at 12,500, or 15 per cent above last year's convention.

Stocks, Bonds

New York Bonds.

New York, Oct. 6 (AP).—United States government issues closed 9-32 point higher to 10-32 lower with losses a shade in the majority today after a session of uneven trading.

The federals were down as much as 12-32 point in early dealings, then rebounded sharply in the afternoon, regaining most of the early losses and selling in some cases as much as 12-32 advanced. Toward the end, however, there was easing all along the line, with more than half the list displaying minus signs. But even at the weakest, the traded treasuries continued to command premiums over par.

Railway, utility, and industrial bonds all turned upward in early dealings as the market studied Herr Hitler's speech, asking peace on German terms. However, morning gains ranging from fractions to 1 point or more, had at the close been converted into a fairly even distribution of fractional gains and losses.

The market value of 1,389 bond issues listed in the New York Stock exchange as of Sept. 30 totaled $46,436,860,982, the exchange reported today. This compared with 1,380 issues with a market value of $47,297,289,186 a month earlier. Par value of these loans increased to $52,466,235,827 from $52,208,968,807, but the average price per $1,000 bond declined to $885 from $905.90.

Chicago Stocks.

Gains outnumbered losses in trading on the Chicago Stock exchange yesterday. While interest in the market remained substantial with a turnover of 42,000 shares, few changes of significance were recorded among the volume leaders. Of 107 issues traded, forty-seven advanced, twenty-five declined, and the others closed unchanged.

United States Steel attracted a good following on its second day of trading in Chicago, and finished ⅛ lower at 75⅛ on a turnover of 1,650 shares. Commonwealth Edison remained at the top of the volume list with 7,600 shares changing hands, and closed ⅜ lower at 29⅞.

Jarvis, prominent during recent sessions, established another 1939 peak at 15⅝, but slipped back to sho wa fractional net loss.

AUGUST INCOME OF 16 AIR LINES SHOWS INCREASE

Gross Revenue Is Higher than in July.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Oct. 6.—Sixteen domestic air lines in August realized a combined net income before taxes of $779,200, compared with $639,566 in July, according to a compilation made today of earning reports filed with the Civil Aeronautics authority.

Gross operating revenues of $5,271,400 in August compared with $5,084,245 in July, and net operating revenues of $823,700 in August, compared with $678,389 in the preceding month.

Adding the results of a newcomer, Marquette Air Lines, to the August list brought gross operating revenues of the 17 leading domestic lines to $5,275,400, but reduced the combined net operating revenues to $809,900 and net income before taxes to $765,400 because of deficits which Marquette incurred.

August Results Tabulated.

Results for August, 1939, were as follows:

Net Income After Taxes.

Some of the lines reported net income after allowance for federal and state income taxes. These results for August were as follows: Braniff, $13,500; Chicago and Southern, $2,700; Continental, $7,200; Delta, $11,800; Eastern, $21,600; Inland, $8,700; Mid-Continent, $10,800; Pennsylvania-Central, $24,200, and United, $228,300.

Earnings of Pennsylvania-Central for July consisted of gross operating revenues of $168,900, net operating revenues of $15,300, net income before taxes of $15,900, and net income after taxes of $13,100. The report was filed late last month and was not included in the summary of 15 air lines for July, previously published.

HERR GOERING'S BONDS.

I notice that Herr Goering is supposed to have invested some money in Pennsylvania 4½s of 1970 and Illinois Central 4¾s of 1966. This may not be true, but if it is, I'm curious to know how good an investor Herr Goering is. How do these bonds rate?—F. L.

Answer: If the stories coming from England about Herr Goering's investments are true, he rates as a fair judge of securities.

The Pennsylvania 4½s of 1970 are a debenture issue, not secured by a mortgage, and are the weakest of all bond issues of this road. But the Pennsylvania has covered fixed charges throughout the depression and is in excellent financial condition. The 4½s of 1970 have a good margin of safety and are considered a suitable business man's investment.

The Illinois Central 4¾s of 1966 are also a debenture issue, not secured by a mortgage. This line does not have as good an earnings record as the Pennsylvania. Illinois Central has covered fixed charges in each of the last three years. Because the 4¾s of 1966 are dependent primarily upon earning power for safety, they are considered semi-speculative.

Both these issues have been selling consistently below par and have been returning a good yield.

FIAT.

What does Fiat do? Their stock is listed on the New York Curb exchange and I have some of it.—Y. O.

Answer: Fiat is the largest industrial concern in Italy and one of the largest manufacturers of automobiles in Europe. Forgings, castings, tractors, Diesel engines, railway rolling stock, aviation engines, and airplanes are among major products. Subsidiary sales organizations exist in many countries.

Sole capitalization of the company consists of 2,000,000 outstanding shares of 200 lire capital stock. American depository receipts have been issued, with each receipt representing one deposited share of capital stock. It is these receipts which are traded on the New York Curb exchange.

Fiat has reported profitable operations in all recent years, and dividends have been paid regularly in Italy. But American holders of depository receipts have received no dividends. Such dividends have been deposited in Italian banks for the account of American deposit receipts, but cannot be converted into United States currency because of Italian monetary restrictions.

Inability of holders of American deposit receipts to get their dividends would make these receipts speculative in any case, and the war in Europe further increases that speculative position.
